Tapes Held Public

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House tapes played at the Watergate cover-up trial probably will be released for public broadcast after the trial ends, a federal judge indicated Thursday.

"The public should have the opportunity to hear them," U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said in a memorandum.

He ruled that former President Richard M. Nixon, who has protested public release of the tapes, "has no right to prevent normal access to these public documents . . .

"His words cannot be retrieved; they are public property and his opposition is accordingly rejected," Gesell said.

The three networks, ABC, CBS and NBC, the Public Broadcasting System, the Radio and Television News Directors Association, and record firms asked to be allowed to copy the tapes.

"The tape exhibits are in evidence and have therefore come into the public domain," Gesell ruled. "The courts are a branch of government and criminal proceeding involving officials holding high positions of public trust must peculiarly remain open for the closest scrutiny and discussion by citizens."

Gesell noted, however, that "before the tapes can be released, certain immediate obstacles must be overcome."

He said material not played at the cover-up trial must be excised, a process that might take several weeks, and that no attempt should be made to copy the tapes until after the trial ends.

"If any release is to be made," the judge cautioned, "it must obviously be accomplished on a basis which does not permit over-commercialization of the evidence." He said the press and others interested must be treated equally.

Gesell asked all parties in the case to suggest appropriate ways for releasing the tapes, saying he was doing so "without in any way indicating whether it is practical or possible" to do so.

He asked for the suggestions before Jan. 3.

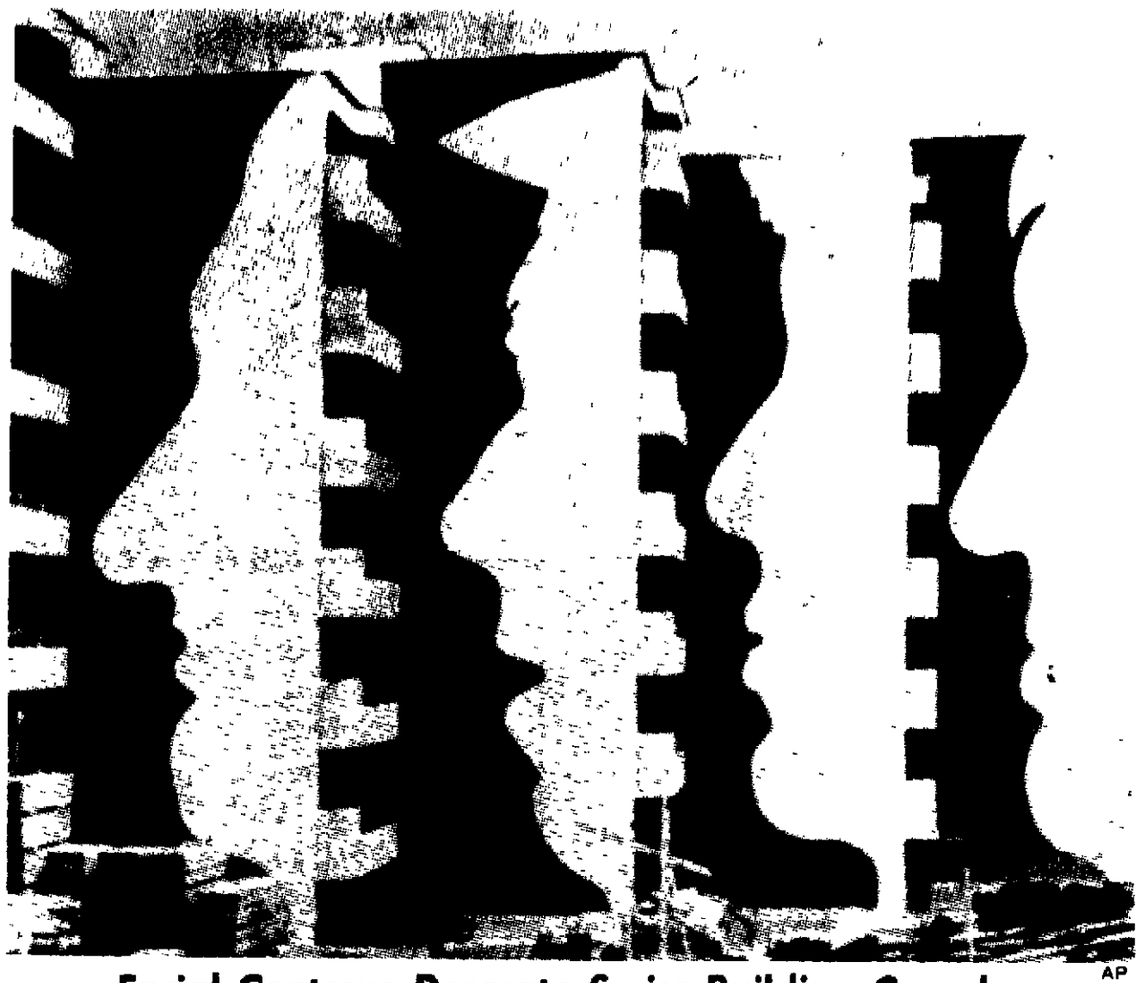

In the meantime, he ordered one set of tapes to be prepared containing only the portions played for the jury. Final action on the applications will be taken later.

To date, 31 tapes had been played for the jury — all but two of conversations involving Nixon.

Gesell noted that none of the five defendants in the case, the prosecutor or the judge, John J. Sirica, have objected to the tapes' release.

Nixon had claimed a property right upon the tapes and a privilege against disclosure.

Gesell noted that extraneous material had been removed from the tapes by Sirica, including national security topics and that "only portions of the tapes strictly germane to the criminal proceeding have been played for the jury."

Judge Moran Dismisses Terry Carpenter Appeal

Gering (AP) — Claiming a lack of jurisdiction, District Court Judge Robert Moran of Alliance, sitting in for Scotts Bluff County District Court Judges Alfred Kortum and Theodore Feidler, Thursday dismissed a "petition of appeal" filed for former State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

Carpenter's attorney filed the petition contesting Carpenter's loss to Scotts Bluff County Commissioner William Nichol, also of Scottsbluff, in the race for the 48th District seat in the Unicameral.

Both Kortum and Feidler disqualified themselves from hearing the case. Both noted that Nichol is a member of the County Board of Commissioners, which makes decision on claims filed from the court. Both also pointed out that they voted in the contested election.

Carpenter was the apparent winner by just three votes after the initial vote count was completed. However, Nichol was declared the winner by a 68-vote margin after a recount. The State Canvassing Board officially certified Nichol as the winner earlier this week.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann personally supervised the recount.

Carpenter petition asked the court to reinstate a number of disqualified write in ballots which he said were cast for him.

Beermann threw out between 80 and 100 votes because voters either misspelled Carpenter's last name, or did not include a first name or initial as required by state law.

Carpenter asked the court to declare the two laws Beermann acted under unconstitutional, claiming they violated the due process clause of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, and the civil rights provisions in both the Federal and State Constitutions.

Carpenter contended that the laws defeated the votes of less educated and illiterate voters, and those voters having spelling difficulties.

In short, Carpenter claimed a voter's intent, and not his or her aptitude for spelling should be the determining factor.

In the event the court could not restore the disqualified votes, Carpenter asked that the election be declared null and void, and that a new election be held.

Moran said both Nichol and Ben Wilson, the third candidate in the race, filed special appearances in the case Thursday, and filed motions claiming that the District Court does not have jurisdiction in the case.

Moran agreed, and sustained the motions.

"Under the law, the matter belongs in the hands of the Nebraska Legislature," Moran said.

Carpenter replied by saying he felt Moran's actions were "rather unusual."

However, the fiery former lawmaker said the action was expedited quickly, and the case can now be taken to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Carpenter said he would take the case to the high court "immediately."

"We think we have enough time for the Supreme Court to hear it (the case) before the Legislature takes office in January," Carpenter said.

Carpenter said he does not think he will take the election results before the full Legislature, because the court should rule on whether the Legislature went beyond it's jurisdiction in passing the two sections of the statutes that he is challenging.

Crucial Quota Compromise Approved

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A coalition of Democratic regulars and reformers won approval of a crucial compromise on quotas Thursday as rival factions debated the party's 1980 rules and its 1976 presidential hopefuls wooed the 2,000 miniconvention delegates.

Party leaders, meanwhile, prepared a resolution that national Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss said will be relevant "to the economic concerns of the people of this country."

Sources said the resolution would call for equitable wage-price controls unless the economy picks up soon, and would recommend an array of other measures to fight both inflation and recession.

It will be debated after the party's unprecedented three-day midterm convention officially opens Friday.

As the lobbies of downtown hotels began to swarm with arriving delegates, a trio of presidental hopefuls — Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and Sens. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas and Henry M. Jackson of Washington — flew here on two chartered planes with dozens of their congressional colleagues. Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama arrived later in a private plane.

"I want to get to know some of these delegates" said Bentsen on arriving at the new Kansas City International Airport. The Texas millionaire plans a cocktail party Friday night for all 4,000 delegates, alternates, aides and reporters.

Jackson, when asked if he was the 1976 front-runner, told reporters: "I hope not. Front-runners are considered targets, and it counts where you are at the end."

Udall, the only formally declared candidate, said the race was "wide open."

Bentsen, Jackson and Udall scheduled almost continuous visits with delegations around town. All are scheduled to appear Friday at panel discussions on major national issues.

Lesser schedules are planned by Wallace, who topped the Democratic field in the latest Gallup poll on presidential preferences, and by Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, who is scheduled to announce his candidacy next Thursday.

Wallace, when asked about the poll's significance, replied, "The significance is that I am first at this time." And he said, "I hope unity can be achieved" at the conference.

As the party's big names began to move into town, party leaders won their second major success in two days in the preliminary battling over the convention's major piece of business — the first formal charter of any U.S. party.

An overwhelming majority of the 52-member panel reviewing amendments to the charter adopted a compromise to the potentially explosive quotas provision.

By votes of 42-6 and 33-13, the Rules Committee resisted efforts to punch holes in a compromise proposed by Democratic governors to include in the permanent party charter the delegate selection rules already adopted for 1976.

They rule out mandatory quotas in an effort to prevent the controversies that dogged the 1972 Democratic National Convention but require strong programs to encourage participation by minorities, young people and women.

Meanwhile, party officials drafted specifics for an economics resolution that will be the convention's first major order of business after it begins with a parade of opening speeches Friday.

White Expects Convention To Boost Party's Strength

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Kansas City — Democrats will emerge from this week's first-ever mid-term national convention in "much stronger shape" for a 1976 run at the White House, State Chairman Dick White of Lincoln predicted Thursday.

After sitting in on pre-convention sessions on amendments and rules, White said he foresees "a very peaceful and constructive" convention.

"All the leaders of the various groups involved are in substantial agreement on most issues," White said.

The conclave opens Friday. Its chief purpose is to adopt a charter for future party operations.

Sharing The Spotlight

Presidential politicking will share the spotlight in Kansas City, and Nebraska delegates will be exposed to plenty of that.

"It looks like we are going to be shown a lot of attention because of our early (1976) presidential primary," White noted in an interview.

Other feelers have been sent White's way by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas and Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia.

Caucus Set Friday

Nebraska delegates, who began arriving in the sunny (so far) convention city Thursday, will hold their first caucus Friday morning.

Gov. J. James Exon heads the 14-member Nebraska group.

White came to Kansas City early to sit in on pre-convention meetings of the executive committees of the Democratic National Committee and the charter commission.

'Generally Agree'

"It looks as if they are generally agreed on compromise solutions" White said.

"I think when this convention is all over, we will have shown that we can debate the issues and reach compromises without fighting among ourselves."

White said he will support the compromise proposal to sidestep what could be a disruptive battle over quotas for racial minorities, women and youth at future conventions.

Wipe Out Quota

The proposal would wipe out the quota system which prevailed at the 1972 national convention, and require, in its place, "affirmative action" plans by state party organizations to involve all segments of the population in the delegate selection process.

Exon has already endorsed such a plan.

"I think virtually everyone will accept it," White said.

White said he will also support a proposal which would give the national committee the authority to decide when the party should hold mid-term conventions. An alternative plan would require national conclaves every two years.

Put It In Writing

This year's mid-term convention, the first ever for Democrats, is "useful," the state chairman said, because it will allow the party to "put some standards in writing.

"One of the problems we have had is that the rules for national conventions are changed by whoever happens to be in power at the time," he noted.

"Now we will have some minimum standards, and I think it will add some stability to the convention system."

NU Five-Year Plan Aims For Ed Quality

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska System will change gears, shifting from the challenge of coping with rapid enrollment increases in the 1960s to providing higher quality education in the 1970s, according to the revised NU five-year plan "Toward Excellence."

The 135-page report was released Thursday by Steven B. Sample, NU executive vice president for academic affairs. The draft report is subject to revision before the NU Board of Regents takes final action on it Dec. 14 in Lincoln.

The revision of the plan, adopted in 1973, makes 13 recommendations that will ultimately affect not only students on the three NU campuses, but all Nebraskans, the Great Plains region, and the university's national stature.

Faculty Benefits

The first recommendation calls for aggressive protection and improvement of the quality of faculty members, requiring increases in funds for faculty salaries, sabbatical leaves, travel, exchange and visiting professorships.

Achieving that goal would permit NU to "compete with any institution in the country in attracting additional teachers and scholars of national and international stature."

In an effort to become one of Ameria's leading universities, particularly in undergraduate education, the plan proposes refined teacher evaluation and establishment of "a clearly understood system of rewards for excellence." One per cent of the annual instructional budget would go to improve and experiment in instruction.

That goal embraces off-campus teaching programs as well.

Student Involvement

Student involvement in academic review and decision-making should be continued and strengthened, according to the revised plan.

The plan calls for improvement and expansion of outreach programs throughout the state, in agriculture for farm and urban areas and in non-agricultural needs. That includes continued support of the State University of Nebraska (SUN) multimedia project, which offers college courses at home.

Because "present policies have not increased sufficiently the representation of minorities and women" in some areas at NU, another recommendation says the regents Affirmative Action Plan must be improved and expanded. That includes a funding proposal for full-time affirmative action officers on each NU campus.

The plan proposes broadening cooperative relationships with other Midwestern universities. Establishment of the University of Mid-America open-learning consortium (SUN's parent) with Kansas, Iowa and Missouri "may be an important first step."

Cooperative programs include working with state officials to develop an "academic common market" at NU and in other states, students from which would be granted in-state status for admission and tuition at any common market member school.

Cooperative Financing Eyed

Others include allowing students from a number of universities in a cooperating region to attend one school designated to run a high-cost program, and developing cooperatively financed programs in the professions among states.

The plan also recommends improving relationships with other colleges in Nebraska to coordinate academic programs, transfer programs in the professions with public and private colleges, and offer graduate instruction on other college campuses. The intent is to eliminate duplication of programs.

"A comprehensive university-wide data and information system must be developed," the revised

Ullman Predicts Passage Of Tax Reform Bill In 1975

Washington (AP) — Rep. Al Ullman, the probable next chief of the House Ways and Means Committee, predicted Thursday that "we're going to get a tax reform bill next year and it will be a good one."

The Oregon Democrat who is expected to succeed the hospitalized Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., as chairman of the tax-writing committee, also told reporters that new kinds of taxes are possible. Furthermore, he said, "next year we have to produce a national health plan."

Ullman's comments came as Mills remained in Bethesda Naval Hospital, reportedly under sedation for an undisclosed illness.

Along with making his first extensive comments on his plans, Ullman predicted Congress in the final weeks of this year will pass the committee-approved, multi-billion-dollar package of oil tax hikes and some tax cuts for millions of average Americans.

This would eventually end petroleum producers major tax-saving depletion allowance, impose a temporary new levy on windfall profits of oilmen, give individual Americans who do not itemize their tax returns a boost in minimum and maximum standard deductions, and hike the investment tax credit for public utilities from 4 per cent to 7 per cent.

With passage of this, Ullman said, "then, we've got a tremendous lot of work to do" on taxes, health and welfare issues. He indicated a look must be made at the basic tax system itself and the ways the government raises its revenue.

"The income tax system creates some real budgetary problems. If we're trying to establish a more stable flow, then we're going to have to broaden the tax base," he said, maybe coming up with something in addition such as perhaps a value added tax.

This is a national sales tax applied at every stage of the process from raw material to consumer who ultimately would pay it. It has been adopted throughout Western Europe in one form or another.

"Value-added has been looked at," said Ullman, and "we wouldn't do it the way Europe does it, but some Americanized version is possible."

On health insurance, he said, "I don't believe in payroll taxes ... but we'd have to find some other financial mechanism. I think it would be a disaster to dip into general revenues."

Ullman added: "I think we've gone about as far as we can go on payroll taxes. It is regressive. There are a lot of taxpayers paying more payroll taxes than income taxes."

In addition, Ullman said, the committee must look into Social Security issues "and I think we've got to go to welfare reform. We may not get a welfare reform bill next year but we've got to begin it" for action the following year.

As for the tax bill, he said "our goal" is action by July. Asked about chances for any across-the-board income tax cut, Ullman said he does not favor it and "I see no possibility of that."

Furthermore, he said he is "not a great believer in the surtax" as recently proposed by President Ford because it would underscore "inequity of the income tax." He said an "overreliance on the income tax ... brings a shelter problem."

Ullman also stressed that the "need for capital formation" must be kept in mind, an indication that he does not plan to hit hard at capital gains.

Ford assigned a top priority to enacting a multibillion-dollar national health insurance bill this year but the Ways and Means Committee's efforts to reach a compromise collapsed in a clash over financing methods.

Controls Continue

Tokyo (AP) — The Bank of Japan intends to maintain tight controls on commercial bank lending during the first quarter of 1975, according to Tadashi Sasaki, governor of the central bank. He told a press conference that the process of adjusting oversize inventories probably wouldn't be completed by industry until March.

Tapes Held Public

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House tapes played at the Watergate cover-up trial probably will be released for public broadcast after the trial ends, a federal judge indicated Thursday.

"The public should have the opportunity to hear them," U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said in a memorandum.

He ruled that former President Richard M. Nixon, who has protested public release of the tapes, "has no right to prevent normal access to these public documents . . .

Judge Moran Dismisses Terry Carpenter Appeal

Gering (AP) — Claiming a lack of jurisdiction, District Court Judge Robert Moran of Alliance, sitting in for Scotts Bluff County District Court Judges Alfred Kortum and Theodore Feidler, Thursday dismissed a "petition of appeal" filed for former State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff.

Carpenter's attorney filed the petition contesting Carpenter's loss to Scotts Bluff County Commissioner William Nichol, also of Scottsbluff, in the race for the 48th District seat in the Unicameral.

Both Kortum and Feidler disqualified themselves from hearing the case. Both noted that Nichol is a member of the County Board of Commissioners, which makes decision on claims filed from the court. Both also pointed out that they voted in the contested election.

Carpenter was the apparent winner by just three votes after the initial vote count was completed. However, Nichol was declared the winner by a 68-vote margin after a recount. The State Canvassing Board officially certified Nichol as the winner earlier this week.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann personally supervised the recount.

Carpenter petition asked the court to reinstate a number of disqualified write in ballots which he said were cast for him.

Beermann threw out between 80 and 100 votes because voters either misspelled Carpenter's last name, or did not include a first name or initial as required by state law.

Carpenter asked the court to declare the two laws Beermann acted under unconstitutional, claiming they violated the due process clause of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, and the civil rights provisions in both the Federal and State Constitutions.

Carpenter contended that the laws defeated the votes of less educated and illiterate voters, and those voters having spelling difficulties.

In short, Carpenter claimed a voter's intent, and not his or her aptitude for spelling should be the determining factor.

In the event the court could not restore the disqualified votes, Carpenter asked that the election be declared null and void, and that a new election be held.

Moran said both Nichol and Ben Wilson, the third candidate in the race, filed special appearances in the case Thursday, and filed motions claiming that the District Court does not have jurisdiction in the case.

Moran agreed, and sustained the motions.

"Under the law, the matter belongs in the hands of the Nebraska Legislature," Moran said.

Carpenter replied by saying he felt Moran's actions were "rather unusual."

However, the fiery former lawmaker said the action was expedited quickly, and the case can now be taken to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Carpenter said he would take the case to the high court "immediately."

"We think we have enough time for the Supreme Court to hear it (the case) before the Legislature takes office in January," Carpenter said.

Carpenter said he does not think he will take the election results before the full Legislature, because the court should rule on whether the Legislature went beyond it's jurisdiction in passing the two sections of the statutes that he is challenging.

NU Five-Year Plan Aims For Ed Quality

The University of Nebraska System will change gears, shifting from the challenge of coping with rapid enrollment increases in the 1960s to providing higher quality education in the 1970s, according to the revised NU five-year plan "Toward Excellence."

Ullman Predicts Passage Of Tax Reform Bill In 1975

Washington (AP) — Rep. Al Ullman, the probable next chief of the House Ways and Means Committee, predicted Thursday that "we're going to get a tax reform bill next year and it will be a good one."

Ullman's comments came as Mills remained in Bethesda Naval Hospital, reportedly under sedation for an undisclosed illness.

Along with making his first extensive comments on his plans, Ullman predicted Congress in the final weeks of this year will pass the committee-approved, multi-billion-dollar package of oil tax hikes and some tax cuts for millions of average Americans.

This would eventually end petroleum producers major tax-saving depletion allowance, impose a temporary new levy on windfall profits of oilmen, give individual Americans who do not itemize their tax returns a boost in minimum and maximum standard deductions, and hike the investment tax credit for public utilities from 4 per cent to 7 per cent.

With passage of this, Ullman said, "then, we've got a tremendous lot of work to do" on taxes, health and welfare issues. He indicated a look must be made at the basic tax system itself and the ways the government raises its revenue.

"The income tax system creates some real budgetary problems. If we're trying to establish a more stable flow, then we're going to have to broaden the tax base," he said, maybe coming up with something in addition such as perhaps a value added tax.

This is a national sales tax applied at every stage of the process from raw material to consumer who ultimately would pay it. It has been adopted throughout Western Europe in one form or another.

"Value-added has been looked at," said Ullman, and "we wouldn't do it the way Europe does it, but some Americanized version is possible."

On health insurance, he said, "I don't believe in payroll taxes ... but we'd have to find some other financial mechanism. I think it would be a disaster to dip into general revenues."

Ullman added: "I think we've gone about as far as we can go on payroll taxes. It is regressive. There are a lot of taxpayers paying more payroll taxes than income taxes."

In addition, Ullman said, the committee must look into Social Security issues "and I think we've got to go to welfare reform. We may not get a welfare reform bill next year but we've got to begin it" for action the following year.

As for the tax bill, he said "our goal" is action by July. Asked about chances for any across-the-board income tax cut, Ullman said he does not favor it and "I see no possibility of that."

Furthermore, he said he is "not a great believer in the surtax" as recently proposed by President Ford because it would underscore "inequity of the income tax." He said an "overreliance on the income tax ... brings a shelter problem."

Ullman also stressed that the "need for capital formation" must be kept in mind, an indication that he does not plan to hit hard at capital gains.

Ford assigned a top priority to enacting a multibillion-dollar national health insurance bill this year but the Ways and Means Committee's efforts to reach a compromise collapsed in a clash over financing methods.

Controls Continue

Tokyo (AP) — The Bank of Japan intends to maintain tight controls on commercial bank lending during the first quarter of 1975, according to Tadashi Sasaki, governor of the central bank. He told a press conference that the process of adjusting oversize inventories probably wouldn't be completed by industry until March.

No Testimony By Nixon–Sirica

Washington (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled Thursday that former President Richard M. Nixon will not testify in any form at the Watergate cover-up trial because his testimony is "not essential" and would be viewed with suspicion.

Sirica ordered the trial of five former Nixon aides to proceed without interruption, meaning it will likely be completed by Christmas.

In summary, Sirica said the ailing Nixon's testimony would merely duplicate that available from other witnesses and would have to be viewed "with caution" since he has been declared an unindicted accomplice of the defendants.

He ruled out even the possibility that Nixon might be required to answer written questions in his home, saying "Mr. Nixon's testimony is not essential" to ensure that justice is done.

The decision overruled the request of defendants John D. Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman and John N. Mitchell that they at least be allowed to take Nixon's testimony be deposition at a court near his San Clemente, Calif., home.

"The witness is simply unavailable to be deposed," Sirica said. "The court will not issue an order to take the deposition of Mr. Nixon whie it appears that he is so ill that the taking of such a deposition could seriously jeopardize his health.

"Nor will the court issue an order granting leave to take such depositions on Jan. 6," he said, eliminating possibilities of a holiday adjournment of the trial which was in its 48th day Wednesday.

A court-appointed medical team that examined the phlebitis-stricken Nixon had said he would be sufficiently recovered by Jan. 6 to give a deposition, which is a response to attorneys' questions taken outside the trial court and sent there as evidence. Shortly before Sirica announced his ruling however, Nixon's attorney said he could not be adequately prepared to supply a deposition until well after Jan. 6

Ehrlichman, formerly Nixon's No. 2 aide at the White House, had argued Nixon's testimony was indispensable to his defense to show he was unaware of some Watergate decisions allegedly made by Nixon and Haldeman. Sirica flatly rejected this argument

"Certainly Mr. Nixon's cumulative testimony on this and similar points is not indispensable or necessary to prevent a failure of justice," he saids.

". . . The value of Mr. Nixon's testimony to the defendants should not be unrealistically overestimated. Mr. Nixon himself has been named by the grand jury as an unindicted coconspirator in this case. Thus he has been accused in effect of being an accomplice of the defendants.

"Certainly (if he were called) his testimony would be subject to the instruction to the jury that it should be received with caution and scrutinized with care."

Jobless Benefits Advanced

WASHINGTON (AP) — A one-year, $1 billion emergency jobless benefits bill financed by federal funds and based on an administration-backed proposal was approved Thursday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The measure is similar to features in a bill which the House Education and Labor Committee approved Wednesday, authorizing $2 billion for up to 500,000 public service jobs during the next six months and extending some unemployment benefits.

Both bills are scheduled for House action next week.

Generally, the legislation would provide benefits to the jobless under a program for various areas reaching so-called economic trigger points.

Pilots: Hazardous Items, Passengers Won't Mix

Washington (AP) — The Air Line Pilots Association said Thursday its 32,000 members will refuse to fly after Feb. 1 passenger airplanes carrying most types of hazardous cargo.

The federal government's program of monitoring the air transportation of hazardous materials is "totally out of control," the union said.

The union said its ban applied to some 1,400 varieties of explosives, acids, gases, flammables, bacteriological agents and other materials classified by the Department of Transportation as hazardous.

The pilots' decision affects only flights within the United States.

The only hazardous cargo not banned by the decision is radioactive isotopes destined for medical use, dry ice and properly packaged magnetic materials, the union said.

The union said it hopes the Federal Aviation Administration would move to ban the materials on its own before Feb. 1.

The union said the action was approved by its board of directors in a meeting last month in Kansas City.

Panel Finishes Rockefeller Hearings

Washington (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee completed hearings on Nelson A. Rockefeller's vice presidential nomination Thursday and an informal poll indicated it would approve him next week by a substantial — but not unanimous — margin.

The poll indicated perhaps as many as 10 Democrats on the 38-member committee would vote against Rockefeller when his nomination is put to a vote, expected to take place late next week, possibly Thursday.

The Senate Judiciary Committee unanimously confirmed Rockefeller's nomination after televised hearings that focused — like the House hearings — on Rockefeller's financial dealings.

The nomination must be approved by majority vote of both houses once it clears committee. A full Senate vote was scheduled for Tuesday.

Rockefeller's final appearance before the House committee Thursday featured more sharp exchanges on the propriety of gifts and loans the former New York governor and his family gave associates and politicians, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

West German Declares Arms Pact 'Positive Step'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told President Ford Thursday that the West German government views the arms control agreement of Vladivostok as a "positive step" in the right direction.

In reporting this after Schmidt's first, two-hour-long talk with the President, German diplomatic observers said that the chancellor was especially pleased that the American side succeeded in persuading the Soviets to drop their insistence to include the U.S. forward base system (FBS) in the agreement.

The system consists of American airplanes stationed in Europe which could reach Soviet territory and may be equipped with nuclear weapons.

For years the Soviets have maintained that any new SALT agreement must include the FBS and also British and French airplanes. That they dropped this request is considered a major victory for Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger by many Western officials.

But Schmidt dwelt at greater length on economic questions, both at the meeting in the Executive Mansion and during a working lunch he had with Kissinger.

The thrust of his presentation was a warning, observers reported, that failure to cope with recession — focusing instead on fighting inflation — could have disastrous consequences for the industrialized countries.

Schmidt believes the United States could do more in leading the struggle against what became known as stagflation, the strange and perhaps unprecedented combination of inflation and recession.

At the White House, he stressed the interdependence of the economies of the industrialized, non-Communist countries.

The question of recycling of petrodollars was discussed in broad terms, informants said. In this connection, Ford repeated the longstanding U.S. position that close cooperation between the oil-consuming countries must not be interpreted as seeking confrontation with the producers.

Schmidt assured his host that West Germany agreed.

This, informants on both sides stressed, was an important point before Ford's scheduled meeting with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in mid-December. The French are known to suspect U.S. proposals for cooperation, and Schmidt, who has an intimate relationship with Giscard d'Estaing, could help ease that concern.

Stennis Tells Senators Arms Pact 'Critical Step'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Thursday praised the Vladivostok agreement on nuclear weapons ceilings as "a critical step" toward arms control and deserving of public support.

Without it, he said in a Senate speech, "the additional cost to the United States defense budget could be as much as $4 billion per year."

The announced preliminary agreement would limit both Russia and the United States to 2,400 nuclear delivery vehicles, including 1,320 missiles armed with multiple independently targeted warheads.

Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the agreement will not reduce U S. defense expenditures immediately. But without the agreement, he said, "the Russians could, and probably would, build up their strategic systems in excess of the 2,400 ceiling which would necessitate an additional build-up by the United States."

Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, speaking to the Communications-Electronics Association, said the agreement is "only a first step" toward the ultimate goals of arms reduction.

Until the goal is reached, the general said, the United States "must take the actions necessary to insure the adequacy of our strategic arsenal" within the ceilings on missiles and bombers worked out by President Ford and Soviet communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Stennis said the United States will not have to diminish its strategic security based on the triad of heavy bombers, land based missiles and nuclear submarines.

"Under the agreement, the United States will have the flexibility to improve the quality and alter the mixture of its strategic forces," Stennis said. "Moreover, it will permit the completion of every new strategic weapon system the United States now plans to build."

The Russians, Stennis said, "have already reached the allowable level of 2,400 strategic delivery vehicles and will therefore be compelled to reduce slightly their number in order to come within the terms of the agreement."

Stennis said he recognized many details remain to be negotiated, but said he feels both nations want an agreement and one can be reached.

Stennis expressed hope also that stabilization of U.S. and Soviet nuclear weaponry could be a basis for controlling the spreading nuclear capability of other nations, which he said "poses a most serious threat to world civilization."

Pilots Angered By Board's Blaming TWA Crash On Pilot

Washington (UPI) — Triggering an angry outburst from pilots, government investigators indicated Thursday pilot error may have caused the crash of a Trans World Airline jet on a mountain near here Sunday killing all 92 persons aboard.

The National Transportation Safety Board preliminary report said TWA's Flight 514 descended to 1,800 feet in an area where the minimum safe altitude, indicated on charts aboard the plane, was 3,400 feet.

Although the report did not say so specifically, it indicated that pilot error lay behind the crash.

The Boeing 727 jetliner flew straight into the side of Paris Mountain just below its top and a mile and a half from a secret government base designed to shelter government officials in event of a nuclear attack.

Angered by the board comments, the Air Line Pilots Association demanded in a letter to President Ford that board Chairman John Reed be removed "in the public interest."

The pilots' organization said it was "shocked and saddened" and that Reed had violated his agency's own rules by commenting on circumstances surrounding the crash before the completion of an accident report.

ALPA President J. J. O'Donnell also said the pilot of the jetliner was following established practice when he descended to 1,800 feet because an air traffic controller had just told him the TWA flight was cleared for its landing approach.

He said the crew of the big jet may have been relying on traffic controllers to bring them in when the plane crashed just 23 miles west of Washington's Dulles International Airport and about five miles north of Upperville, Va.

Rescue teams found the fog-shrouded crash site littered with burning debris, shattered trees and the broken bodies of all 85 passengers and 7 crewmembers aboard the plane.

"If I was cleared for an approach into Dulles, I would have descended to 1,800 feet (at the point the TWA pilot did)," O'Donnell said.

"I would have assumed that the radar controller knew where I was and that he knew those mountains out there."

O'Donnell said radar controllers were bringing the big jetliner in to Dulles Airport on an unusual route and that the pilot may not have known exactly where he was, relying on the controller to tell him when to start his approach.

Orders put out by the Federal Aviation Administration since the crash said permission to begin an approach does not mean a pilot can disregard his charts information about safe minimum altitudes. The orders conflict with practices that have been established in dealings between pilots and controllers over the years, O'Donnell said.

A traffic controller had cleared the jetliner to make its landing approach minutes before the crash, the safety board report said, and the plane immediately began descending to the airport approach altitude.

Remains Of Some Of 191 Victims Buried

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — The remains of some of the 191 persons who died in the crash of a Dutch charter plane flying Indonesian pilgrims to Mecca were buried at sunset Thursday on a tea plantation.

Rescuers dropped by parachute in rocky hill country where the Martinair DC8 jetliner crashed Wednesday night on this South Asian island near India had managed to gather a little pile of fragments of human bodies that were scattered over a wide area.

The plane, carrying 182 Indonesian Moslems and a crew of seven Dutch and two Indonesians, came down during a rainstorm 70 miles southeast of Colombo while approaching Bandaranaike International Airport for a scheduled stop on the way to Saudi Arabia.

Moslems believe that the best way to die is on a pilgrimage to Mecca. The remains were buried symbolically in accordance with Islamic custom.

A representative of the Indonesian Embassy in Colombo and a Moslem deputy minister of the Sri Lanka government were among those who stood with bowed heads at the graveside, overlooked by the sheer granite slopes of the Seven Virgins mountain range where the plane smashed into a mountain side.

Had the plane been just 75 feet higher it would have been clear. There was no immediate explanation why it had descended so far.

West German Declares Arms Pact 'Positive Step'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told President Ford Thursday that the West German government views the arms control agreement of Vladivostok as a "positive step" in the right direction.

In reporting this after Schmidt's first, two-hour-long talk with the President, German diplomatic observers said that the chancellor was especially pleased that the American side succeeded in persuading the Soviets to drop their insistence to include the U.S. forward base system (FBS) in the agreement.

The system consists of American airplanes stationed in Europe which could reach Soviet territory and may be equipped with nuclear weapons.

For years the Soviets have maintained that any new SALT agreement must include the FBS and also British and French airplanes. That they dropped this request is considered a major victory for Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger by many Western officials.

But Schmidt dwelt at greater length on economic questions, both at the meeting in the Executive Mansion and during a working lunch he had with Kissinger.

The thrust of his presentation was a warning, observers reported, that failure to cope with recession — focusing instead on fighting inflation — could have disastrous consequences for the industrialized countries.

Schmidt believes the United States could do more in leading the struggle against what became known as stagflation, the strange and perhaps unprecedented combination of inflation and recession.

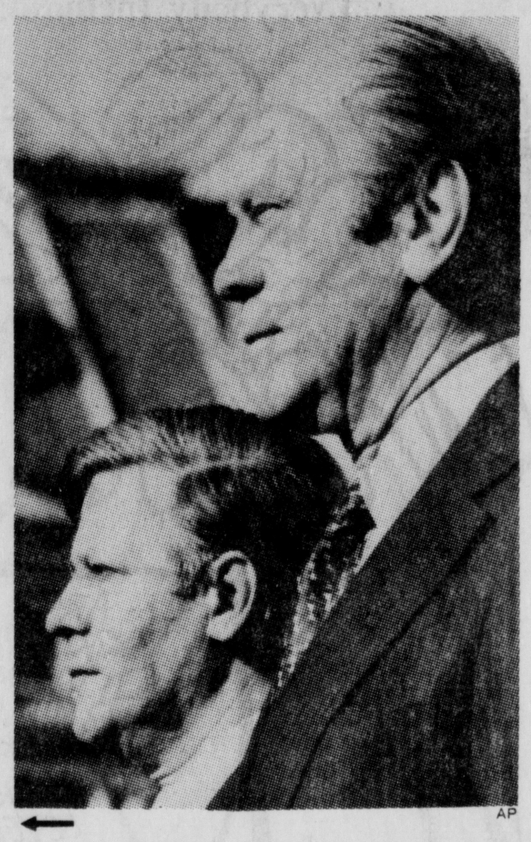

At the White House, he stressed the interdependence of the economies of the industrialized, non-Communist countries.

The question of recycling of petrodollars was discussed in broad terms, informants said. In this connection, Ford repeated the longstanding U.S. position that close cooperation between the oil-consuming countries must not be interpreted as seeking confrontation with the producers.

Schmidt assured his host that West Germany agreed.

This, informants on both sides stressed, was an important point before Ford's scheduled meeting with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing in mid-December. The French are known to suspect U.S. proposals for cooperation, and Schmidt, who has an intimate relationship with Giscard d'Estaing, could help ease that concern.

Stennis Tells Senators Arms Pact 'Critical Step'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Thursday praised the Vladivostok agreement on nuclear weapons ceilings as "a critical step" toward arms control and deserving of public support.

Without it, he said in a Senate speech, "the additional cost to the United States defense budget could be as much as $4 billion per year."

The announced preliminary agreement would limit both Russia and the United States to 2,400 nuclear delivery vehicles, including 1,320 missiles armed with multiple independently targeted warheads.

Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the agreement will not reduce U.S. defense expenditures immediately. But without the agreement, he said, "the Russians could, and probably would, build up their strategic systems in excess of the 2,400 ceiling which would necessitate an additional build-up by the United States."

Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, speaking to the Communications-Electronics Association, said the agreement is "only a first step" toward the ultimate goals of arms reduction.

Until the goal is reached, the general said, the United States "must take the actions necessary to insure the adequacy of our strategic arsenal" within the ceilings on missiles and bombers worked out by President Ford and Soviet communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Stennis said the United States will not have to diminish its strategic security based on the triad of heavy bombers, land based missiles and nuclear submarines.

"Under the agreement, the United States will have the flexibility to improve the quality and alter the mixture of its strategic forces," Stennis said. "Moreover, it will permit the completion of every new strategic weapon system the United States now plans to build."

The Russians, Stennis said, "have already reached the allowable level of 2,400 strategic delivery vehicles and will therefore be compelled to reduce slightly their number in order to come within the terms of the agreement."

Stennis said he recognized many details remain to be negotiated, but said he feels both nations want an agreement and one can be reached.

Stennis expressed hope also that stabilization of U.S. and Soviet nuclear weaponry could be a basis for controlling the spreading nuclear capability of other nations, which he said "poses a most serious threat to world civilization."

Pilots Angered By Board's Blaming TWA Crash On Pilot

Washington (UPI) — Triggering an angry outburst from pilots, government investigators indicated Thursday pilot error may have caused the crash of a Trans World Airline jet on a mountain near here Sunday killing all 92 persons aboard.

The National Transportation Safety Board preliminary report said TWA's Flight 514 descended to 1,800 feet in an area where the minimum safe altitude, indicated on charts aboard the plane, was 3,400 feet.

Although the report did not say so specifically, it indicated that pilot error lay behind the crash.

The Boeing 727 jetliner flew straight into the side of Paris Mountain just below its top and a mile and a half from a secret government base designed to shelter government officials in event of a nuclear attack.

Angered by the board comments, the Air Line Pilots Association demanded in a letter to President Ford that board Chairman John Reed be removed "in the public interest."

The pilots' organization said it was "shocked and saddened" and that Reed had violated his agency's own rules by commenting on circumstances surrounding the crash before the completion of an accident report.

ALPA President J. J. O'Donnell also said the pilot of the jetliner was following established practice when he descended to 1,800 feet because an air traffic controller had just told him the TWA flight was cleared for its landing approach.

He said the crew of the big jet may have been relying on traffic controllers to bring them in when the plane crashed just 23 miles west of Washington's Dulles International Airport and about five miles north of Upperville, Va.

Rescue teams found the fog-shrouded crash site littered with burning debris, shattered trees and the broken bodies of all 85 passengers and 7 crewmembers aboard the plane.

"If I was cleared for an approach into Dulles, I would have descended to 1,800 feet (at the point the TWA pilot did)," O'Donnell said.

"I would have assumed that the radar controller knew where I was and that he knew those mountains out there."

O'Donnell said radar controllers were bringing the big jetliner in to Dulles Airport on an unusual route and that the pilot may not have known exactly where he was, relying on the controller to tell him when to start his approach.

Orders put out by the Federal Aviation Administration since the crash said permission to begin an approach does not mean a pilot can disregard his charts information about safe minimum altitudes. The orders conflict with practices that have been established in dealings between pilots and controllers over the years, O'Donnell said.

A traffic controller had cleared the jetliner to make its landing approach minutes before the crash, the safety board report said, and the plane immediately began descending to the airport approach altitude.

Remains Of Some Of 191 Victims Buried

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — The remains of some of the 191 persons who died in the crash of a Dutch charter plane flying Indonesian pilgrims to Mecca were buried at sunset Thursday on a tea plantation.

Rescuers dropped by parachute in rocky hill country where the Martinair DC8 jetliner crashed Wednesday night on this South Asian island near India had managed to gather a little pile of fragments of human bodies that were scattered over a wide area.

The plane, carrying 182 Indonesian Moslems and a crew of seven Dutch and two Indonesians, came down during a rainstorm 70 miles southeast of Colombo while approaching Bandaranaike International Airport for a scheduled stop on the way to Saudi Arabia.

Moslems believe that the best way to die is on a pilgrimage to Mecca. The remains were buried symbolically in accordance with Islamic custom.

A representative of the Indonesian Embassy in Colombo and a Moslem deputy minister of the Sri Lanka government were among those who stood with bowed heads at the graveside, overlooked by the sheer granite slopes of the Seven Virgins mountain range where the plane smashed into a mountain side.

Mayor's Salary A Fiasco?

We can hear it all now — That City Council must be out of its mind! Or, "I wish I was making $26,875 a year, much less $30,000."

The $26,875 is what the mayor of Lincoln now makes and the $30,000 is one of the proposals for the next Lincoln mayor, be it Sam Schwartzkopf or Joe Zilch. What the council is doing is fulfilling its charter responsibility to set, by Jan. 1, 1975, the mayor's salary for his coming term of office.

That term begins in May of 1975 and runs for four years. If $30,000 a year would prove to be the figure fixed by the council, it would stay there for all four years of the term.

Thus, what might seem at first as a hefty raise may turn out to be skimpy. Look at it this way — would you be willing to settle today for a net gain in salary of 11.62% over the next four years?

The next consideration on the subject is what the mayor's job is worth, the merits of the size of any raise aside. On this score, the $30,000 proposed does not seem at all out of line. The mayor is supposed to be running a multi-million-dollar operation employing hundreds of people.

The job, clearly, is worth the $30,000 a year. It is up to the voters of Lincoln to see to it that there is a man in the job worth his salt.

Very likely this salary situation has caught a lot of people by surprise. We doubt that very many voters figured, when they decided this issue in last November's election, that the mayor's salary would be going to $30,000. In fact, the big issue was to change the charter so the mayor would not be required to be the highest paid city official.

If anything, that might have led people to think in terms of a lower salary for the mayor. And we doubt if one out of 10 voters realized that they also voted to have the council fix the mayor's salary for a full four-year term.

We suspect that the voters will end up not liking a lot more about this situation before it is over and done with. If the mayor is worth $30,000 and if his salary had been holding down other officials, as was claimed, think of what some other city officials might end up making.

While the $30,000 figure is certainly not too high, the charter change which brings this matter to the fore at this time will produce a lot of other unwanted situations. The charter was good the way it was and should never have been changed.

Money Will Come Easy

The $22.1 million needed to finance a new penal physical plant will come easy from the Legislature — easy, that is, in comparison to a decision on the merits of new program recommendations and their funding. Knowing what a struggle it will be to obtain the physical plant funds, you can imagine what a gigantic hurdle the program presents.

The plant needs do not involve any great deal of philosophical discussion. There is little disagreement with the oft-repeated finding that the state's penitentiary and men's reformatory are in need of nearly total replacement. Plans for this have been submitted by state administrative authorities to the Legislature's Executive Board.

And once again, we would urge that senators give this work a green light. There simply is no valid reason left for the Legislature to do otherwise, with the issue's having been nearly talked to death for at least the past five years. The physical plant needs of our correctional institutions have been verified by one study after another by both outside consultants and resident authorities.

That element of correctional reform that will produce the fireworks is in the area of a changed program. Program recommendations fly in the face of many conflicting thoughts and institutions.

A growing role for the state is indicated in the correctional plan for what might loosely be called rehabilitation efforts. A number of changes in the law are anticipated to eliminate incarceration as a part of the punishment for many present unlawful activities.

One would be foolish to recommend, even, that the Legislature adopt a full program in the 1975 session. That would simply be an impractical expectation.

What can be asked, however, is that the Legislature make a beginning of a new program. This it can do by giving careful thought to the program recommended to it by this state's correctional administrators and trying to make a start on some kind of priority list.

We cannot settle the entire program thing at once but we can begin to look at where we want to go and how we might have a chance of getting there.

Political Supermarket

(Editor's Note: Mr. Schrepf, editorial writer for The Star, is attending the Democratic mid-term convention in Kansas City this week.)

KANSAS CITY — "If they called me and said it was off, I wouldn't cry a lot."

Bill Brennan, president of the Nebraska AFL-CIO, was commenting on the 1974 Conference on Democratic Organization and Policy which begins this day in Kansas City.

His is one of the two main streams of thought here: Why have it? The other: We must.

To Brennan, a labor chieftain, the compromises over delegate selection past 1976 have already been worked out and are not immediately important.

To someone like Frances Ohmstede, the Nebraska national committeewoman, there is a lot of serious talking to do in the next three days about the Mikulski rule (some can pronounce it; everybody has his own interpretation of it), about mandatory mid-term conferences and about the structure that okays the affirmative action programs that also defy easy definition.

Brennan, the delegate who doesn't seem to think this is really important, and Ohmstede, the delegate who seems to think the conference means something, represent the differences of mood and opinion here.

This renascent former cowtown, now billing itself as the Inland Capital of the United States, could be the scene of political gangland killings with the Democratic Party bleeding all over K.C.'s brand new image.

Kansas City striving to be one of a kind, could be, politically speaking, Chicago or Miami Beach all over again.

Then again, maybe — make that "probably" — it won't be.

It is beginning to look as if the Democrats may approve a charter containing generally acceptable compromises to gird themselves for the Battle of '76 and leave bloodletting over party policies and rules for 1978 and beyond.

Furthermore, maybe few outside the various party special interest groups care what the Democrats do in Kansas City.

It's hard for people to get very excited about an organization's internal fight over rules.

To some single-minded Democrats, both regular and reformist, it is terribly serious business.

To many people who simply call themselves Democrats for lack of a better alternative, and to the public at large, the goings-on in Kansas City may be yawn-provoking.

So how do you define "affirmative action" and who really cares?

Those who want to strengthen the Democratic Party by opening it, and who sincerely worry about the future of the party system, care, and that is why this mid-term conference is being held.

But to others, some of the participants and observers, the action is not the focus on rules for delegate selection in 1980 and beyond or the question of mandatory mid-term conferences.

The action is the presence of presidential hopefuls, here in droves, building for two years hence. There are the hustle and bustle of an all-of-a-sudden grown-up city, superb food, bawdy entertainment (across from the convention site one can visit "The Folly" the "It," the "Can-Can" or the "Pink Door," or see "19 Giant Adult Movies;" there are more public fountains in Kansas City than in any city in the world save Rome, but not many are near the auditorium), and as much free booze as anybody could possibly drink.

That will likely be the most important order of business.

A Tax Where Needed

NEW YORK — Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, the chairman of the Republican Governors Association, is the latest public official to bring pressure on President Ford at least to consider a higher gasoline tax. Despite his professed wish to see gasoline consumption reduced, as a first step toward coping with the energy crisis and the high price of oil, Ford has insisted that he is not even thinking about raising the gasoline tax.

In sharp contrast, as the few remaining Republican governors gathered at St. Louis to ponder their doleful circumstances, Dunn said it was necessary to adopt measures "where people can be compelled to do without a certain amount of fuel." The gas tax, he said, "ought to be looked at."

Ford was sent the same message, if he cared to receive it, in a report from a federally aided car-pool program in Los Angeles, the largest in the nation. A major volunteer effort, the program has attracted only 12,000 commuters since August, although there are an estimated four million drivers in the Los Angeles basin. Federal officials say this only reflects results in 80 other federally aided car-pool programs.

Given the number of drivers in the nation, a gas tax increase is clearly a matter laden with political controversy. Readers of these articles have reflected the controversy in numerous letters — many of them violently opposed to an increased gasoline tax on various grounds ranging from general anger at all taxes to more specialized views that the gasoline tax is unfair to particular groups — mid-income, low-income, commuters, whatever.

On balance, nevertheless, a stiff gasoline tax increase still seems the quickest and fairest route to achieving substantial fuel conservation in a relatively short time, perhaps to meeting the expressed goal of Secretary of State Kissinger (if not Ford) — cutting American oil imports from seven million to one million barrels a day. That impression has been strongly bolstered by a letter from C. W. Griffin Jr. of Denville, N.J., formerly a senior editor of "Engineering News Record" and the author of "Taming The Last Frontier," a book-length prescription for what ails the American city.

Griffin argues, first, that rising gasoline prices already have forced down consumption by 2 to 5% in the past year — an effective drop of 7 to 10%, because while stable prices prevailed over the previous decade, gasoline consumption had been rising five per cent annually.

Griffin estimates the correlation between gas price and mileage driven at 0.2% reduction in mileage for each 1% price increase. At that rate, a 20-cent increase in the per-gallon tax resulting in a 40% rise in the price of gas in most states would produce a further cut in demand of at least eight per cent. Griffin believes the savings could be 10 to 15 billion gallons of gasoline annually.

Citing U.S. census figures, Griffin also writes that commuting motorists average 35% more income than transit riders in New York and Philadelphia, and 150% more income in cities like Houston and Birmingham (he concedes exceptions to these averages). That, taken together with the clear responsibility of commuting motorists for so much energy waste and pollution, makes a tax on them fairer than most taxes.

The aim of Griffin, and others who feel as he does, is of course to discourage automobile travel, promote car pooling, and push as many commuters as possible into public transit, thus conserving oil. It is striking how many of those who have written to oppose a gasoline tax increase are against it precisely because it would do those things, or at least make driving a personal car considerably more expensive.

That suggests two conclusions that ought to be instructive to Ford and his economic and energy advisers. One is that the American people in general are not yet so convinced of either the energy shortage or the world economic threat posed by the oil-producing nations that they see the necessity for reducing their driving or, alternatively, paying more for the privilege. The other conclusion is that, therefore, it is a pipe-dream to rely on voluntarism to reduce oil consumption by anything like the amounts Kissinger has recommended.

Illegal Employment

WASHINGTON — As unemployment climbs, and further lay-offs threaten, we can expect growing attention to focus on Attorney General William Saxbe's assertion that a million new jobs could be created if the U.S. Immigration Service were given the money it needs to crack down on 7 to 13 million illegal immigrants now in the United States.

Over the last few years, illegal immigration has been surging, and now that unemployment is also rising towards levels not seen since the thirties, the two problems may be on a collision course.

Speaking in Brownsville, Texas, in late October, Saxbe said that illegal immigrants are flooding across the Mexican border. The Immigration Service, with 1,600 border patrolmen and 900 investigators, was able to deport 800,000 illegal aliens last year, but they lack the manpower to stem the tide.

"The Immigration Service has estimated to me," said Saxbe, "that it could open up one million new jobs during the next year simply by removing illegal aliens holding those jobs if it received additional resources amounting to about $50 million and 2,300 new employees."

Saxbe added that the illegal immigrants "receive social services ranging from schools to welfare" and the "large amounts of money they send out of the country drain funds from our troubled economy." Some estimates place the amount of money sent out of the country by illegals at $2 to 3 billion a year.

But none of these protests answers the core of Saxbe's argument: that the U.S. is jeopardized by "one of the great migrations of our time." This could become a top issue of the nineteen-seventies. Mushrooming illegal immigration into the U.S. from Mexico — where an impoverished, minimally employed population of 55 million is increasing by three or four per cent a year!—already vastly exceeds the legal flow of Turks, North Africans and Spaniards into northern Europe. Thus, considering the recent importance of the immigration issue in Swiss and German politics, the impact of the much larger illegal immigration problem on U.S. politics could be downright explosive.

Whether the number of jobs at stake is 600,000 or truly a million, employment is just part of the economic problem. The rest, as Saxbe indicated, lies in welfare, health and social expenditures, as well as in a multi-billion-dollar currency drain. Lastly, there is a very real cultural aspect. Heavy Mexican migration, legal and illegal, is increasing the Hispanic population of parts of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California to levels where radical Chicano leaders dream about an ethnic reconquista of lands that were Spanish-held until the U.S.-Mexican War of 1846.

Meanwhile, Mexican-American political strength in the Southwest also raises immigration-issue difficulties. In sharp contrast to Zurich or Bavaria, where Turkish and Mediterranean immigrants have no power, Arizona and New Mexico just elected Hispanic-American governors, and local political elements could be expected to portray a federal crackdown on illegal aliens as "anti-Mexican" in its immediate and long-term thrust.

Lincoln, Neb.

"Red Ink Could Lead To A Crash." That really sounds ominous, frightening. Every country in the world has red ink. Practically every corporation in the world has red ink and most of the families. We have had red ink for years and years without a crash. Why now!

Because the economy is in the doldrums. Why is the economy so bad? Because we had red ink so long. How much red ink is bad? How do we get rid of the red ink? We can cut out helping the less fortunate. They are almost like jelly. They can't bite. This is a safe course. An easy one. It won't stop the campaign contributions from coming in that will brainwash the people and win elections. It won't stop us from being cheered by the haughty Chamber of Commerce. We will still be welcome in the living room of the rich and the powerful.

If red ink is bad per se, why do all the corporations have red ink? Especially when they are perfect and government management is rotten. Why do all the families have red ink? Are most people stupid? If red ink is so bad, why do we allow banks, savings and loans and small loan companies to encourage it?

Maybe the answer is, too much red ink is bad. What is too much red ink? No. We have to have a balanced budget and that means no red ink! Maybe people shouldn't borrow to acquire cars, or homes or businesses, or furniture. Maybe companies shouldn't borrow to expand and update equipment. Maybe we shouldn't allow advertising to overstimulate people's appetite. There is an old saying: "If you want to get along, you better go along." The venal people in this world understand that.

Chuck Thone properly represents the Republican opinion that any Democratic programs are inflationary or even depression-oriented. We have had a Republican administration for two terms and they have been in the driver's seat in making the economic decisions.

It was Nixon's Federal Reserve that prior to the last election released more money than was recommended by the economic council. It was President Ford who supported 86% of the measures that increased spending above the amounts sought by the Republican administration.

Foreign-Made Products

Lincoln, Neb.

Christmas is near with its time of sharing of gifts with those we love. Thousands of people in the United States will not have this privilege due to the vast number of unemployed.

I have all of my shopping completed and the gifts are ready to wrap. This year I vowed to buy only items made in our country. I received a real education as I spent hours going from store to store, finding exactly what I wanted, only to find the article had been imported. The law states that all imported goods must be labeled as such at the sales counter.

After much frustration, I decided to make many of the gifts, and again I found most materials needed were imported.

Nearly 99% of all Christmas decorations one sees are imported! Imagine the labor force needed to make these decorations! Yet thousands of Americans will have but a meager Christmas because they cannot enjoy the right to work.

I sometimes wonder how a foreigner visiting our country can find even an American-made souvenir to take home. Nearly all items in shops at our various tourist areas are made in another country.

Before making your next purchase, why not check to see where it was manufactured? If we don't do this, we are supporting another country's labor force while our own people are seeking employment. Our tax dollars go to support the unemployed in the United States!

With Handicapped In Mind

Lincoln, Neb

As a representative of the League of Human Dignity, I wish to point out that there might be a misunderstanding about accessibility to the new Lincoln Airport. As it presently stands, the airport is not totally barrier-free to persons who have disabilities, but is rapidly becoming so.

We wish to thank publicly Mr. Davis of Davis, Fenton, Stange and Darling, architects, and the Airport Authority for their commitment to a barrier-free airport terminal. Not only will the disabled of Lincoln appreciate not being handicapped by such architectural barriers as steps, narrow doors, elevator buttons too high for wheel-chair-bound persons or not marked for blind, signs with letters not raised for the blind, restroom stalls that are too narrow, mirrors and sinks that are not usable for wheel-chair persons, but travelers from all around the United States will view Lincoln as a city concerned and active in this area.

The League of Human Dignity encourages planners, developers, architects and builders to use the resources of groups familiar with the problems in barrier-free architecture. This is a major step in removing the "handicaps" that waste the human resources of persons who locomote differently than most people, but all essentially hold the same dreams, hopes and potential for full participation and contribution to our society.

'Ban-The-Bra-Day' Ad

Lincoln, Neb.

The following advertisement appeared in the December 4 issue of The Daily Nebraskan:

"The Water Hole celebrates 'Ban-The-Bra Day.' A free pitcher given for every bra brought in, plus a free pitcher for every girl who proves to the satisfaction of the bartenders that she is bra-less. Come watch the action with 39¢ Bud Cans. Today — Wed., Dec. 4."

Such a sexist business venture has no place in our community. That the proprietors of the Water Hole would condone such degrading behavior is deplorable.

As citizens of Lincoln and members of the university community, we are extremely offended by this cheap, despicable, sexist stunt. Should the Water Hole management decide again to celebrate a "Ban-The-Bra Day" or be party to any further sexist exploitation for commercial gain, we shall formally address our concern to the State Liquor Commission.

Has The War Ended?

Lincoln, Neb.

In response to several articles on the Vietnam war's being over (amnesty and Viet vets), it is indeed sad that many Americans lost their lives or were maimed by the Vietnam war, but it is just as sad to think of the many Vietnamese who also lost their lives or were crippled by the war. Many of these Vietnamese casualties were civilians — women, children and old people.

The war which many Americans felt was wrong has ended — or so says the U.S. government. We are supplying the repressive Thieu government with 88% of its budget. This money is being used to escalate the fighting, to suppress the rights of the Vietnamese people and to keep in power a corrupt dictatorship.

Many men who refused to fight in an unjust, immoral war emigrated to Canada, deserted the Army or were imprisoned. How can these men who felt so strongly about the Vietnam war return when that war is still being fought and the Thieu dictatorship is still being upheld with the aid and blessing of the U.S. government?

That term begins in May of 1975 and runs for four years. If $30,000 a year would prove to be the figure fixed by the council, it would stay there for all four years of the term.

Thus, what might seem at first as a hefty raise may turn out to be skimpy. Look at it this way — would you be willing to settle today for a net gain in salary of 11.62% over the next four years?

The next consideration on the subject is what the mayor's job is worth, the merits of the size of any raise aside. On this score, the $30,000 proposed does not seem at all out of line. The mayor is supposed to be running a multi-million-dollar operation employing hundreds of people.

The job, clearly, is worth the $30,000 a year. It is up to the voters of Lincoln to see to it that there is a man in the job worth his salt.

Very likely this salary situation has caught a lot of people by surprise. We doubt that very many voters figured, when they decided this issue in last November's election, that the mayor's salary would be going to $30,000. In fact, the big issue was to change the charter so the mayor would not be required to be the highest paid city official.

If anything, that might have led people to think in terms of a lower salary for the mayor. And we doubt if one out of 10 voters realized that they also voted to have the council fix the mayor's salary for a full four-year term.

We suspect that the voters will end up not liking a lot more about this situation before it is over and done with. If the mayor is worth $30,000 and if his salary had been holding down other officials, as was claimed, think of what some other city officials might end up making.

While the $30,000 figure is certainly not too high, the charter change which brings this matter to the fore at this time will produce a lot of other unwanted situations. The charter was good the way it was and should never have been changed.

Money Will Come Easy

The $22.1 million needed to finance a new penal physical plant will come easy from the Legislature — easy, that is, in comparison to a decision on the merits of new program recommendations and their funding. Knowing what a struggle it will be to obtain the physical plant funds, you can imagine what a gigantic hurdle the program presents.

The plant needs do not involve any great deal of philosophical discussion. There is little disagreement with the oft-repeated finding that the state's penitentiary and men's reformatory are in need of nearly total replacement. Plans for this have been submitted by state administrative authorities to the Legislature's Executive Board.

And once again, we would urge that senators give this work a green light. There simply is no valid reason left for the Legislature to do otherwise, with the issue's having been nearly talked to death for at least the past five years. The physical plant needs of our correctional institutions have been verified by one study after another by both outside consultants and resident authorities.

That element of correctional reform that will produce the fireworks is in the area of a changed program. Program recommendations fly in the face of many conflicting thoughts and institutions.

A growing role for the state is indicated in the correctional plan for what might loosely be called rehabilitation efforts. A number of changes in the law are anticipated to eliminate incarceration as a part of the punishment for many present unlawful activities.

One would be foolish to recommend, even, that the Legislature adopt a full program in the 1975 session. That would simply be an impractical expectation.

What can be asked, however, is that the Legislature make a beginning of a new program. This it can do by giving careful thought to the program recommended to it by this state's correctional administrators and trying to make a start on some kind of priority list.

We cannot settle the entire program thing at once but we can begin to look at where we want to go and how we might have a chance of getting there.

TOM WICKER

A Tax Where Needed

NEW YORK — Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, the chairman of the Republican Governors Association, is the latest public official to bring pressure on President Ford at least to consider a higher gasoline tax. Despite his professed wish to see gasoline consumption reduced, as a first step toward coping with the energy crisis and the high price of oil, Ford has insisted that he is not even thinking about raising the gasoline tax.

In sharp contrast, as the few remaining Republican governors gathered at St. Louis to ponder their doleful circumstances, Dunn said it was necessary to adopt measures "where people can be compelled to do without a certain amount of fuel." The gas tax, he said, "ought to be looked at."

Ford was sent the same message, if he cared to receive it, in a report from a federally aided car-pool program in Los Angeles, the largest in the nation. A major volunteer effort, the program has attracted only 12,000 commuters since August, although there are an estimated four million drivers in the Los Angeles basin. Federal officials say this only reflects results in 80 other federally aided car-pool programs.

Given the number of drivers in the nation, a gas tax increase is clearly a matter laden with political controversy. Readers of these articles have reflected the controversy in numerous letters — many of them violently opposed to an increased gasoline tax on various grounds ranging from general anger at all taxes to more specialized views that the gasoline tax is unfair to particular groups — mid-income, low-income, commuters, whatever.

On balance, nevertheless, a stiff gasoline tax increase still seems the quickest and fairest route to achieving substantial fuel conservation in a relatively short time, perhaps to meeting the expressed goal of Secretary of State Kissinger (if not Ford) — cutting American oil imports from seven million to one million barrels a day. That impression has been strongly bolstered by a letter from C. W. Griffin Jr. of Denville, N.J., formerly a senior editor of "Engineering News Record" and the author of "Taming The Last Frontier," a book-length prescription for what ails the American city.

Griffin argues, first, that rising gasoline prices already have forced down consumption by 2 to 5% in the past year — an effective drop of 7 to 10%, because while stable prices prevailed over the previous decade, gasoline consumption had been rising five per cent annually.

Griffin estimates the correlation between gas price and mileage driven at 0.2% reduction in mileage for each 1% price increase. At that rate, a 20-cent increase in the per-gallon tax resulting in a 40% rise in the price of gas in most states would produce a further cut in demand of at least eight per cent. Griffin believes the savings could be 10 to 15 billion gallons of gasoline annually.

Citing U.S. census figures, Griffin also writes that commuting motorists average 35% more income than transit riders in New York and Philadelphia, and 150% more income in cities like Houston and Birmingham (he concedes exceptions to these averages). That, taken together with the clear responsibility of commuting motorists for so much energy waste and pollution, makes a tax on them fairer than most taxes.

The aim of Griffin, and others who feel as he does, is of course to discourage automobile travel, promote car pooling, and push as many commuters as possible into public transit, thus conserving oil. It is striking how many of those who have written to oppose a gasoline tax increase are against it precisely because it would do those things, or at least make driving a personal car considerably more expensive.

That suggests two conclusions that ought to be instructive to Ford and his economic and energy advisers. One is that the American people in general are not yet so convinced of either the energy shortage or the world economic threat posed by the oil-producing nations that they see the necessity for reducing their driving or, alternatively, paying more for the privilege. The other conclusion is that, therefore, it is a pipe-dream to rely on voluntarism to reduce oil consumption by anything like the amounts Kissinger has recommended.

Political Supermarket

(Editor's Note: Mr. Schrepf, editorial writer for The Star, is attending the Democratic mid-term convention in Kansas City this week.)

KANSAS CITY — "If they called me and said it was off, I wouldn't cry a lot."

Bill Brennan, president of the Nebraska AFL-CIO, was commenting on the 1974 Conference on Democratic Organization and Policy which begins this day in Kansas City.

His is one of the two main streams of thought here: Why have it? The other: We must.

To Brennan, a labor chieftain, the compromises over delegate selection past 1976 have already been worked out and are not immediately important.

To someone like Frances Ohmstede, the Nebraska national committeewoman, there is a lot of serious talking to do in the next three days about the Mikulski rule (some can pronounce it; everybody has his own interpretation of it), about mandatory mid-term conferences and about the structure that okays the affirmative action programs that also defy easy definition.

Brennan, the delegate who doesn't seem to think this is really important, and Ohmstede, the delegate who seems to think the conference means something, represent the differences of mood and opinion here.

This renascent former cowtown, now billing itself as the Inland Capital of the United States, could be the scene of political gangland killings with the Democratic Party bleeding all over K.C.'s brand new image.

Kansas City striving to be one of a kind, could be, politically speaking, Chicago or Miami Beach all over again.

Then again, maybe — make that "probably" — it won't be.

It is beginning to look as if the Democrats may approve a charter containing generally acceptable compromises to gird themselves for the Battle of '76 and leave bloodletting over party policies and rules for 1978 and beyond.

Furthermore, maybe few outside the various party special interest groups care what the Democrats do in Kansas City.

It's hard for people to get very excited about an organization's internal fight over rules.

To some single-minded Democrats, both regular and reformist, it is terribly serious business.

To many people who simply call themselves Democrats for lack of a better alternative, and to the public at large, the goings-on in Kansas City may be yawn-provoking.

So how do you define "affirmative action" and who really cares?

Those who want to strengthen the Democratic Party by opening it, and who sincerely worry about the future of the party system, care, and that is why this mid-term conference is being held.

But to others, some of the participants and observers, the action is not the focus on rules for delegate selection in 1980 and beyond or the question of mandatory mid-term conferences.

The action is the presence of presidential hopefuls, here in droves, building for two years hence. There are the hustle and bustle of an all-of-a-sudden grown-up city, superb food, bawdy entertainment (across from the convention site one can visit "The Folly" the "It," the "Can-Can" or the "Pink Door," or see "19 Giant Adult Movies;" there are more public fountains in Kansas City than in any city in the world save Rome, but not many are near the auditorium), and as much free booze as anybody could possibly drink.

That will likely be the most important order of business.

Illegal Employment

WASHINGTON — As unemployment climbs, and further lay-offs threaten, we can expect growing attention to focus on Attorney General William Saxbe's assertion that a million new jobs could be created if the U.S. Immigration Service were given the money it needs to crack down on 7 to 13 million illegal immigrants now in the United States.

Over the last few years, illegal immigration has been surging, and now that unemployment is also rising towards levels not seen since the thirties, the two problems may be on a collision course.

Speaking in Brownsville, Texas, in late October, Saxbe said that illegal immigrants are flooding across the Mexican border. The Immigration Service, with 1,600 border patrolmen and 900 investigators, was able to deport 800,000 illegal aliens last year, but they lack the manpower to stem the tide.

"The Immigration Service has estimated to me," said Saxbe, "that it could open up one million new jobs during the next year simply by removing illegal aliens holding those jobs if it received additional resources amounting to about $50 million and 2,200 new employees."

Saxbe added that the illegal immigrants "receive social services ranging from schools to welfare" and the "large amounts of money they send out of the country drain funds from our troubled economy." Some estimates place the amount of money sent out of the country by illegals at $2 to 3 billion a year.

But none of these protests answers the core of Saxbe's argument: that the U.S. is jeopardized by "one of the great migrations of our time." This could become a top issue of the nineteen-seventies. Mushrooming illegal immigration into the U.S. from Mexico — where an impoverished, minimally employed population of 55 million is increasing by three or four per cent a year!—already vastly exceeds the legal flow of Turks, North Africans and Spaniards into northern Europe. Thus, considering the recent importance of the immigration issue in Swiss and German politics, the impact of the much larger illegal immigration problem on U.S. politics could be downright explosive.

Whether the number of jobs at stake is 600,000 or truly a million, employment is just part of the economic problem. The rest, as Saxbe indicated, lies in welfare, health and social expenditures, as well as in a multi-billion-dollar currency drain. Lastly, there is a very real cultural aspect. Heavy Mexican migration, legal and illegal, is increasing the Hispanic population of parts of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California to levels where radical Chicano leaders dream about an ethnic reconquista of lands that were Spanish-held until the U.S.-Mexican War of 1846.

Meanwhile, Mexican-American political strength in the Southwest also raises immigration-issue difficulties. In sharp contrast to Zurich or Bavaria, where Turkish and Mediterranean immigrants have no power, Arizona and New Mexico just elected Hispanic-American governors, and local political elements could be expected to portray a federal crackdown on illegal aliens as "anti-Mexican" in its immediate and long-term thrust.

Lincoln, Neb.

"Red Ink Could Lead To A Crash." That really sounds ominous, frightening. Every country in the world has red ink. Practically every corporation in the world has red ink and most of the families. We have had red ink for years and years without a crash. Why now!

Because the economy is in the doldrums. Why is the economy so bad? Because we had red ink so long. How much red ink is bad? How do we get rid of the red ink? We can cut out helping the less fortunate. They are almost like jelly. They can't bite. This is a safe course. An easy one. It won't stop the campaign contributions from coming in that will brainwash the people and win elections. It won't stop us from being cheered by the haughty Chamber of Commerce. We will still be welcome in the living room of the rich and the powerful.

If red ink is bad per se, why do all the corporations have red ink? Especially when they are perfect and government management is rotten. Why do all the families have red ink? Are most people stupid? If red ink is so bad, why do we allow banks, savings and loans and small loan companies to encourage it?

Maybe the answer is, too much red ink is bad. What is too much red ink? No. We have to have a balanced budget and that means no red ink! Maybe people shouldn't borrow to acquire cars, or homes or businesses, or furniture. Maybe companies shouldn't borrow to expand and update equipment. Maybe we shouldn't allow advertising to overstimulate people's appetite. There is an old saying: "If you want to get along, you better go along." The venal people in this world understand that.

Chuck Thone properly represents the Republican opinion that any Democratic programs are inflationary or even depression-oriented. We have had a Republican administration for two terms and they have been in the driver's seat in making the economic decisions.

It was Nixon's Federal Reserve that prior to the last election released more money than was recommended by the economic council. It was President Ford who supported 86% of the measures that increased spending above the amounts sought by the Republican administration.

Foreign-Made Products

Lincoln, Neb.

Christmas is near with its time of sharing of gifts with those we love. Thousands of people in the United States will not have this privilege due to the vast number of unemployed.

I have all of my shopping completed and the gifts are ready to wrap. This year I vowed to buy only items made in our country. I received a real education as I spent hours going from store to store, finding exactly what I wanted, only to find the article had been imported. The law states that all imported goods must be labeled as such at the sales counter.

After much frustration, I decided to make many of the gifts, and again I found most materials needed were imported.

Nearly 99% of all Christmas decorations one sees are imported! Imagine the labor force needed to make these decorations! Yet thousands of Americans will have but a meager Christmas because they cannot enjoy the right to work.

I sometimes wonder how a foreigner visiting our country can find even an American-made souvenir to take home. Nearly all items in shops at our various tourist areas are made in another country.

Before making your next purchase, why not check to see where it was manufactured? If we don't do this, we are supporting another country's labor force while our own people are seeking employment. Our tax dollars go to support the unemployed in the United States!

With Handicapped In Mind

Lincoln, Neb.

As a representative of the League of Human Dignity, I wish to point out that there might be a misunderstanding about accessibility to the new Lincoln Airport. As it presently stands, the airport is not totally barrier-free to persons who have disabilities, but is rapidly becoming so.

We wish to thank publicly Mr. Davis of Davis, Fenton, Stange and Darling, architects, and the Airport Authority for their commitment to a barrier-free airport terminal. Not only will the disabled of Lincoln appreciate not being handicapped by such architectural barriers as steps, narrow doors, elevator buttons too high for wheel-chair-bound persons or not marked for blind, signs with letters not raised for the blind, restroom stalls that are too narrow, mirrors and sinks that are not usable for wheel-chair persons, but travelers from all around the United States will view Lincoln as a city concerned and active in this area.

The League of Human Dignity encourages planners, developers, architects and builders to use the resources of groups familiar with the problems in barrier-free architecture. This is a major step in removing the "handicaps" that waste the human resources of persons who locomote differently than most people, but all essentially hold the same dreams, hopes and potential for full participation and contribution to our society.

'Ban-The-Bra-Day' Ad

Lincoln, Neb.

The following advertisement appeared in the December 4 issue of The Daily Nebraskan:

"The Water Hole celebrates 'Ban-The-Bra Day.' A free pitcher given for every bra brought in, plus a free pitcher for every girl who proves to the satisfaction of the bartenders that she is bra-less. Come watch the action with 39¢ Bud Cans. Today — Wed., Dec. 4."

Such a sexist business venture has no place in our community. That the proprietors of the Water Hole would condone such degrading behavior is deplorable.

As citizens of Lincoln and members of the university community, we are extremely offended by this cheap, despicable, sexist stunt. Should the Water Hole management decide again to celebrate a "Ban-The-Bra Day" or be party to any further sexist exploitation for commercial gain, we shall formally address our concern to the State Liquor Commission.

Has The War Ended?

Lincoln, Neb.

In response to several articles on the Vietnam war's being over (amnesty and Viet vets), it is indeed sad that many Americans lost their lives or were maimed by the Vietnam war, but it is just as sad to think of the many Vietnamese who also lost their lives or were crippled by the war. Many of these Vietnamese casualties were civilians — women, children and old people.

The war which many Americans felt was wrong has ended — or so says the U.S. government. We are supplying the repressive Thieu government with 88% of its budget. This money is being used to escalate the fighting, to suppress the rights of the Vietnamese people and to keep in power a corrupt dictatorship.

Many men who refused to fight in an injust, immoral war emigrated to Canada, deserted the Army or were imprisoned. How can these men who felt so strongly about the Vietnam war return when that war is still being fought and the Thieu dictatorship is still being upheld with the aid and blessing of the U.S. government?

Roads Dept. Land Claim Is Rejected

By The Associated Press

The Nebraska Supreme Court ruled Thursday that the state Roads Department could not claim a strip of land in Dakota County simple by arguing that a road once existed on the property in 1895.

The court's decision involved a piece of land owned by Raymond A Kilberg which lies to the north of U S. 20

For more than 40 years, people who owned the land prior to Kilberg had used the strip of land in question Kilberg tore down an existing fence and moved it back 15 feet to plant trees and shrubbery

In district court, the state introduced as evidence "an old plat book dated approximately 1895, which showed the Island Road" may once have existed on the land

However, no official, current documents showed the road had been there

Besides, the court said, in order for a claim of right-of-way to be valid, the land involved must be used without interruption as a road, and without "substantial change" for a significant period of time

Judge Hale McCown noted the state's case was based on unsupported assumptions

"Like ghosts, assumptions disappear in the light of factual reality," McCown said

The court's ruling was unanimous

In another case, the high court upheld a Richardson County District Court decision which ordered the City of Humboldt to pay a contractor a penalty of $6,874 05 for additional work required on a housing project

The contractor, Beall-Siefford Construction Co , contended it was entitled to substantially greater damages because delays in completing the housing project were allegedly caused by the city Additional expenses were incurred, the contractor argued, when the city required the work to be unduly accelerated

In other decisions the high court:

—Upheld a Douglas County District Court action which said Kathleen H Chester was entitled to workmen s compensation because of injuries she sustained in a fall while working at Douglas County Hospital in 1972 The county had appealed the district and Workmen s Compensation Court decisions contending no one actually saw the woman fall The high court also awarded her $500 for attorney fees

—Affirmed the sentence of Willie Nevels convicted in Douglas County District Court of rape and kidnap

—Upheld the one year sentence meted to Mark S Holzapfel by the Lancaster District Court for possession of a controlled substance

Solar Energy Use Regarded As Feasible

MIAMI (AP) — The use of solar energy to heat and cool homes already is economically feasible, and using the sun in place of energy obtained from oil and coal is not far off. experts say

"I'll have to concede, however, that the rise in the cost of conventional energy has made (solar energy) feasible faster than our program has," says Raymond H Fields, director of the National Science Foundation's Office of Public Technology Projects

The foundation has granted $50 million to research solar energy use.

Fields told a University of Miami conference that some home solar heating systems already can justify their cost with fuel savings within three years The systems aren't being installed, he said, because mortgage lenders prefer to keep the original cost of a home as low as possible.

"Lenders aren't much concerned with the cost of operating a home once it's sold," Fields said

Featured attraction at the conference was Dr Felix Trombe, a pioneer of solar energy research Trombe is director of the solar furnace projects at Mont Louis and Odeillo in the French Pyrenees.

Speaking through an interpretor, Trombe told several dozen scientists, politicians and teachers that harnessing the sun to make electricity and industrial heat is not far off He offered no estimate in terms of years

But Trombe said domestic and low-temperature applications of solar energy are already practical and only need concentrated effort to make them competitive with conventional energy

Trombe spoke during a Miami visit by the Honeywell Inc traveling solar energy laboratory, which is sponsored by the company and the National Science Foundation

Number Of 20-Cent Dailies Increases

NEW YORK (AP) — The 10-cent newspaper is fast becoming a thing of the past as publishers increase daily prices to cover rising costs, especially for newsprint.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association, which compiles an annual report on newspaper prices, says most U S daily newspapers now cost 15 cents per copy and the number of 20-cent daily newspapers has increased dramatically in a year.

The ANPA annually surveys 1,745 daily newspaper prices. Last year 1,275 of them cost 10 cents, 425 cost 15 cents and four newspapers cost 20 cents per copy with the remainder charging other amounts.

"This year, the number of 10-cent dailies has just about halved, 15-cent papers more than doubled and at least 50 newspapers now cost 20 cents for a daily edition," a spokesman for the trade group says

Prices of Sunday editions have also shifted higher to the 35-cent copy and up range. Last year the majority of Sunday papers cost 15 cents to 25 cents, according to the ANPA.

Effective last Sunday, the Boston Globe raised its Sunday price to 75 cents per copy from 50 cents per copy, believed by the ANPA to be the highest Sunday edition price

Other increases which went into effect Dec. 1 included the Sunday edition of the Denver Post to 50 cents per copy from 35 cents and the Sunday edition of the Post Tribune in Gary, Ind., to 35 cents per copy from 30 cents.

Publishers blame price increases on higher costs of labor and newsprint. Newsprint prices this year have risen to about $235 per ton from $185 per ton last December. Publishers have already been informed of another $25 per ton increase which major paper manufacturers will put into effect Jan. 1

Crown Zellerbach has announced an increase to $285 per ton for West Coast papers.

Consumer Borrowing Reflects Slump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer borrowing increased by only $370 million in October, the smallest monthly increase in nearly four years, the Federal Reserve Board reported Thursday.

The Federal Reserve Board said total outstanding consumer credit in October was $188 billion. The increase of $370 million on a seasonally adjusted basis during the month compared with a gain of $679 million in September.

The October gain was the slowest since November of 1970 when consumer credit declined $63 million in the aftermath of a strike in the auto industry.

Coal Contract Signed; Miners To Dig Again Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Mine Workers signed a new contract Thursday that union officials said would send coal miners back to the pits by Monday, ending a four-week strike that threatened to disrupt further the faltering economy.

"With the official signing of this contract, I am directing the membership of the United Mine Workers of America back to work," said UMW President Arnold Miller.

The contract, approved by 56 per cent of those voting, becomes effective at 12:01 a.m. Friday, but Miller said most miners probably would not return to work until Monday at the earliest

With 79,495 of the UMW's 120,000 members voting, Miller said the contract was ratified 44,754 in favor and 34,741 against. Five of the union's 18 regional districts rejected the pact.

The union chief downplayed suggestions that the close vote, which was completed Wednesday night, might create problems in the coal fields, saying "I think the minority will accept the majority rule."

However, a possibility remained that opening some mines could be delayed unless agreement is reached this weekend on a separate contract for 4,000 UMW construction workers employed by the Association of Bituminous Contractors.

These are the companies which build mine shafts and processing plants. Sources say they are under heavy industry pressure to wrap up their contract quickly. Miners are likely to honor any picket lines that might be thrown up by the construction workers.

This was pointed out by Kenneth Dawes, president of UMW District 12 in Illinois, who warned that miners are prepared to continue their strike in sympathy with the construction workers

The new three-year agreement signed by Miller with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association provides for a 64 per cent boost in economic benefits, including a 10 per cent wage hike the first year, 4 per cent the second and 3 per cent the third. Wage scales now are $42 to $50 a day.

The industry's chief negotiator, Guy Farmer, called the pact expensive and said "it will have an impact on coal prices" which would eventually be passed on to consumers through items such as higher electric rates. "The exact impact is hard to measure," Farmer said. "I just don't know if anyone has sat down and figured it out. I know we haven't."

Delay In Owning Of Gold Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns recommended on Thursday that Congress extend the ban on private ownership of gold by U.S. citizens for at least six more months It now is scheduled to end Jan 1.

"In the climate of uncertainty that now prevails, with fears of inflation continuing to spread, the opportunity to own gold might seem attractive to large numbers of people in the United States," Burns told the House Banking subcommittee on international finance.

If that proves true, he said, "when the gold market is reopened, people might rush in with funds transferred from savings accounts, common stocks, or other financial assets.

"The prudent course of action would be to delay the reopening of the gold market until a more propitious time," Burns said.

Burns' testimony conflicted with that two days ago of Treasury Secretary William Simon.

Simon had said the ban on owning gold should be lifted as scheduled Jan. 1, and said he envisioned no problems or hoarding or drain from regular investment markets. He then astonished the committee by announcing a federal auction of two million ounces of government gold on Jan. 6.

Number Of 20-Cent Dailies Increases

Growing Unemployment Costs States

By The Associated Press

Growing lines at unemployment offices are costing states millions of extra dollars in benefits for the jobless and some officials say there could be serious trouble if the recession lasts much longer.

An Associated Press survey showed most states have enough money in unemployment compensation funds to weather anything but a lengthy, full-scale depression. But there was concern in some areas where the money is going out faster than it is coming in.

"At the current rate of spending, if unemployment worsens, we expect we could be in trouble by the spring," said Mary Hackett, director of Rhode Island's Department of Employment Security.

She said the unemployment compensation fund stood at $22.4 million as of Sept. 30 and added, "We expect to have $14.7 million in the fund at the end of the year."

Unemployment in Rhode Island during October, the most recent month for which figures are available, was 6.7 per cent, up 1 per cent from October 1973.

The Labor Department reported Thursday that 2,436,000 persons received unemployment benefits for the week ended Nov. 16, an increase of almost 10 per cent over the previous week and a jump of 70 per cent over the same week last year. The department said the number of claims increased in every state except Nevada and Kentucky.

The nationwide unemployment rate during October was 6 per cent, meaning 5.5 million Americans were without jobs. The November figure will be released Friday and some economists have predicted unemployment may rise to 8 per cent in coming months.

Many of those classified as unemployed are not eligible for benefits — they have not worked before, they obtain new positions quickly or they left their jobs voluntarily.

Unemployment benefits generally are financed through a tax on employers which fluctuates in some areas according to economic conditions.

An individual who qualifies for unemployment can draw benefits for up to 26 weeks from the state fund with additional money available for 13 weeks if the jobless rate goes above a certain per cent or the states meet certain other conditions The extra funds come half from the federal government and half from the states

Payments, which are figured on the basis of previous earnings, generally average about $50 a week, with a maximum of $95. Many of the thousands of laid off auto workers, however, are getting up to 95 per cent of their normal salary under a special contract provision that provides private benefits in addition to public funds.

One of the most serious problems appeared to be in Connecticut where 57,562 persons collected unemployment compensation in the two weeks ended Nov. 16, an increase of 60 per cent over the 36,142 persons receiving benefits in the same period last year.

The average unemployment payment is $70 a week with a maximum of $156 weekly — the highest in the country — and the state estimates it paid out $14 million for November, up 65 per cent from last November's $8.5 million expenditure.

Officials said the State Unemployment Compensation Fund, which had $301 million in 1969, now contains between $28 and $30 million.

The state's unemployment division already has borrowed $62 million in interest-free government loans over the past two years and on Thursday officials requested $25 million more. Authorities also are instituting a new accounting process Jan. 1 to equalize contributions from the 66,000 employers who finance the fund.

Authorities in Hawaii said they would reassess the state's unemployment compensation program in January to determine how to cope with growing joblessness. The unemployment rate in the state was the same — 7.1 per cent — this October and last, but the funds available for benefits are dropping. The state's unemployment fund currently totals $18.8 million, compared to $26.7 million last year.

The State of Montana currently has $20.9 million in its unemployment fund, compared to $23.7 million last November. At the same time, unemployment is running about 6.8 per cent — up three-tenths of a per cent from last year.

Ceiling On Car Production Suggested

Washington (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C B. Morton said Thursday a ceiling on automobile production would save fuel and benefit the environment.

In an appearance at the joint economic subcommittee on urban affairs, Morton said new car production continues to increase every year despite programs to conserve fuel and reduce pollution.

"I wonder if anyone ever thought that the number of cars ought to remain stable for a few years," he suggested.

Morton continued to stress voluntary action to conserve energy in the United States, but said if the current programs fail to reduce consumption such mandatory programs as gasoline rationing, a gasoline tax, and a ceiling on petroleum imports might be used.

The Federal Energy Administration's chief scientist, Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg, meanwhile told a news conference that Americans must choose between nuclear fission with its potential hazards, or very expensive solar generators to produce most of the country's energy in the next century. He said coal — and the synthetic oil and gas from it — offers great promise for the next few decades, but could not meet the anticipated energy demands after the turn of the century.

Geothermal energy does not appear to be a practical source, and nuclear fusion has not progressed enough to be reliable, he said, leaving solar radiation and nuclear fission as the most likely prospects.

"So," he said, "the American people are confronted with a choice — fission which is relatively cheap and solar which is very expensive. Fission has certain potential hazards connected with it. Solar doesn't have those hazards."

Bill Proposes Gas Rationing Power For Ford

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., warning that energy problems could push the nation to the brink of a depression, Thursday introduced legislation authorizing stand-by presidential power for gasoline rationing.

Jackson said he had worked out a compromise with the White House on the matter and the Senate would take up the legislation soon, perhaps as early as next week.

Former President Richard M. Nixon earlier this year vetoed energy emergency legislation, but Jackson said the Ford administration "now recognizes (the) urgent necessity" for such action.

Growing Unemployment Costs States

By The Associated Press

Growing lines at unemployment offices are costing states millions of extra dollars in benefits for the jobless and some officials say there could be serious trouble if the recession lasts much longer.

An Associated Press survey showed most states have enough money in unemployment compensation funds to weather anything but a lengthy, full-scale depression. But there was concern in some areas where the money is going out faster than it is coming in.

"At the current rate of spending, if unemployment worsens, we expect we could be in trouble by the spring," said Mary Hackett, director of Rhode Island's Department of Employment Security.

She said the unemployment compensation fund stood at $22.4 million as of Sept. 30 and added, "We expect to have $14.7 million in the fund at the end of the year."

Unemployment in Rhode Island during October, the most recent month for which figures are available, was 6.7 per cent, up 1 per cent from October 1973.

The Labor Department reported Thursday that 2,436,000 persons received unemployment benefits for the week ended Nov. 16, an increase of almost 10 per cent over the previous week and a jump of 70 per cent over the same week last year. The department said the number of claims increased in every state except Nevada and Kentucky.

The nationwide unemployment rate during October was 6 per cent, meaning 5.5 million Americans were without jobs. The November figure will be released Friday and some economists have predicted unemployment may rise to 8 per cent in coming months.

Many of those classified as unemployed are not eligible for benefits — they have not worked before, they obtain new positions quickly or they left their jobs voluntarily.

Unemployment benefits generally are financed through a tax on employers which fluctuates in some areas according to economic conditions.

An individual who qualifies for unemployment can draw benefits for up to 26 weeks from the state fund with additional money available for 13 weeks if the jobless rate goes above a certain per cent or the states meet certain other conditions. The extra funds come half from the federal government and half from the states.

Payments, which are figured on the basis of previous earnings, generally average about $50 a week, with a maximum of $95. Many of the thousands of laid off auto workers, however, are getting up to 95 per cent of their normal salary under a special contract provision that provides private benefits in addition to public funds.

One of the most serious problems appeared to be in Connecticut where 57,562 persons collected unemployment compensation in the two weeks ended Nov. 16, an increase of 60 per cent over the 36,142 persons receiving benefits in the same period last year.

The average unemployment payment is $70 a week with a maximum of $156 weekly — the highest in the country — and the state estimates it paid out $14 million for November, up 65 per cent from last November's $8.5 million expenditure.

Officials said the State Unemployment Compensation Fund, which had $301 million in 1969, now contains between $28 and $30 million.

The state's unemployment division already has borrowed $62 million in interest-free government loans over the past two years and on Thursday officials requested $25 million more. Authorities also are instituting a new accounting process Jan. 1 to equalize contributions from the 66,000 employers who finance the fund.

Authorities in Hawaii said they would reassess the state's unemployment compensation program in January to determine how to cope with growing joblessness. The unemployment rate in the state was the same — 7.1 per cent — this October and last, but the funds available for benefits are dropping. The state's unemployment fund currently totals $18.8 million, compared to $26.7 million last year.

The State of Montana currently has $20.9 million in its unemployment fund, compared to $23.7 million last November. At the same time, unemployment is running about 6.8 per cent — up three-tenths of a per cent from last year.

Ceiling On Car Production Suggested

Washington (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said Thursday a ceiling on automobile production would save fuel and benefit the environment.

In an appearance at the joint economic subcommittee on urban affairs, Morton said new car production continues to increase every year despite programs to conserve fuel and reduce pollution.

"I wonder if anyone ever thought that the number of cars ought to remain stable for a few years," he suggested.

Morton continued to stress voluntary action to conserve energy in the United States, but said if the current programs fail to reduce consumption such mandatory programs as gasoline rationing, a gasoline tax, and a ceiling on petroleum imports might be used.

The Federal Energy Administration's chief scientist, Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg, meanwhile told a news conference that Americans must choose between nuclear fission with its potential hazards, or very expensive solar generators to produce most of the country's energy in the next century. He said coal — and the synthetic oil and gas from it — offers great promise for the next few decades, but could not meet the anticipated energy demands after the turn of the century.

Geothermal energy does not appear to be a practical source, and nuclear fusion has not progressed enough to be reliable, he said, leaving solar radiation and nuclear fission as the most likely prospects.

"So," he said, "the American people are confronted with a choice — fission which is relatively cheap and solar which is very expensive. Fission has certain potential hazards connected with it. Solar doesn't have those hazards."

Bill Proposes Gas Rationing Power For Ford

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., warning that energy problems could push the nation to the brink of a depression, Thursday introduced legislation authorizing stand-by presidential power for gasoline rationing.

Jackson said he had worked out a compromise with the White House on the matter and the Senate would take up the legislation soon, perhaps as early as next week.

Former President Richard M. Nixon earlier this year vetoed energy emergency legislation, but Jackson said the Ford administration "now recognizes (the) urgent necessity" for such action.

Omahan Nabbed By Treasury Agents

Omaha (AP) — U.S. Treasury Department agents arrested a 25-year old Omaha man Wednesday, the first arrest in this area under a program designed to identify and arrest armed criminals.

Dwight Thomas, agent in charge of the department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF), said Lee A. Carter was arrested after ATF received a tip the man was armed and frequented the area near 42nd and Dodge streets.

Thomas said agents got a search warrant for a car in which the man and two other men were riding, but no other weapons were found.

Thomas said the suspect ran from three agents in business suits, but was caught by two undercover agents who were wearing old clothes and appeared to be working on a car engine in a parking lot.

The arrest was coordinated with Omaha police, who provided two cruisers for assistance, Thomas said.

Agents found a loaded .22-caliber revolver in Carter's possession, Thomas said. The suspect has a record of felony convictions, including some involving firearms.

U.S. Magistrate Richard Peck set a $2,500 bond for Carter's release. Carter was charged with violating a federal law which prohibits convicted felons from having firearms.

The new program, called the Significant Criminal Enforcement Program — Armed and Dangerous, is designed to fight street crime by using federal firearms laws. Thomas said several other individuals in Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri are under investigation for possible violations.

Change In Order

Omaha (AP) — The Witherspoon name may be just fine in the business world, but it apparently doesn't look too good up in lights.

In fact, according to David James Witherspoon, 23, his name is "cumbersome and unmarketable" in the acting profession. Furthermore, it is a "great hindrance" to him and places an "artificial restriction upon him and his potential for advancement . . ."

So said young Witherspoon, son of the board chairman of Pamida, Inc., in a petition filed Wednesday in Douglas County District Court.

He has been known for several years in the theatrical world as David James, and he asked the court in his petition to legalize the changing of his name to David Witherspoon James.

Longtime Scottsbluff Osteopath Dies; Late Rites Set Saturday

Scottsbluff — Funeral services for Dr. Earl A. Purtzer, 67, longtime osteopath, will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, at the Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints Church in Scottsbluff. He died Tuesday in Rochester, Minn.

A member of the State Health Board, Dr. Purtzer was a past president of the Nebraska osteopathic association.

A native of Lindsay, Dr. Purtzer began his practice in Seward after graduating from Still College of Osteopathic Medicine in Des Moines. He had practiced in Scottsbluff for more than 20 years.

Surviving are his wife, Joyce; daughters, Mrs. Kay Trout of Arcadia, Calif., Jane of New York City, Mrs. Judy Frye of Denver and Sheri, at home; sons, Loran of Mt. Vernon, Wash., John W. of Bend, Ore., and Barry E. of Omaha; brothers, Walter and Stanley, both of Lincoln, Edward of San Diego and Oscar of New Ulm, Minn.; sisters, Dr. Evelyn Riddell-Telfer of Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. LaVern Bucknell of San Diego, Calif., Mrs. Anna Neerman of Kansas City, Mo., and Viola Mae of Long Beach, Calif.; and seven grandchildren.

Wilderness Lands Asked In Nebraska

Washington (AP) — Nebraska will have a federally-protected 4,635-acre wilderness area east of Valentine if a recommendation by President Ford wins congressional approval.

The President recommended Wednesday the addition of 37 areas to the national wilderness system, including the 4,635 acres at Fort Niobrara Wildlife Refuge near Valentine.

If the designation is approved, the acreage would be preserved in its wild condition, development would be prohibited and it would be open to some public uses, such as hiking, nature study and other noncumsumptive pursuits.

Nebraska has no wilderness areas, but former President Nixon recommended to Congress last year the addition of 16,317 acres at the Valentine Wildlife Refuge 25 miles south of Valentine and 14,502 acres on the Crescent Lake Refuge north of Oshkosh. No congressional action has been taken on the Nixon recommendation.

Ford's proposal would add nine million acres to the wilderness system, which now includes 12.9 million acres.

Eisenhower Son Slated To Write Weekly Column

The paper announced that the column cover national and world events.

"I've written about the past," Eisenhower said. "Now I want to comment on the present."

Eisenhower, who lives in this community northeast of Philadelphia, is author of two books — "The Bitter Woods," a best seller about the Battle of the Bulge, and the recently released "Strictly Personal."

Is Your Job Secure?

By EDWIN DARBY
(c) 1974, Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — All over, people are beginning to wary about their jobs. And they should.

Both because job security is in no way ironclad and because a little thought devoted to the matter now could pay dividends later.

It is bad enough to be axed from your job these days with the pace of recession quickening. It is still worst to be caught by complete surprise without a thought of where to turn next when the ax falls.

The source of the wariness and the national concern with recession is not too difficult to pinpoint. It may be possible to shrug off the impersonal, boxcar figures on mounting unemployment, but then there's the question which seems to be haunting more and more people who wonder: 'Am I next?'

John R. Sibbald looks at the situation from the view point of the executive. Sibbald is, as of now, the vice president in charge of executive searches in the Chicago office of Booz Allen & Hamilton, the international management consulting firm. When a Booz Allen client does want to hire a new executive, Sibbald and his assistants scour the country looking for qualified candidates.

Booz Allen may get more executive job resumes than any other, Sibbald says. Even in normal times the large number of executives who write one or another of the Booz Allen offices around the country to say, I'm available, or, I might be available, is a significant commentary on executive job mobility, voluntary or otherwise.

At any time, Sibbald says, Booz Allen might get as many as 125 unsolicited letters a week. "Now, practically in the past month, the number has dramatically increased to almost 400 a week," he adds.

Sibbald guessed that perhaps half of the weekly 400 (some are repeaters) now hold jobs but are looking over their shoulders to see if someone is after them.

These people are testing the market to see what their skills might bring, Sibbald says, and he thinks we'd all be well advised to do similar things.

"In times like these, too many people keep their heads in the sand, feeling it just can't happen to me," Sibbald says, "and this is particularly true of people who have been with the same organization for years and years.

One Sibbald suggestion: dig out an old resume and update it. Or, as with thousands of people who suddenly find themselves on the job market, sit down and write a resume, the first one since college days. Either would put you a step ahead of the game if need ever arises. In job-seeking, a well-prepared resume is the foremost essential; it is the door opener, Sibbald notes.

There are other benefits in the process. In going after a new job you have to sell yourself. The composition of a resume demands self-analysis and a listing of skills and assets so that the preparation can be an important aid in getting ready for the selling effort.

In fact, the advance preparation of a resume could be the best medicine of all. A long look at yourself, at what and how you've been doing over the years could spark a new interest and effort in your present job, and be the means making it unnecessary for you to ever use the resume.

Which is a point Sibbald makes. "This is certainly a time to put more into your job, to do more than is asked, to show a new initiative," he says. "And there are a lot of little things smart people do. How do you dress and how you carry yourself can weigh in job decisions. There might be no time like today to invest in a couple of new suits (or dresses). If nothing else, they might be a help when it comes to present yourself for a new job interview."

When it comes to writing and mailing out a resume, Sibbald has one specific piece of advice, particularly for veteran employees who find themselves on the street. Forget the traditional, chronological resume which normally starts with name and age. Instead write a letter that simply sells your best assets.

Other advice from Sibbald: If the time comes, don't crawl into a hole and hide. Be active. Swallow pride, tell everyone you know as well as everyone you can reach. And go back and hound people who have promised help. A first stop should be any trade associations you may belong to. They often maintain job information services. So do some churches and synagogues.

Read the papers and trade journals for ideas. Don't overlook small companies. They need people, too, and often you can get directly to the president.

Assuming you've been let go solely as part of a recession-born economy move, put the heat on your old company for help — and for severance benefits. Help would include advice from the personnel department and from agencies (like Booz Allen) normally retained by the company. Your old colleagues should put out lines for you, you should stand up and demand the longest possible time on the payroll to look, and you should see if an office and telephone can't be made available for you. Don't meekly accept what's handed you in the way of severance and settlement of fringe benefits. "Most companies do not have a hard and fast written policy so don't accept the bad news and slink out the door."

State Governments Fight Pinch In Number Of Ways

By The Associated Press

Like the family skipping a night out at the movies or wearing last year's clothes, state governments are combatting the economic pinch by making do and cutting back on frills.

The first frill to go in a number of states will be the lavish inaugural balls with which governors have traditionally waltzed into office. Other states are watching light bills, limiting travel and, in one case, dropping governor's limousines for public trolleys.

Some governors who will take office early next month are taking an economy step few families could afford: turning down pay raises.

"I want to trim the budget werever I can and it will make it easier for others to take if I set the example," Gov.-elect David Boren of Oklahoma said in announcing he'd turn down a $7,500 raise that would have put the governor's annual salary at $35,000.

Among other newly elected governors taking pay cuts is Ella Grasso, who is turning down a $7,500 raise to the $35,000 yearly salary in Connecticut. In New York, Gov.-elect Hugh Carey has asked that the $80,000 governor's salary be shaved 10 per cent and that appointees "who can afford it" take similar cuts.

Governors or governors-elect who'll be dancing to the tune of the frugal times instead of holding inaugural balls include Minnesota's Wendell Anderson, California's Jerry Brown, Thomas P. Salmon of Vermont, Reubin Askew of Florida, Marvin Mandel of Maryland, and James B. Longley of Maine, the nation's only independent governor.

South Dakota, Idaho, Ohio and New York will have inaugural balls but they won't be paid for by the state.

Minnesota's Anderson will be starting a second term and the gala for his first term cost $45,000. In Florida, $60,000 had been set aside for a dance and parade to open Askew's second term. Askew, however, is accepting a $10,000 raise to $50,000 a year.

Salmon's 1973 inaugural cost Vermont only about $500 in printing and mailing costs and the rest was paid by Shriners.

While not setting as stringent a tone, Georgia, Kansas, Alabama, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts are curtailing inaugural ceremonies.

In Kansas, Gov.-elect Robert Bennett is skipping a state dinner and the inaugural parade but will still have a ball. In Alabama, Gov. George Wallace will begin his third term without the parade that usually includes high school bands from all the state's counties.

Georgia will have only one ball instead of the four or five that usually are held simultaneously.

Tom Perdue, an aide to Gov.-elect George Busbee, said there will be another change designed to help economy-minded citizens.

"Black tie will be optional," he said. "It's hard to believe that in this kind of economy, somebody's going to rent a tux for one night. Sunday clothes will be the dress."

Massachusetts Gov.-elect Michael S. Dukakis is cutting down the inaugural ball's size and charging $12.50 a head with hopes this will raise money for "people's inaugural" receptions around the state.

Dukakis is also planning an unusual personal economy. He's doing away with govenor's limousines and state police guards. He plans to travel from his home in suburban Brookline to the statehouse in Boston by trolley and use his own car with volunteer drivers.

A number of other governors or governors-elect have called for budget trimming through not filling jobs that become vacant, asking salary cuts for state employes and putting off buying equipment or repairing state buildings.

Three-Dimensional Images To Replace Flat Pictures

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Moviegoers remember 3-D films with something less than enthusiasm. But a new form of 3-D is ready in prototype and it doesn't even require special glasses. William Hampton is Detroit bureau chief of McGraw-Hill World News.)

By WILLIAM HAMPTON

Detroit — It won't be long before many photographs go the way of the buggy whip.

Instead of flat pictures, you'll look at life-sized, three-dimensional images you can rotate or measure, just as if the object itself were there.

It means being able to look at a "real" image replica of rare objects you'd have to travel the world to see now.

Fanciful thinking? Hardly. The equipment to make and look at these 3-D images exists today.

The device is called a hologram viewer. It looks something like an old television set, but that is where the similarity ends.

Switch on the viewer and its screen becomes a window. Inside, a startlingly real image appears. Twist a knob and the "object" inside can be turned completely around. Move your head to look over and under the image as it rotates.

Still Experimental

The device, still experimental, was developed by the University of Michigan and the Environmental Research Institute of Michigan. It represents one of the first general applications of holography, or lenseless three-dimensional photography.

Holography itself is somewhat more than a decade old. But until now, its application has been mostly in science and industry. And earlier holograms didn't offer the 360-degree view possible with the new equipment.

It will be several years before most people see a hologram viewer. The Michigan researchers have built only one prototype so far, but they say more refined versions could become as important an educational tool as microfilm and tape recorders are today.

Difference Explained

The difference between a hologram and a photo is the difference between a three-dimensional object and a picture of it. A hologram's image is a virtual duplicate, exactly like an object except for substance. Unlike a photo, you can inspect a holographic image with a powerful magnifying glass and lose no resolution.

Where will hologram viewers show up? One of the first places will be museums.

Tomorrow's museums could replace the display cases of today with a bank of viewers. Changing displays would be as simple as dropping in a new hologram. And, almost every museum could have its own image replica of even the rarest objects.

In the classrooms, students could even use viewers to inspect fossils, sculptures and even human organs. The 3-D image offers a better idea of proportion than a stack of photos.

Laser Is Key

The key to holography is the laser. Making holograms depends on "coherent" light, the type a laser produces.

Virtually all other light, whether it comes from a lightbulb or the sun, is "incoherent" because it is made of various wavelengths — red, blue, green and so on.

Even light from, say, a green light isn't coherent. Its lightwaves are all the same length, but they still aren't matched up, or in phase, as they move through the air. As one wave is going up, another is going down. A laser's light is coherent — one wavelength and moving in phase.

Split Beam

To make a hologram, you split a laser beam in two; shine half the beam on an ordinary piece of film; bounce the other half off an object and then onto the film.

Since the two halves took different length paths getting to the film they'll be out of phase. That means some waves will cancel each other, and some will combine in intensity.

Surrounds Object

To get a 360-degree view of things, the Michigan researchers invented a hologram camera that surrounds an object with a loop of film 12 feet long and some 9½ inches tall. Rolling the film through a hologram viewer creates the same visual effect as walking around the object.

The Michigan researchers have also developed a hologram projector to use the same film. It produces a two-dimensional image on a screen, just as a slide projector does. However, rolling the film through the projector rotates the image of the screen so you can see the object pictured from various angles.

Today, the two hologram devices are too expensive for very widespread use. The laser required, for example, costs about $5,000. But the equipment developers say there are ways of bringing down the cost.

Where will hologram viewers show up? One of the first places will be museums.

Tomorrow's museums could replace the display cases of today with a bank of viewers. Changing displays would be as simple as dropping in a new hologram. And, almost every museum could have its own image replica of even the rarest objects.

In the classrooms, students could even use viewers to inspect fossils, sculptures and even human organs. The 3-D image offers a better idea of proportion than a stack of photos.

Laser Is Key

The key to holography is the laser. Making holograms depends on "coherent" light, the type a laser produces.

Virtually all other light, whether it comes from a lightbulb or the sun, is "incoherent" because it is made of various wavelengths — red, blue, green and so on.

Even light from, say, a green light isn't coherent. Its lightwaves are all the same length, but they still aren't matched up, or in phase, as they move through the air. As one wave is going up, another is going down. A laser's light is coherent — one wavelength and moving in phase.

Split Beam

To make a hologram, you split a laser beam in two; shine half the beam on an ordinary piece of film; bounce the other half off an object and then onto the film.

Since the two halves took different length paths getting to the film they'll be out of phase. That means some waves will cancel each other, and some will combine in intensity.

Surrounds Object

To get a 360-degree view of things, the Michigan researchers invented a hologram camera that surrounds an object with a loop of film 12 feet long and some 9½ inches tall. Rolling the film through a hologram viewer creates the same visual effect as walking around the object.

The Michigan researchers have also developed a hologram projector to use the same film. It produces a two-dimensional image on a screen, just as a slide projector does. However, rolling the film through the projector rotates the image of the screen so you can see the object pictured from various angles.

Today, the two hologram devices are too expensive for very widespread use. The laser required, for example, costs about $5,000. But the equipment developers say there are ways of bringing down the cost.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

The Moon in Pisces is a hospital administrator, a gentle soul who packs a wallop, an intuitive individual who senses the pulse of the public, an aggressive poet, an artiste who is not afraid to delve into the reality of any situation. Here is a native who knows the meaning of loneliness and has experienced the joys of love. Moon in Pisces is a novel, not a story, a book, not a chapter, a poem, not a paragraph. If your Moon is in Pisces, you can verify my assertions, is it?

ARIES (March 21 April 19) Don't push. If you do, you create obstacles. You make gains now by seeking co-operation of workmen, work associates, persons who have served you in past. If you challenge and cajole, you can expect delay.

TAURUS (April 20 May 20) Be ready for questions. Get files in order. Have answers available. Probe beneath surface indications. You will be dealing with Gemini, Sagittarius persons. Ability to adjust to a variety of situations is put to test. You'll enjoy it!

GEMINI (May 21 June 20) Adjustment at home could be featured. Taurus, Libra individuals are likely to be in picture. Conflicts that exist can be resolved. Key is willingness to make intelligent concessions. Diplomacy is your ally.

CANCER (June 21 July 22) See beneath the surface. Delve for facts, not fantasies. Some relatives are intent on disrupting current status. Know it and ride with tide. Don't compound errors by entering foolish arguments. Your views are due to be vindicated. Be patient!

LEO (July 23 Aug. 22) Get down to business. Obtain cost factors. Refuse to be deceived by whispered flattery. Get facts on table and examine them. Capricorn, Cancer types are involved. Member of opposite sex could be playing a role. Protect yourself in clinches!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 Sept. 22) You win if willing to let go of outmoded procedures. Otherwise you waste time, money and emotions. Take cold plunge into future. Message will become increasingly clear. Aries, Libra are likely to be in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 Oct. 22) By making inquiry to one behind the scenes, you obtain key which had been obscured. Don't permit pride to block progress. Your own creativity is sparked. Your own style makes a major impression. Don't sell yourself short!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 Nov. 21) Friendship could develop into a meaningful relationship. But don't confuse liking with fiscal responsibility. Means get priorities in order. You'll get help from mate, partner. But be willing to help yourself, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 Dec. 21) Enhance versatility. Ask questions. Give full rein to intellectual curiosity. Be skeptical without being unpleasant. One in position of authority may be battling a siege of indigestion. Know it and don't take reprimand personally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 Jan. 19) What seems to be an obstacle could actually be a warning light. Know it and respond accordingly. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio could be involved. What you seek appears faraway — but communication line can be established.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 Feb. 18) Discussions center about costs, profits, credits and debits. Involvement with one who is attractive is featured. Gemini, Virgo persons are likely to be in picture. A significant change will be favorable, even though it does not appear that way on surface.

PISCES (Feb. 19 March 20) Play waiting game. Someone wants to tell you something. Be receptive. Accent is on contract, partner, marriage, co-operative effort. Money and legality — these combine. Let opposition reveal plans. Play your own cards face down and close to chest.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have a good voice. You are persuasive, affectionate, attractive to opposite sex and have a sweet tooth. Forces have been scattered. You are making adjustments in lifestyle. You will be on more solid footing in 1975. Sagittarius, Taurus and Libra persons play key roles in your life.

MUD Board Offers Site For New State Building

Omaha (AP) — The Metropolitan Utilities District (MUD) board Wednesday offered to sell for $750,000 the east half of its downtown property for use as the site of a proposed state office building.

The board said in a resolution that use of the property would be in the best interest of the district.

MUD owns the block bounded by Howard, Harney, 17th and 18th Sts. The half-block being offered is about the size of the Woodmen Tower building site in downtown Omaha.

MUD purchased the half-block in 1969 for $1.1 million. The lot is the site of a parking lot and several businesses.

MUD director Frank Fogarty said the property was being offered at a lower price than MUD paid for several reasons.

"We're getting only 3% on our investment in that property now," he said.

"We figure we would make more by having $750,000 in cash invested at today's interest than from rental fees."

Fogarty also noted the offer is being made during a "temporarily weak business real estate market."

He said the district has analyzed the offers made to the state and MUD's is "one we can in good conscience justify.

"The less spent on the site, the more that can be spent on the building," he said.

Ceremony 55 Years Late, But WWI Vet Gets Award

Nebraska City (AP) — It was 55 years too late, but Charles Gude, 80, of Nebraska City, was formally presented Wednesday night with a Distinguished Service Cross he won in combat in 1918.

Gude was a 25-year-old private when he was wounded twice in fighting near Bouclair, France, Nov. 3, 1918.

His citation says that after being twice wounded and unconscious for an hour, he took command of his unit and led them in combat until relieved.

Gude received the DSC, the nation's second highest combat award, by mail in 1919, but had never been formally presented with the citation. Neither had he received a Purple Heart, to which he was entitled for being wounded in action.

He notified the Veterans Administration, asking for the Purple Heart, and arrangements were made for the presentation. It was made by Lt. Col. William Bryant, district recruiting commander of the Omaha district.

The presentation was made at Post No. 8 of the American Legion in Nebraska City.

KSC-NU Merger Studied

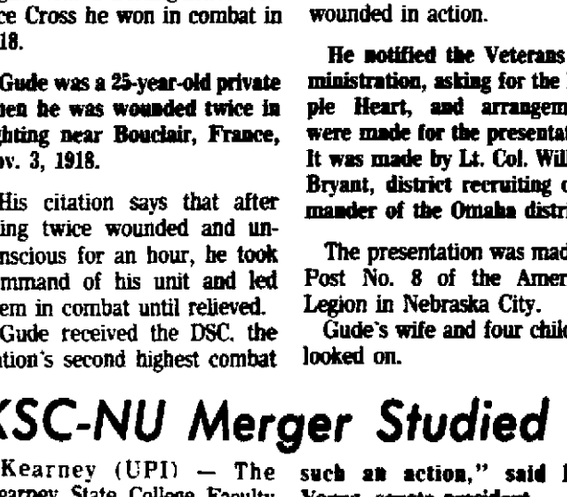

Kearney (UPI) — The Kearney State College Faculty Senate has formed an eight-member committee to study the implications of a merger of KSC with the University of Nebraska.

"We feel that if the faculty is to be effective in helping formulate policy regarding such a merger, it needs to be better informed of the many advantages and disadvantages inherent in such an action," said Bob Young, senate president.

Issues that the committee will be studying are the reactions of the University of Nebraska at Omaha to their merger with the University of Nebraska system; expectations of legislators, Board of Trustees members and the Kearney community regarding the implications of such a merger; and reactions to the proposal from other state colleges.

A report from the facilty committee is to be submitted to the senate in February

MUD Board Offers Site For New State Building

Omaha (AP) — The Metropolitan Utilities District (MUD) board Wednesday offered to sell for $750,000 the east half of its downtown property for use as the site of a proposed state office building.

The board said in a resolution that use of the property would be in the best interest of the district.

MUD purchased the half-block in 1969 for $1.1 million. The lot is the site of a parking lot and several businesses.

MUD director Frank Fogarty said the property was being offered at a lower price than MUD paid for several reasons.

"We're getting only 3% on our investment in that property now," he said.

"We figure we would make more by having $750,000 in cash invested at today's interest than from rental fees."

Fogarty also noted the offer is being made during a "temporarily weak business real estate market."

He said the district has analyzed the offers made to the state and MUD's is "one we can in good conscience justify.

"The less spent on the site, the more that can be spent on the building," he said.

Ceremony 55 Years Late, But WWI Vet Gets Award

Nebraska City (AP) — It was 55 years too late, but Charles Gude, 80, of Nebraska City, was formally presented Wednesday night with a Distinguished Service Cross he won in combat in 1918.

Gude was a 25-year-old private when he was wounded twice in fighting near Bouclair, France, Nov. 3, 1918.

His citation says that after being twice wounded and unconscious for an hour, he took command of his unit and led them in combat until relieved.

Gude received the DSC, the nation's second highest combat award, by mail in 1919, but had never been formally presented with the citation. Neither had he received a Purple Heart, to which he was entitled for being wounded in action.

He notified the Veterans Administration, asking for the Purple Heart, and arrangements were made for the presentation. It was made by Lt. Col. William Bryant, district recruiting commander of the Omaha district.

KSC-NU Merger Studied

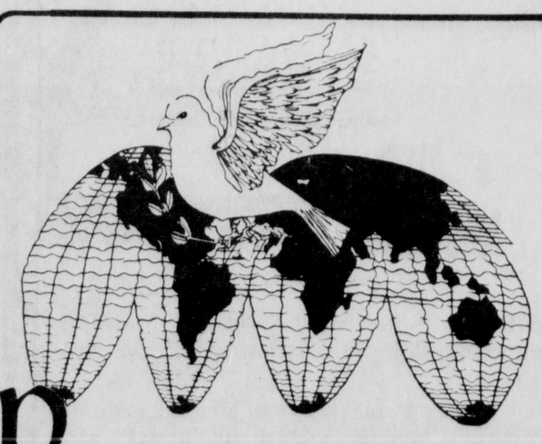

Kearney (UPI) — The Kearney State College Faculty Senate has formed an eight-member committee to study the implications of a merger of KSC with the University of Nebraska.

"We feel that if the faculty is to be effective in helping formulate policy regarding such a merger, it needs to be better informed of the many advantages and disadvantages inherent in such an action," said Bob Young, senate president.

Issues that the committee will be studying are the reactions of the University of Nebraska at Omaha to their merger with the University of Nebraska system; expectations of legislators, Board of Trustees members and the Kearney community regarding the implications of such a merger; and reactions to the proposal from other state colleges.

A report from the facilty committee is to be submitted to the senate in February

Canada Won't Change Cutback Of Oil To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Thursday he told President Ford he will not change his policy for cutting back oil exports to the United States.

Before returning to Canada, the prime minister was told by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., that the decision could lead to an "ugly relationship" between the two countries.

Trudeau himself told a news conference Thursday he had no choice but to stay with a phase-out program that means an end to oil exports across the border by 1982.

Currently the United States buys 900,000 barrels of Canadian oil a day. Trudeau has ordered that cut to 650,000 barrels a day by next July with a follow-up cutback until the program ends entirely.

Trudeau met with Ford twice Wednesday and told the President the phase-out was necessary. Otherwise, he said in his news conference, "We won't have enough for ourselves in the next seven or eight years.

Faced with similar circumstances the United States would do the same, Trudeau said.

The exchange with Mondale came during a breakfast in which the Minnesota senator also complained about the cost of the Canadian oil.

He said because of a $5.20-per-barrel surcharge, the United States now pays up to $1.50 a barrel more for Canadian oil than for petroleum imported from the Middle East.

Neither Mondale's nor Ford's arguments made any headway. "He took a very hard line," Mondale said of Trudeau, and left the impression that "not much is negotiable."

In other areas, Trudeau told newsmen that the United States has not yet violated any commitments for cleaning up the Great Lakes and other joint waterways.

However, he said, "I hope the Americans will act suddenly and catch up with us" in cleaning up the streams and lakes along the border.

The joint defense agreement between the United States and Canada is under review, the prime minister said.

Georgia Woman Dies Of Eating Contaminated Can Of Stew

Washington (AP) — A 79-year-old Georgia woman died and a relative was stricken after eating canned beef stew contaminated by deadly botulism bacteria, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Cleo Harris of Griffin. She died Sunday, in a hospital there, officials said. The relative, identified as Mrs. Mary Bevel, 73, became ill and is in Emory Hospital in Atlanta, the department added.

Officials said the women became ill last Thursday, Thanksgiving Day. They had eaten a can of Kroger brand beef stew the day before, along with some home-canned green beans which were initially suspected as the botulism carrier, the department said.

However, the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta earlier Thursday diagnosed botulism and identified its carrier as the beef stew, officials said.

The department said the canned beef stew was distributed as a house brand by the Kroger supermarket chain, headquartered in Cincinnati, Ohio. The beef stew was processed by Krey Packing Co., Jackson, Tenn., for Kroger, officials said.

The contaminated stew came from a lot of 24,000 cans processed last July. Officials said both Krey and Kroger have initiated voluntary recalls of the product.

Dr. Harry Mussman, USDA deputy administrator for meat and poultry inspection, told reporters that investigators are checking to see if more of the stew produced by Krey last July had been distributed to other outlets. He emphasized there was no evidence now that this had occurred.

Meantime, officials warned that consumers who may have bought the Kroger stew should check their shelves. The stew is in 24-ounce cans which can be identified by a code, "EST. 712 192 S4" embossed in the lids.

Council To Study Liquor License Quota

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

During the holiday season the City Council is going to look into the city's liquor license policy with an eye toward giving thirsty Lincolnites more places in which to celebrate.

The council has asked the law department to prepare an ordinance revamping the quota system on licenses. That 135-license quota is full, and lawmakers have been forced to turn down a number of requests for licenses as a result. Four additional licenses have been granted to Pershing Auditorium, the Municipal Airport and the two city golf courses.

Although the city can only recommend approval or rejection of a liquor license, the State Liquor Control Commission generally has acquiesed to the city's "numbers" policy.

The council's interest in the policy marks the second time this year the lawmakers have tackled the thorny issue.

In May the council killed Councilman John Robinson's proposal to increase the quota from 135 licenses to 142. Robinson proposed to tie the number of licenses to the city's population by allowing one license for every 1,150 people.

Alternatives being considered by the law department include placing a ceiling on the number of licenses in four separate categories and again, tying the licenses to a population figure.

City Atty. Dick Wood, noting that the present law lumps all 135 licenses into one category, suggested that quotas be placed in the following categories: off sale beer, on sale beer, Class C on and off sale and Class D package liquor.

No population figure has yet been decided upon, said Wood who will submit the proposal to the council during the next few weeks.

Robinson's population plan was rejected because some councilmen said an increase in the number of liceses would bring about an increase in law enforcement problems. Other lawmakers contended that the policy was not broad enough since it would not control the transfer of licenses from one businessman to another.

Although it is illegal to sell licenses, council members have acknowledged there is a "goodwill" price attached to the transfer of licenses. Council members said they have been told that licenses sell from $15,000 to $30,000.

Merry Christmas To Some Married Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some married veterans going to school under the new GI education bill can expect to receive retroactive payments of nearly $300 during the week of Dec. 15.

Veterans Administrator Richard L. Roudebush calculated this Thursday in noting that the bill, which Congress enacted into law Tuesday over President Ford's veto, is retroactive to September. He said more than $300 million in retroactive payments will be made.

"Despite the heavy volume of regular Christmas mail, we are hopeful the vast majority of the approximately 1.2 million retroactive checks can be delivered before the Christmas holiday," he said.

The legislation provided an increase of 22.7 per cent in most benefits for veterans, wives, widows and children in the VA education program. The raise is 18.2 per cent for veterans taking vocational rehabilitation, apprenticeship and job training.

Roudebush said he expects the checks to be sent out starting Dec. 15.

He said checks that require special computation at VA regional offices will require somewhat longer for processing and delivery. These are for veterans who dropped out or completed training during the retroactive period, had a change in courses or dependency status or are otherwise outside the regular pattern of training.

Textile Firm Holiday Longer

Fayetteville, N.C. (AP) — Burlington Industries says it is considering stretching the Christmas break from one week to two at its 100 textile plants in the Carolinas and Virginia.

Other textile mills in the Carolinas are reported considering extending the Christmas break, because of the slump in demand for textile products.

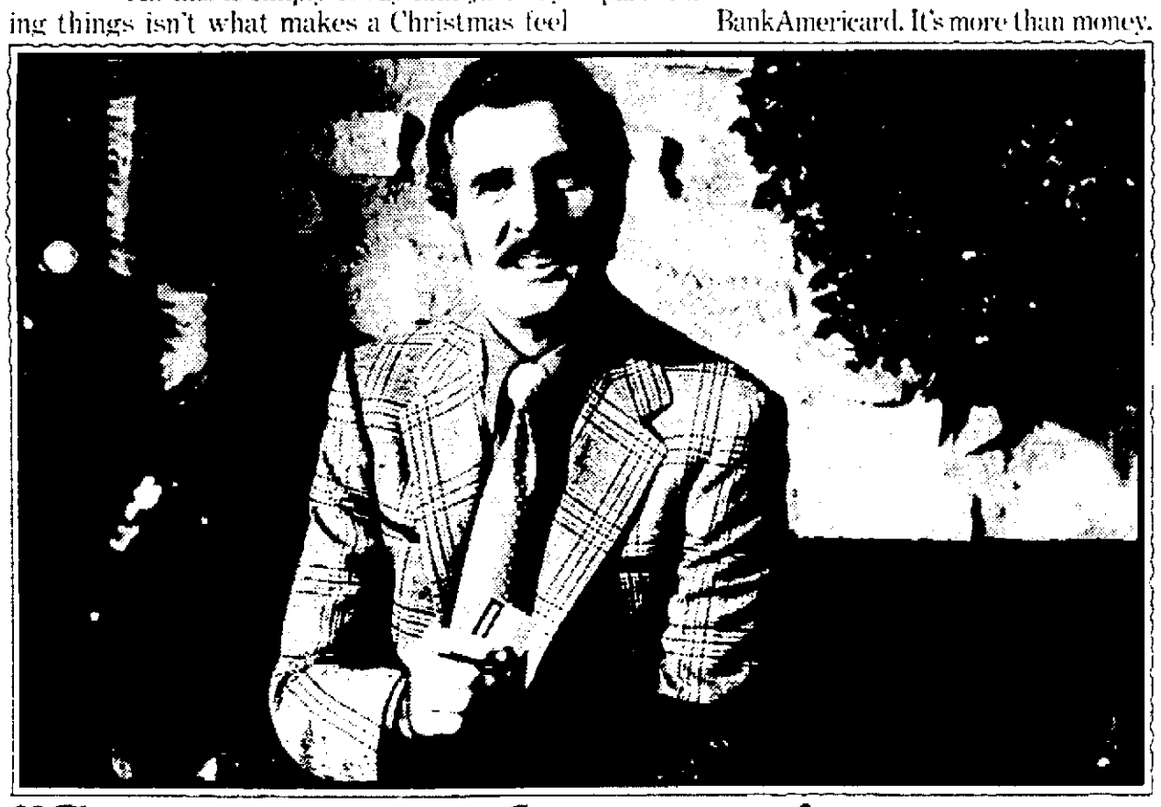

Employes will receive Christmas bonuses for the first week of the traditional shutdown, and will be able to file for unemployment compensation for the second week.

Think back for a moment about the Christmases you remember most happily. Chances are, what you can recollect about those times aren't the things you received. The memories that most of us cherish are those special feelings we had at Christmas. Those warm, sunny feelings of loving and caring.

All this is simply to say that just buying things isn't what makes a Christmas feel good. The real joy of Christmas is feeling happy about making the people we love happy.

This Christmas, whatever you do . . . whether it's visiting home, or giving gifts, or entertaining . . . we hope it will bring you joy. And if a little practical help can make things easier and more of a pleasure, then we're happy to be part of it.

Canada Won't Change Cutback Of Oil To U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Thursday he told President Ford he will not change his policy for cutting back oil exports to the United States.

Before returning to Canada, the prime minister was told by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., that the decision could lead to an "ugly relationship" between the two countries.

Trudeau himself told a news conference Thursday he had no choice but to stay with a phase-out program that means an end to oil exports across the border by 1982.

Currently the United States buys 900,000 barrels of Canadian oil a day. Trudeau has ordered that cut to 650,000 barrels a day by next July with a follow-up cutback until the program ends entirely.

Trudeau met with Ford twice Wednesday and told the President the phase-out was necessary. Otherwise, he said in his news conference, "We won't have enough for ourselves in the next seven or eight years.

Faced with similar circumstances the United States would do the same, Trudeau said.

The exchange with Mondale came during a breakfast in which the Minnesota senator also complained about the cost of the Canadian oil.

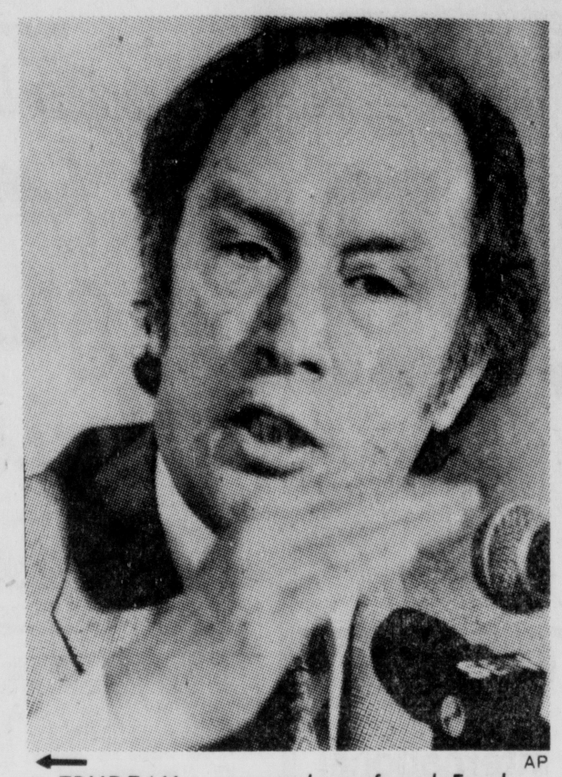

He said because of a $5.20-per-barrel surcharge, the United States now pays up to $1.50 a barrel more for Canadian oil than for petroleum imported from the Middle East.

Neither Mondale's nor Ford's arguments made any headway. "He took a very hard line," Mondale said of Trudeau, and left the impression that "not much is negotiable."

In other areas, Trudeau told newsmen that the United States has not yet violated any commitments for cleaning up the Great Lakes and other joint waterways.

However, he said, "I hope the Americans will act suddenly and catch up with us" in cleaning up the streams and lakes along the border.

The joint defense agreement between the United States and Canada is under review, the prime minister said.

Georgia Woman Dies Of Eating Contaminated Can Of Stew

Washington (AP) — A 79-year-old Georgia woman died and a relative was stricken after eating canned beef stew contaminated by deadly botulism bacteria, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Cleo Harris of Griffin. She died Sunday, in a hospital there, officials said. The relative, identified as Mrs. Mary Bevel, 73, became ill and is in Emory Hospital in Atlanta, the department added.

Officials said the women became ill last Thursday, Thanksgiving Day. They had eaten a can of Kroger brand beef stew the day before, along with some home-canned green beans which were initially suspected as the botulism carrier, the department said.

However, the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta earlier Thursday diagnosed botulism and identified its carrier as the beef stew, officials said.

The department said the canned beef stew was distributed as a house brand by the Kroger supermarket chain, headquartered in Cincinnati, Ohio. The beef stew was processed by Krey Packing Co., Jackson, Tenn., for Kroger, officials said.

The contaminated stew came from a lot of 24,000 cans processed last July. Officials said both Krey and Kroger have initiated voluntary recalls of the product.

Dr. Harry Mussman, USDA deputy administrator for meat and poultry inspection, told reporters that investigators are checking to see if more of the stew produced by Krey last July had been distributed to other outlets. He emphasized there was no evidence now that this had occurred.

Meantime, officials warned that consumers who may have bought the Kroger stew should check their shelves. The stew is in 24-ounce cans which can be identified by a code, "EST. 712 192 S4" embossed in the lids.

Council To Study Liquor License Quota

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

During the holiday season the City Council is going to look into the city's liquor license policy with an eye toward giving thirsty Lincolnites more places in which to celebrate.

The council has asked the law department to prepare an ordinance revamping the quota system on licenses. That 135-license quota is full, and lawmakers have been forced to turn down a number of requests for licenses as a result. Four additional licenses have been granted to Pershing Auditorium, the Municipal Airport and the two city golf courses.

Although the city can only recommend approval or rejection of a liquor license, the State Liquor Control Commission generally has acquiesed to the city's "numbers" policy.

The council's interest in the policy marks the second time this year the lawmakers have tackled the thorny issue.

In May the council killed Councilman John Robinson's proposal to increase the quota from 135 licenses to 142. Robinson proposed to tie the number of licenses to the city's population by allowing one license for every 1,150 people.

Alternatives being considered by the law department include placing a ceiling on the number of licenses in four separate categories and again, tying the licenses to a population figure.

City Atty. Dick Wood, noting that the present law lumps all 135 licenses into one category, suggested that quotas be placed in the following categories: off sale beer, on sale beer, Class C on and off sale and Class D package liquor.

No population figure has yet been decided upon, said Wood who will submit the proposal to the council during the next few weeks.

Robinson's population plan was rejected because some councilmen said an increase in the number of liceses would bring about an increase in law enforcement problems. Other lawmakers contended that the policy was not broad enough since it would not control the transfer of licenses from one businessman to another.

Although it is illegal to sell licenses, council members have acknowledged there is a "goodwill" price attached to the transfer of licenses. Council members said they have been told that licenses sell from $15,000 to $30,000.

Policy Statement On Sexuality OKd

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

"Frightening" was the word Mrs. L. A. Enersen used to describe a policy statement on "Human Sexuality And The Mentally Retarded," which came up before the Lancaster County Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) advisory board Thursday night.

However, the rest of the board members present apparently did not agree with Mrs. Enersen's analysis. After changing the statement's wording slightly, they voted for adoption.

The statement was drawn up by the LOMR Task Force on Human Sexuality and the Mentally Retarded. Twenty-seven people served on the group, whose membership included representatives of community agencies, LOMR, and the Region V Office of Mental Retardation, as well as parents of mentally retarded children.

Contact Normal

Based on the premise that "Ordinary social and physical contact with members of the same and opposite sex is healthy and normal for the retarded, just as it is for other people," the statement goes on to say that "LOMR will plan and conduct an on-going program of education in regard to human sexuality, maximizing parental involvement whenever possible."

The objectives of such a program as outlined in the statement will emphasize "self awareness, physical changes and understanding self, peer relationships, and responsibilities to self and the society in which (the client) lives."

Mrs. Enersen's objection to the statement had to do with its lack of provision for what she described as the differences between the trainably retarded and the educably retarded.

'Okay for Educable'

The "statement is okay for the educable," she said. However, she suggested that "another policy statement" that would specifically apply to persons below the level of educable should be drawn up.

In speaking of such individuals, Mrs. Enersen said that they (the trainably retarded) "are highly suggestible. They follow example, they follow stimulation."

And she expressed apprehension that the policy statement would result in their learning "things they haven't known and don't need to know.

Direction Not Defined

Noting that the direction the program will take is not defined in the policy statement, Task Force Chairman Steve Hoffman said, "It was not our intention to have a sex education class."

However, he emphasized the fact that "there will be guidelines established" at a later date

These guidelines will define the actual implementation of the program as it applies to individuals of differing mental abilities, Hoffman said.

In countering Mrs. Enersen's contention that the statement is "too broad," one board member said that if the forthcoming implementation guidelines are brought before the board, the policy statement itself needn't be highly specific.

Board members voted to approve the statement after receiving Hoffman's assurance that such would be the case.

Slapstick Mime Said Only A Cliche

By LYNN SILHASEK
Star Staff Writer

Charlie Chaplin may have done a lot for movies, but his penguin walk and moustache-twitching did little to help serious mime, according to mimists Bert Houle and Sophie Wilbaux.

On tour in Lincoln, the two mimists, who form the St. Louis, Mo., Loretto-Hilton Mime Troupe, agreed that Americans grew up with a cliche image of mime, that of Chaplin's slapstick pantomime.

Houle and Wilbaux are students of Etienne Decroux, a 75-year-old Parisian mimist who has taught serious mime since the 1920's. Another Decroux student is the famous mimist Marcel Marceau.

Portrayal Of Themes

Serious mime involves the portrayal of themes, such as "Caine and Abel," "Unity," "Duality," and the "Outcomist," which the two mimists compose, according to Houle. Their act, however, does include some pantomime, as a diversion for audiences and as a chance for performers to relax, Ms. Wilbaux said.

Their mime routines involve learning to move six parts of the body separately — head, neck, chest, waist, pelvis and legs — then connecting movements in a series of motions, Houle explained.

Audiences recently have become more interested in mime performances as a whole because of the times, Ms. Wilbaux said.

'Tired Of Words?'

"Now people are interested in everything that is visual," she said. "Maybe they're tired of words."

Audiences at mime performances are composed mostly of persons interested in changes that have been introduced into theater during the past 10 years, according to Ms. Wilbaux.

Theater has become more open, more emotional, and involves more movement, like mime, she said.

Both Houle and Ms. Wilbaux studied two years under Decroux and have been performing in the United States for four years They also have toured in Spain, Turkey and France.

Both Houle and Mrs. Wilbaux had started out in careers other than mime. Houle said he gave up acting when he realized the "total creative endeavor" mime was. Mime involved coming up with new routines, where an actor would only interpret someone else's script, he said

Philosophy Student

Ms Wilbaux had been a philosophy student before she became interested in mime.

Mime opened "the possibility of being whatever I wanted to be," she said, unlike theater, which tends to typecast actors, she said.

The Houle-Wilbaux tour is sponsored by the Mid-America Arts Alliance, the Nebraska Arts Council and the Lincoln Public Schools.

Houle and Wilbaux will perform Friday at 8 p.m. in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Kimball Recital Hall, and Dec. 11 at East High School at 8 p.m.

25 Or More Die As Roof Collapses

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The snow-laden roof of Tehran's newly enlarged airport terminal caved in on the main lounge Thursday, and rescuers said they pulled as many as 25 bodies from the rubble.

There were conflicting reports about the number of confirmed dead.

Iran's civil aviation chief, Hushang Arbabi, gave the figure of 25 dead in a television interview and said another 25 might still be buried under the tons of concrete and steel.

The government news agency PRAS put the official death toll at 14. The chief of rescue operations, Gen. Abass Gharabaghi, said 12 bodies had been recovered.

Almost all the dead were believed to be Iranians, but airport sources said one was a German national. Two Americans were reported among the injured, but their conditions were not known.

Airport and hospital sources identified the Americans as Edward Alfred Kasaval, 46, of Detroit, Mich., and Michael Nimitz, 43, of Wisconsin. Nimitz' home town was not immediately known.

Package Explodes In Parcel Center

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — A bomb wrapped in a plain brown package exploded before dawn Thursday at a United Parcel Service center here, killing one worker and injuring eight worker and injuring eight others.

The package, which had wires protruding, had been removed from a conveyor belt because the address didn't match the ZIP code, police said. It was opened by Jack Metz, 38, a driver who hoped to find an invoice for a correct address, and exploded the bomb in his face.

Fellow workers said Metz exclaimed seconds before it went off, "Look, its a bomb." He was killed in the explosion.

Certification Of Demo Durkin Rescinded By All-GOP Panel

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Despite a federal judge's order to the contrary, New Hampshire's all-Republican Executive Council rescinded the certification Thursday of Democrat John A. Durkin as the state's new U.S. senator.

Prior to the council's action, U.S. District Court Judge Hugh Bownes had issued an order forbidding Gov. Meldrim Thomson and the council from decertifying Durkin. On Nov. 27, the council had designated Durkin the winner.

Durkin won the official recount by 10 votes, overturning an unofficial 542-vote margin for Republican Rep. Louis C. Wyman after the Nov. 5 election.

Thomson said, "As far as the court is concerned, there is no order. As far as the governor and council are concerned, we acted properly. . . . In no way are we a party to it.

But, Bownes' order said, "Such a change in certification would be a clear abridgement of Mr. Durkin's constitutional right to seek redress in the Federal Court.

"It is therefore ordered that there be no change in Mr. Durkin's certification until the . . . validity of the recount is made."

Thomson said the council was not aware of Bownes' order when it acted and said a copy of the order was not received until later. But reporters at the meeting said Thomson was advised before the council's final vote that Bownes had issued the order.

Thomson said Durkin's certification was rescinded because the secretary of state did not advise the U.S. Senate that the council had approved the recount with the qualification that Wyman could appeal to the commission.

Immediately after the council's action, Durkin asked the federal court to reconsider his earlier petition to block further state review of the election.

Retail Sales Volumes Plummet

New York (AP) — Retail sales volumes fell sharply in November over the same month last year as a result of the economic slowdown and the later start in Christmas buying, chain stores reported Thursday.

Sears Roebuck & Co., the country's largest retail store, reported sales for the five weeks ended Nov. 30 totaled $1.6 billion, up only 2.4% from last year. With consumer prices up about 12% in the year, the figure indicates a substantial drop in store volume.

J. C. Penney Co Inc., second largest general retailer, posted a 3.9% gain in November sales to $779.1 million, compared with $749.9 million in November 1973. Penney said its operating units reported sluggish economic activity throughout most of the country, aggravated in many areas by industry layoffs.

Penney and other stores also noted that this year's late Thanksgiving delayed Christmas buying. In 1973 the holiday came a week earlier in the month.

One Wall Street retail analyst said he felt two-thirds of the sales downturn was caused by the late holiday and one-third by the economic slump. In general the stores' November sales gains were substantially below gains made in the rest of the year.

Among other stores showing slower sales advances were S. S. Kresge Co., operators of K-Mart Stores, whose sales rose 14% in the month to $588.8 million, and Montgomery Ward & Co., which reported an 11.6% rise in sales to a November total of $429.7 million.

Ward's chairman Edward Donnell said the sales exceeded earlier expectations and were relatively strong considering the effect of the late Thanksgiving.

Minneapolis Dayton-Hudson Corp. reported sales up 1.3% to $162 million, Massachusetts-based Zayre Corp. posted figures of $122.7 million, up 0.8% from last November, and F W. Woolworth & Co. said the month's sales rose 6% from last year to $415 million.

In Washington, the Commerce Department reported separately that retail sales, including auto figures, for the latest week were down 1.8% from the week before, and up 2% from the like week a year ago.

Crisis Might Get Worse Than 1930s — Economist

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Nobel Prize winner Gunnar Myrdal said Thursday he fears the current world economic crisis eventually could be worse than the depression of the 1930s.

Myrdal, who shares this year's Nobel award in economics, told a news conference that while most experts maintain there is no resemblance between today and 1929, they tend to forget that the current crisis is characterized by something worse — a stagflation, or inflation with simultaneous high unemployment.

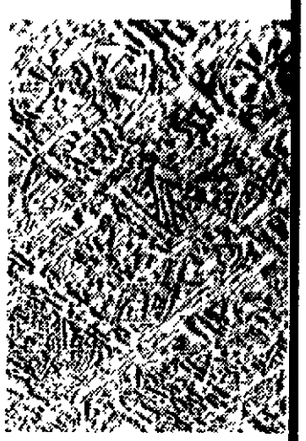

He said: "It is up to ourselves and own sacrifices if a world depression is to be avoided. Only well-functioning international cooperation can save the world from the depression it is facing."

So far no effective measures have been taken in that direction, he said, and he sees a tendency towards greater isolationism.

Turning to the United States, he recalled his pioneering study of the American black race, "An American Dilemma" written 30 years ago. Since then, the most dramatic changes have occurred in the South "where slavery, although abolished by law, was practiced in the 40s," he said.

"Generally speaking, the lower classes are in a worse position today. The antagonism between black and white people has turned into a similar rift between rich and poor," he said.

Package Explodes In Parcel Center

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — A bomb wrapped in a plain brown package exploded before dawn Thursday at a United Parcel Service center here, killing one worker and injuring eight worker and injuring eight others.

The package, which had wires protruding, had been removed from a conveyor belt because the address didn't match the ZIP code, police said. It was opened by Jack Metz, 38, a driver who hoped to find an invoice for a correct address, and exploded the bomb in his face.

Fellow workers said Metz exclaimed seconds before it went off, "Look, its a bomb." He was killed in the explosion.

Certification Of Demo Durkin Rescinded By All-GOP Panel

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Despite a federal judge's order to the contrary, New Hampshire's all-Republican Executive Council rescinded the certification Thursday of Democrat John A. Durkin as the state's new U.S. senator.

Prior to the council's action, U.S. District Court Judge Hugh Bownes had issued an order forbidding Gov. Meldrim Thomson and the council from decertifying Durkin. On Nov. 27, the council had designated Durkin the winner.

Durkin won the official recount by 10 votes, overturning an unofficial 542-vote margin for Republican Rep. Louis C. Wyman after the Nov. 5 election.

Thomson said, "As far as the court is concerned, there is no order. As far as the governor and council are concerned, we acted properly. . . . In no way are we a party to it.

But, Bownes' order said, "Such a change in certification would be a clear abridgement of Mr. Durkin's constitutional right to seek redress in the Federal Court.

"It is therefore ordered that there be no change in Mr. Durkin's certification until the . . . validity of the recount is made."

Thomson said the council was not aware of Bownes' order when it acted and said a copy of the order was not received until later. But reporters at the meeting said Thomson was advised before the council's final vote that Bownes had issued the order.

Thomson said Durkin's certification was rescinded because the secretary of state did not advise the U.S. Senate that the council had approved the recount with the qualification that Wyman could appeal to the commission.

Immediately after the council's action, Durkin asked the federal court to reconsider his earlier petition to block further state review of the election.

Retail Sales Volumes Plummet

New York (AP) — Retail sales volumes fell sharply in November over the same month last year as a result of the economic slowdown and the later start in Christmas buying, chain stores reported Thursday.

Sears Roebuck & Co., the country's largest retail store, reported sales for the five weeks ended Nov. 30 totaled $1.6 billion, up only 2.4% from last year. With consumer prices up about 12% in the year, the figure indicates a substantial drop in store volume.

J. C. Penney Co. Inc., second largest general retailer, posted a 3.9% gain in November sales to $779.1 million, compared with $749.9 million in November 1973. Penney said its operating units reported sluggish economic activity throughout most of the country, aggravated in many areas by industry layoffs.

Penney and other stores also noted that this year's late Thanksgiving delayed Christmas buying. In 1973 the holiday came a week earlier in the month.

One Wall Street retail analyst said he felt two-thirds of the sales downturn was caused by the late holiday and one-third by the economic slump. In general the stores' November sales gains were substantially below gains made in the rest of the year.

Among other stores showing slower sales advances were S. S. Kresge Co., operators of K-Mart Stores, whose sales rose 14% in the month to $588.8 million, and Montgomery Ward & Co., which reported an 11.6% rise in sales to a November total of $429.7 million.

Ward's chairman Edward Donnell said the sales exceeded earlier expectations and were relatively strong considering the effect of the late Thanksgiving.

Minneapolis Dayton-Hudson Corp. reported sales up 1.3% to $162 million, Massachusetts-based Zayre Corp. posted figures of $122.7 million, up 0.8% from last November, and F. W. Woolworth & Co. said the month's sales rose 6% from last year to $415 million.

In Washington, the Commerce Department reported separately that retail sales, including auto figures, for the latest week were down 1.8% from the week before, and up 2% from the like week a year ago.

Crisis Might Get Worse Than 1930s — Economist

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Nobel Prize winner Gunnar Myrdal said Thursday he fears the current world economic crisis eventually could be worse than the depression of the 1930s.

Myrdal, who shares this year's Nobel award in economics, told a news conference that while most experts maintain there is no resemblance between today and 1929, they tend to forget that the current crisis is characterized by something worse — a stagflation, or inflation with simultaneous high unemployment.

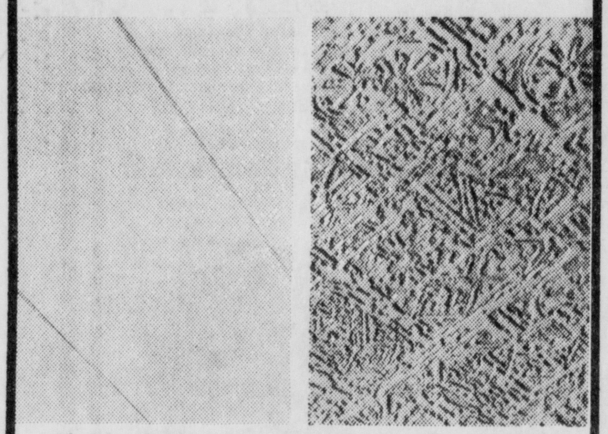

He said: "It is up to ourselves and own sacrifices if a world depression is to be avoided. Only well-functioning international cooperation can save the world from the depression it is facing."

So far no effective measures have been taken in that direction, he said, and he sees a tendency towards greater isolationism.

Turning to the United States, he recalled his pioneering study of the American black race, "An American Dilemma" written 30 years ago. Since then, the most dramatic changes have occurred in the South "where slavery, although abolished by law, was practiced in the 40s," he said.

"Generally speaking, the lower classes are in a worse position today. The antagonism between black and white people has turned into a similar rift between rich and poor," he said.

Sharp Increase Seen In Argentina's Trade With Communist Countries

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's trade with Communist countries, including Cuba, has grown spectacularly since the Peronist government was installed 18 months ago.

Argentine-Soviet trade, which amounted to a scant $24.7 million in 1972, is expected to exceed $200 million this year.

Trade with Cuba, amost nonexistent until 1973, became a prime element in Argentina's sales abroad following a $1.2 billion loan to Prime Minister Fidel Castro in 1973 for the purchase of Argentine industrial products over a six-year period.

Exports to Cuba amounted to almost $600 million during the first 10 months of this year. Argentina has becomed Cuba's third largest world supplier, after the Soviet Union and East Germany.

The Cuban deal ignored the economic blockade of the island imposed a decade ago by the Organization of American States. Argentina even convinced local subsidiaries of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler to sell 24,000 vehicles to Cuba. Other items in the trade are railway and agricultural equipment, ships, tractors and chemical products.

Officials said negotiations are well along with Czechoslovakia to set up an electric turbine factory that would be the most important in Latin America. There is also talk of a joint steel plant.

Other plans call for an Argentine-Polish fishing concern to exploit the country's neglected sea resources. Polish technology and credits already are being used in coal mining operations in the southern-most district of Santa Cruz.

Hungary has agreed to set up a crane factory and is studying the possibility of contributing technology to the telephone industry. And a trade agreement was signed recently with East Germany.

Political circles credit former Economy Minister Jose B. Gelbard with pursuing the trade opening to the East. His successor, Alfredo Gomez Morales, said the late Juan D. Peron had formulated such a policy during his first period as president, but it was delayed by his ouster in the 1955 military coup. Peron returned to power in 1973, but died last July 1, leaving the presidency to his widow Isabel.

The growing trade with the Soviet Union includes development of Argentina's hydroelectric power. The Russians earlier this year won a $65 million contract to install turbines in the joint Argentine-Uruguayan Salto Grande project, on the Uruguay River. Soviet technicians from the V. O. Technopromexport firm, which helped build the huge Aswan project in Egypt, also are studying the feasibility of developing the hydroelectric potential of the Parana River.

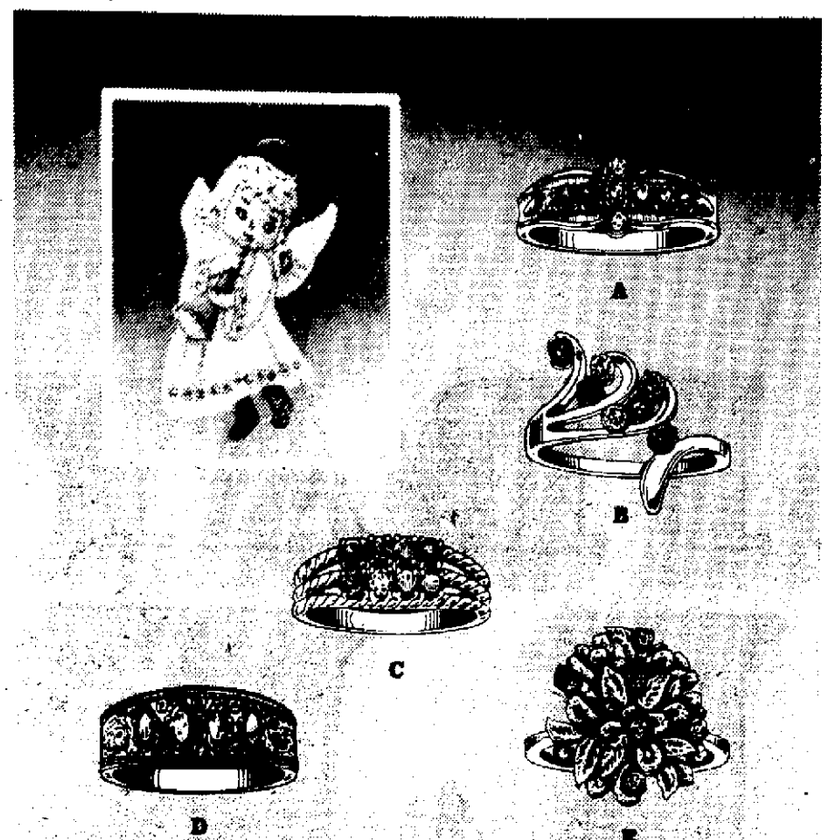

Argentina, for its part, has added beef, wine and fruit to its traditional exports to the Soviet Union, which previously consisted mainly of leather, wool and grain.

The agreement for the Soviet beef purchases calls for an initial delivery of 12,000 tons of meat and could amount to 80,000 tons in three years. This partly compensates for Argentina's loss of beef markets in Europe, due to a recent Common Market ban.

POSTCARD
Stan Delaplane

Hawaii — It was the green and tropical year of 1820 when the first New England missionaries arrived in the garden islands of the Pacific.

It was quite a sight — according to how you looked at it. And the missionary Hiram Bingham wrote how they looked at it.

"The appearance of destitution, degradation and barbarism was appalling.

"Others with firmer nerve continued their gaze, but were ready to exclaim: 'Can these be human beings! How dark and comfortless their state of mind and heart! How imminent the danger to the immortal soul shrouded in this deep pagan gloom!' "

The pious ladies of the mission opened their sewing baskets. They took measurements — pretty big because these was very big wahines in those fish and poi days, mama.

They began sacking up all this cocnut cream pie in modest dresses.

Because the easiest, (and least revealing) dress to make was a Mother Hubbard, that is what they made.

Today at the smarter shops on Waikiki, a polished cotton muumuu will cost you up to 50 skins.

Hawaiians will tell you that the muumuu was not forced on the people. It was demanded by the alii — the nobles.

Hawaiian nobility ran into the 300-pound class. For it was considered extremely noble to be fat. Noble children were taught from birth to stuff themselves. (You stuff yourself with poi and you get plenty fat.)

The noble ladies saw the missionary ladies in their New England clothing and they simply died of envy The missionary ladies couldn't fit these huge females. So they draped them — in the muumuu. So the story goes.

After awhile, the muumuu was replaced by a Victorian sort of thing with a train. It was called a holoku. The muumuu became an undergarment. A slip.

So really when the tourist ladies go down and belt out five-oh for a muumuu, they are simply paying $50 to run around in their underwear.

"Can these be human beings! How dark and comfortless their state of mind and heart!" That's what I always say.

Lihue is the big town on Kauai. The island towns built up to serve the sugar and pineapple plantations.

Sugar is still big in the islands. But labor costs have moved most Hawaiian pineapple production to Formosa and the Philippines.

The plantation towns are sleepy little places. A general store (usually run by Chinese). A small movie house (usually run by a Japanese). A barber — Japanese girl barbers are a big thing in cosmopolitan Hawaii.

There is usually an import warehouse. Importing dried fish and dried seaweed for Japanese home cooking. And exotic condiments such as oyster sauce and soy beans for the Chinese.

Hawaiian boys and girls drop by the general store after school to buy little packages of watermelon seeds and sweet dried fruit that you see on the streets of Hong Kong. Much as mainland kids stop by for a hamburger and a Coke.

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

Hawaii — It was the green and tropical year of 1820 when the first New England missionaries arrived in the garden islands of the Pacific.

The beaches were full of laughing, brown-skinned maidens — barefoot from here to way up yonder.

It was quite a sight — according to how you looked at it. And the missionary Hiram Bingham wrote how they looked at it.

"The appearance of destitution, degradation and barbarism was appalling.

"Others with firmer nerve continued their gaze, but were ready to exclaim: 'Can these be human beings! How dark and comfortless their state of mind and heart! How imminent the danger to the immortal soul shrouded in this deep pagan gloom!' "

The pious ladies of the mission opened their sewing baskets. They took measurements — pretty big because these was very big wahines in those fish and poi days, mama.

They began sacking up all this cocnut cream pie in modest dresses.

Because the easiest, (and least revealing) dress to make was a Mother Hubbard, that is what they made.

Today at the smarter shops on Waikiki, a polished cotton muumuu will cost you up to 50 skins.

Hawaiians will tell you that the muumuu was not forced on the people. It was demanded by the alii — the nobles.

Hawaiian nobility ran into the 300-pound class. For it was considered extremely noble to be fat. Noble children were taught from birth to stuff themselves. (You stuff yourself with poi and you get plenty fat.)

The noble ladies saw the missionary ladies in their New England clothing and they simply died of envy The missionary ladies couldn't fit these huge females. So they draped them — in the muumuu. So the story goes.

After awhile, the muumuu was replaced by a Victorian sort of thing with a train. It was called a holoku. The muumuu became an undergarment. A slip.

So really when the tourist ladies go down and belt out five-oh for a muumuu, they are simply paying $50 to run around in their underwear.

"Can these be human beings! How dark and comfortless their state of mind and heart!" That's what I always say.

Lihue is the big town on Kauai. The island towns built up to serve the sugar and pineapple plantations.

Sugar is still big in the islands. But labor costs have moved most Hawaiian pineapple production to Formosa and the Philippines.

The plantation towns are sleepy little places. A general store (usually run by Chinese). A small movie house (usually run by a Japanese). A barber — Japanese girl barbers are a big thing in cosmopolitan Hawaii.

There is usually an import warehouse. Importing dried fish and dried seaweed for Japanese home cooking. And exotic condiments such as oyster sauce and soy beans for the Chinese.

Hawaiian boys and girls drop by the general store after school to buy little packages of watermelon seeds and sweet dried fruit that you see on the streets of Hong Kong. Much as mainland kids stop by for a hamburger and a Coke.

The Joke Was On Them

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

When Judy Glinsmann noticed a Retzlaff Farm Corporation ad in the newspaper and called to apply for a farmhand job, Fred Retzlaff, president of the corporation, thought he was talking to a young man whose voice hadn't changed.

After Retzlaff discovered he was talking to a young woman, he thought Ms. Glinsmann was joking; and most of the men on the corporation's 10 farms predicted that "she wouldn't last a week."

But the joke was on them.

The 18-year-old woman not only "lasted" through the week, but she has been a corporation employe for two months and plans to stick around.

In addition, Retzlaff sings her praises. Little did he know when he hired the supposed novice, that she was born and raised on a farm near Ashton, and would soon be working in nearly every area of farm routines.

"She has a definite longing for the outdoor life," Retzlaff commented.

So strong is that longing, in fact, that the female hired hand dropped out of Dana College after only two weeks of classes last fall and works eight to 10 hours, six days a week, because she said she feels "trapped in an office."

"There is no reason she couldn't go to college," Retzlaff continued, "she's smart enough.

"All of the hired hands here have had some advanced schooling. At first, the fellows were kind of afraid to talk to her, but now she gets along fine with them.

"She feeds and works the cattle, tags them and treats them for grubs, fixes fences and does everything else that is necessary," he added. "Yesterday, for instance, the semi went haywire and a bull broke out." And since everyone else was busy, "she went to the feed company by herself and picked up salt and supplies for the cattle, checked three herds and salted the cattle.

"And she has agreed to get on one of those big tractors and disc, plow and all that jazz," he noted with a smile.

According to Retzlaff, allowing Ms. Glinsmann to work on the large equipment denotes a trust and faith in her abilities. "because Allan (Retzlaff's son and manager of the corporation) is particular about who he lets run the large tractors." Any careless accident could result in an expensive loss.

"And she's not afraid of animals either," he proudly proclaimed as the two singled out and cornered a bull in a feedlot.

Also, "her memory is real good and her bookwork is out of this world," he stressed. "There are good possibilities for her here. After I got her started with the bookwork and pedigree papers, I didn't have to tell her anything, she just did it."

What do Ms. Glinsmann's parents think of her working on the farm?

"When I told my father that I was working as a farm hand, he said he always knew I would get back on the farm," Ms. Glinsmann replied.

Aside from the fact that the young woman prefers the outdoors, those working on the farms are another reason she has decided to stay with corporation.

"The people I work with, they're really nice," she concluded.

At Children's Zoo

Santa To Open Workshop

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Kris Kringle (alias Santa Claus) has selected Zooville Square, somewhat of a ghost town these days, for his Christmas workshop.

For the event, the society has converted the Trading Post into a Candy Cane Kitchen; the Blacksmith Shop into a specialty shop for chestnut roasting; the Gift Shoppe has been stocked with stocking stuffers.

The Petting Compound will be site of Santa's Nativity scene — the city's only "live" one. Donkey, goats and llamas will assume their places in the very special depiction of the first Christmas.

And the Birdcage Theatre will be Santa's special spot for visiting with the children, for making his list and checking it twice.

It all begins at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Visits to Kris Kringle and the animals will last until 5 p.m. Sunday. Mr. Claus also has scheduled his open house at the zoo all next week, between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Children making a Sunday stop at Santaland also will have a chance to do some tree decorating.

Zooville Square's giant tree has been set aside as the animals' Christmas tree.

On it, children will place suet ornaments and spaghetti tinsel. If they want, they can string popcorn garlands — all for the animals' enjoyment.

Rudolph, minus his red nose, will be playing games with the youngsters. The friendly deer is one of four such sleigh-pulling animals at the zoo — one addition to the team arrived just Thursday morning, a gift from the Game and Parks Commission. The trick will be to discover just which one is Rudolph.

Santa's little elves will be on hand to help the children find their favorite animals from last summer and to get a sneak preview of animals they may be seeing this summer.

The "Sunday Journal and Star" delivered at your door has six sections of interesting, timely features. You'll like the sports section known as "Sports Red," whether you are a Husker fan, or hunter.

Reader Prefers 'Dear Y'All'

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: The idea of eliminating all salutations in business letters in order to do away with the sexist "Dear Sir," has provoked me to write.

I propose, "Dear Y'all." It's friendly, all-inclusive, personal, impersonal, masculine, feminine and in between. A less formal "Hi, Y'all" might also be considered.

FRIENDLY IN DALLAS

DEAR FRIENDLY: Y'all's entitled to Y'all's opinion. But I doubt that it will play in Peoria.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, Cliff, is 22. He's seeing a woman who is 32. She is twice divorced, has one child with her last mate and two (ages 10 and 12) with her first.

She's a cocktail waitress in a private club. I've never met her so all I have to go on is her track record and the fact that she's ten years older than Cliff.

This woman appears to be chasing our son. She met him when she and a girl friend went to the night club where he was performing. She has called here several times trying to locate him. My husband and I are terribly upset to think that he may have an interest in her.

How can we discourage Cliff from seeing her? How can we let our son know that if this woman were thinking of his best interests, she would leave him alone?

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your son is over 21, and there is nothing you can do. Any suggestions from you concerning this woman would be viewed by your son as meddling. Further, any attempts on your part to "rescue" your son from her would only drive them closer together. The word from here is cool it, Mother.

DEAR ABBY: Since I am a pastor with 43 years experience, I'd like to offer this suggestion to the young, inexperienced minister who didn't know how to handle a very bold married woman in his congregation who had designs on him:

Whenever I noticed a romantic twinkle in the eye of a woman in my congregation, I always checked to make sure it wasn't caused by a reflection from the gleam in my own.

The Rev. Walter Cowen
Nanticoke, Pa.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 12 years and have three children, 5, 9, and 10.

Pat makes a very good living selling. He's been with the same company ever since we've been married and has turned down many promotions because he didn't want to travel out of this state.

Now he has been offered what his boss calls "The opportunity of a lifetime"—but it would mean being away from home for two weeks out of every month. He turned it down.

His boss is cool to him, and thinks he's crazy. His parents are barely speaking to us because they think he made a big mistake, but he and I still think he made the right choice.

Abby, we like money as much as the next person, but we feel that during these years, when our children are growing up, they need a fulltime father, and to us that is more important than anything else.

Are we out of our minds?

JANE AND PAT

DEAR JANE: Not in my book. I think you're beautiful.

SANTA CLAUS . . . discusses Christmas Eve duties with Rudolph (right) and the newest member of his team of deer.

At Children's Zoo

Santa To Open Workshop

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Kris Kringle (alias Santa Claus) has selected Zooville Square, somewhat of a ghost town these days, for his Christmas workshop.

For the event, the society has converted the Trading Post into a Candy Cane Kitchen; the Blacksmith Shop into a specialty shop for chestnut roasting; the Gift Shoppe has been stocked with stocking stuffers.

The Petting Compound will be site of Santa's Nativity scene — the city's only "live" one. Donkey, goats and llamas will assume their places in the very special depiction of the first Christmas.

And the Birdcage Theatre will be Santa's special spot for visiting with the children, for making his list and checking it twice.

It all begins at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Visits to Kris Kringle and the animals will last until 5 p.m. Sunday. Mr. Claus also has scheduled his open house at the zoo all next week, between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Children making a Sunday stop at Santaland also will have a chance to do some tree decorating.

Zooville Square's giant tree has been set aside as the animals' Christmas tree.

On it, children will place suet ornaments and spaghetti tinsel. If they want, they can string popcorn garlands — all for the animals' enjoyment.

Rudolph, minus his red nose, will be playing games with the youngsters. The friendly deer is one of four such sleigh-pulling animals at the zoo — one addition to the team arrived just Thursday morning, a gift from the Game and Parks Commission. The trick will be to discover just which one is Rudolph.

Santa's little elves will be on hand to help the children find their favorite animals from last summer and to get a sneak preview of animals they may be seeing this summer.

The "Sunday Journal and Star" delivered at your door has six sections of interesting, timely features. You'll like the sports section known as "Sports Red," whether you are a Husker fan, or hunter.

Reader Prefers 'Dear Y'All'

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: The idea of eliminating all salutations in business letters in order to do away with the sexist "Dear Sir," has provoked me to write.

I propose, "Dear Y'all." It's friendly, all-inclusive, personal, impersonal, masculine, feminine and in between. A less formal "Hi, Y'all" might also be considered.

FRIENDLY IN DALLAS

DEAR FRIENDLY: Y'all's entitled to Y'all's opinion. But I doubt that it will play in Peoria.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, Cliff, is 22. He's seeing a woman who is 32. She is twice divorced, has one child with her last mate and two (ages 10 and 12) with her first.

She's a cocktail waitress in a private club. I've never met her so all I have to go on is her track record and the fact that she's ten years older than Cliff.

This woman appears to be chasing our son. She met him when she and a girl friend went to the night club where he was performing. She has called here several times trying to locate him. My husband and I are terribly upset to think that he may have an interest in her.

How can we discourage Cliff from seeing her? How can we let our son know that if this woman were thinking of his best interests, she would leave him alone?

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your son is over 21, and there is nothing you can do. Any suggestions from you concerning this woman would be viewed by your son as meddling. Further, any attempts on your part to "rescue" your son from her would only drive them closer together. The word from here is cool it, Mother.

DEAR ABBY: Since I am a pastor with 43 years experience, I'd like to offer this suggestion to the young, inexperienced minister who didn't know how to handle a very bold married woman in his congregation who had designs on him:

Whenever I noticed a romantic twinkle in the eye of a woman in my congregation, I always checked to make sure it wasn't caused by a reflection from the gleam in my own.

The Rev. Walter Cowen
Nanticoke, Pa.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 12 years and have three children, 5, 9, and 10.

Pat makes a very good living selling. He's been with the same company ever since we've been married and has turned down many promotions because he didn't want to travel out of this state.

Now he has been offered what his boss calls "The opportunity of a lifetime"—but it would mean being away from home for two weeks out of every month. He turned it down.

His boss is cool to him, and thinks he's crazy. His parents are barely speaking to us because they think he made a big mistake, but he and I still think he made the right choice.

Abby, we like money as much as the next person, but we feel that during these years, when our children are growing up, they need a fulltime father, and to us that is more important than anything else.

Are we out of our minds?

Opening lead — five of hearts.

The practice of leading fourth best goes back more than a century to the days of Whist, grandparent of Contract Bridge. However, it wasn't until 1890 that R.F. Foster formulated the Rule of Eleven, a gadget designed to interpret the lead.

The Rule is extremely valuable to both sides. Many problems that arise during the play can be solved by its application. If a fourth-best card is led, the Rule is infallible.

Let's see how it applies here. Once declarer follows low from dummy on West's opening lead, the fate of the hand rests on which heart East chooses to play. If he plays the seven, the contract goes down; if he plays the ten or king, declarer can make the contract.

The Rule of Eleven supplies East with the right play. Applying the Rule, he knows that South has only one heart higher than the five. He determines this by subtracting five, the card led, from eleven, which tells him there are six cards higher than the five in the North, East and South hands.

East sees three cards higher in his own hand and two in dummy, so he knows declarer has only one card higher than the five.

As South opened with a notrump, he is extremely likely to have the ace of hearts. Playing the seven will consequently force the ace and hold declarer to one heart trick, while playing the ten or king allows South to make two heart tricks.

Declarer is helpless against the seven play. When he takes it with the ace and leads the king of clubs, West wins and plays another heart, trapping dummy's Q-9.

Since the diamonds don't break 3-3, and the spade finesse, if attempted, fails, South must go down regardless of how he plays the hand.

Emphasis On Science, Arts, Library In '70s

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln will place particular emphasis on the agricultural and life sciences, environmental and resource management, the performing arts, professional programs and library development through the 1970s.

Those goals are stated in a proposed revision of the NU five-year plan "Toward Excellence," and will require board of Regents approval on Dec. 14.

UNL "Areas of Excellence" will continue to be identified for special legislative funding, after extensive evaluation of competitive proposals by UNL departments.

The draft report of University-wide proposals includes, in no priority order, these recommendations for UNL:

The plan commits UNL to maintaining and improving its three traditional agricultural functions of teaching, research and extension. It calls for all college-level instruction in agriculture at state-financed colleges and universities in the state to be organized as part of the UNL College of Agriculture.

To move Nebraska from sixth place to fourth place in the U.S. in ag production and sales, the plan seeks to make the Ag College No. 1 among U.S. universities.

To achieve that goal, the plan calls for sharp increases in faculty salaries and positions where there's a developing or critical need, building improvements, increased funds for technicians, labor and operating expense to offset inflation and aggressive management of program funding.

Continued improvement is indicated for UNL life sciences, designated an "Area of Excellence" by the 1974 Legislature. A need for veterinary science programs is noted, but the plan rejects development of a veterinary medicine college "in the near future."

The plan supports strengthening the UNL engineering program, with simultaneous improvements in mathematics and computer science. It also calls for coordination of expertise and programs in all UNL departments and colleges dealing with conservation and natural resources, for the benefit of the state and the Great Plains.

The UNL library "is a most critical area of concern," the plan says; it currently is "inadequate and represents one of the major obstacles to achieving the desired level of academic excellence."

During the five-year period, the plan proposes a 50% increase in books, to 1.5 million volumes. That would represent half the total acquisition during the last 104 years.

The plan emphasizes "rapid development of a major program in opera-musical theatre, "because they both incorporate music, drama, art, literature, architecture and dance.

"Continued emphasis will be given to strengthen the quality of journalism offerings," also an "Area of Excellence" designate.

The plan notes the College of Law "needs a substantial infusion of new resources." Priorities include on-the-job training for law students, more interdisciplinary law-related programs such as the law-psychology doctorate program, also at undergraduate levels, continuing education for practicing Nebraska lawyers and basic law extension courses.

"Restorative dentistry is a high priority" in the UNL Dentistry College, the plan says, also calling for updating curriculum in the Architecture College.

The plan calls for modest additional UNL building needs, emphasizing instead the renovation of aging buildings and modernizing utilities.

Trial Followers Settle Food Stamps Conflict

By The Associated Press

Government officials and the occupants of the Wounded Knee barrack have reached an agreement to settle a dispute over food stamps, according to legal aid attorney Steven Swihart.

Swihart said under the agreement residents who came to Lincoln to live in the abandoned barrack during the Wounded Knee trials will be given food stamps and others will not.

When the trial followers first came to Lincoln, they were all given food stamps. Then federal officials ordered local officials to stop giving food stamps to all the residents of the barrack.

The barrack residents took their case to federal court. Senior U.S. District Judge Robert Van Pelt retained jurisdiction over the case for 90 days to make sure the agreement works out.

'More Boy Scouts'

Washington (UPI) — Criticized in some quarters for acting too much like a Boy Scout, President Ford said there should be "more Boy Scouts in government, not less."

Rural Service Plan Pushed

plan says, to allow "more sophisticated methods" to allocate NU funds.

The plan also supports developing programs to increase contributions to the University of Nebraska Foundation, and to increase alumni support of and participation with NU.

During the five-year period, the plan for the University of Nebraska-Omaha places emphasis on developing the social and behavioral sciences and various related professions, urban ecology, and the fine and performing arts.

Meanwhile, the NU Medical Center at Omaha will emphasize education of health professionals for practice in rural areas, expansion of medical residencies and nursing programs, and improvement of specialized health care for Nebraskans.

NU Responsibilities

In a section on NU's mission, the plan says the university expects to continue to be the only public school in Nebraska providing comprehensive education at the undergraduate, masters, doctoral and post-doctoral levels; education in the professions; basic and applied research; continuing education, extension, non-traditional, adult and cultural outreach programs; selected two-year programs related to the professions, and technical and advisory services to agriculture, business and government.

The recommendations were made on these basic assumptions:

One submits that NU enrollment of traditional college-age students will remain relatively stable, because the 1973 Nebraska School Census indicates the population of 18- to 22-year-olds will increase from 5-10% in the five-year period. NU may also expect modest increases in overall enrollments by women, minority persons, students over 25 years of age and off-campus students, the plan says.

Assuming there will be demand to improve the quality of university-based instructional programs, the plan says curriculum and teaching innovations will require increased funding. "Among the likely changes" are shorter time periods to earn certain degrees, more independent study, credit for off-campus educational experiences, more interdisciplinary programs, and wider use of technology.

Make NU Competitive

"It is critical that NU be recognized as a major research and graduate institution," the plan says, assuming Nebraskans and NU students will want programs that are competitive with other U.S. schools.

"The university will be asked to assume a greater leadership role in the economic, cultural and social development of Nebraska," the plan says, and NU must deal with developing the state's natural resources and agricultural and agri-business potential to an international scale.

The plan assumes that NU must respond to changes in public education from kindergarten through 12th grade, providing leadership and preparing public school teachers and administrators for those changes

Program Extensions

Because the nonagricultural business sector of Nebraska's economy is assumed to continue growing, the plan calls for NU to extend to business and engineering areas its education, research and extension programs

NU also assumes it will have to increase its efficiency in determining what benefits and results can be expected in direct relation to the costs of education and programs. "This evaluation process must realistically face the problems of program reduction, maintenance and improvement."

The draft plan notes "there will be a continuing need" to acquire land, but emphasis will be on changed use of NU-owned lands and renovation of buildings.

Tabitha Adopts Budget Of $1,477,304 For '75

Tabitha Home has adopted a budget of $1,477,304 for 1975, including more than $200,000 for two community service projects, Meals on Wheels and Home Health Care.

Harold Norby, Tabitha executive director, reported that the Meals on Wheels program will operate on $57,283 in 1975. The program provides home-served, nutritionally-balanced meals to elderly or handicapped persons who cannot otherwise get them.

Norby said the Home Health program, which provides home health care for the elderly following hospitalization, will operate on $149,808.

In addition, State Sen. William Hasebroock of West Point, and Mrs. Dorothy Decker and Carroll Thompson, both of Lincoln, were re-elected to serve as presidents of Tabitha's three corporations.

Hasebroock was named to another term as president of the board directors, Mrs Decker to another term as president of the Tabitha Village Corp., and Thompson to another term as president of Tabitha Development Corp.

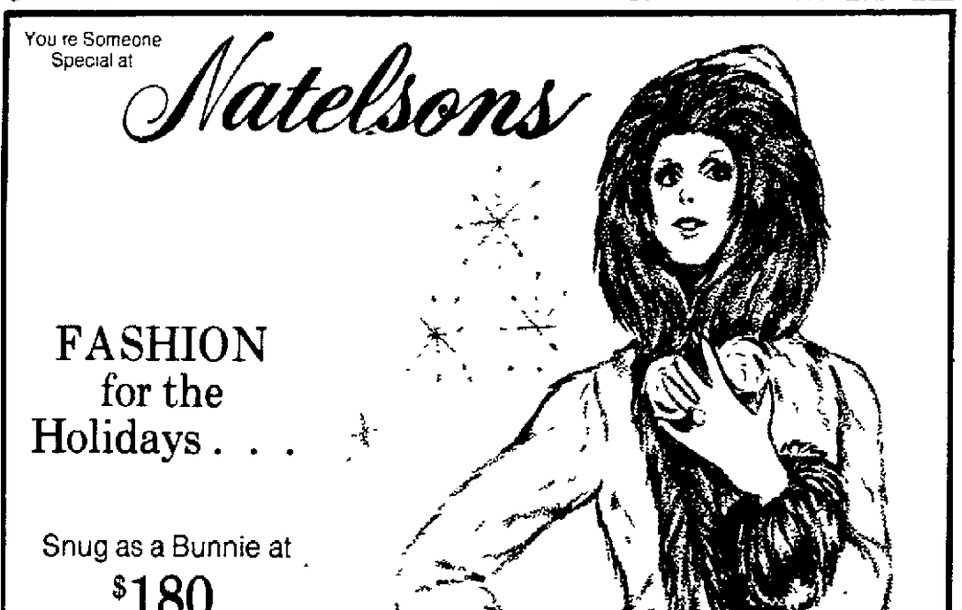

Besides Hasebroock, other officers of the board of directors are Mrs. Decker, secretary; Eric Rasmussen, Fairmont, vice-president; and Jack Edstrom, Wahoo, treasurer.

New members of the board are Mrs. June Schorr and Ronald Jensen, both of Lincoln, and Mrs. Renee Ziebarth of Wilcox.

Emphasis On Science, Arts, Library In '70s

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln will place particular emphasis on the agricultural and life sciences, environmental and resource management, the performing arts, professional programs and library development through the 1970s.

Those goals are stated in a proposed revision of the NU five-year plan "Toward Excellence," and will require board of Regents approval on Dec. 14.

UNL "Areas of Excellence" will continue to be identified for special legislative funding, after extensive evaluation of competitive proposals by UNL departments.

The draft report of University-wide proposals includes, in no priority order, these recommendations for UNL:

The plan commits UNL to maintaining and improving its three traditional agricultural functions of teaching, research and extension. It calls for all college-level instruction in agriculture at state-financed colleges and universities in the state to be organized as part of the UNL College of Agriculture.

To move Nebraska from sixth place to fourth place in the U.S. in ag production and sales, the plan seeks to make the Ag College No. 1 among U.S. universities.

To achieve that goal, the plan calls for sharp increases in faculty salaries and positions where there's a developing or critical need, building improvements, increased funds for technicians, labor and operating expense to offset inflation and aggressive management of program funding.

Continued improvement is indicated for UNL life sciences, designated an "Area of Excellence" by the 1974 Legislature. A need for veterinary science programs is noted, but the plan rejects development of a veterinary medicine college "in the near future."

The plan supports strengthening the UNL engineering program, with simultaneous improvements in mathematics and computer science. It also calls for coordination of expertise and programs in all UNL departments and colleges dealing with conservation and natural resources, for the benefit of the state and the Great Plains.

The UNL library "is a most critical area of concern," the plan says; it currently is "inadequate and represents one of the major obstacles to achieving the desired level of academic excellence."

During the five-year period, the plan proposes a 50% increase in books, to 1.5 million volumes. That would represent half the total acquisition during the last 104 years.

The plan emphasizes "rapid development of a major program in opera-musical theatre, "because they both incorporate music, drama, art, literature, architecture and dance.

"Continued emphasis will be given to strengthen the quality of journalism offerings," also an "Area of Excellence" designate.

The plan notes the College of Law "needs a substantial infusion of new resources." Priorities include on-the-job training for law students, more interdisciplinary law-related programs such as the law-psychology doctorate program, also at undergraduate levels, continuing education for practicing Nebraska lawyers and basic law extension courses.

"Restorative dentistry is a high priority" in the UNL Dentistry College, the plan says, also calling for updating curriculum in the Architecture College.

The plan calls for modest additional UNL building needs, emphasizing instead the renovation of aging buildings and modernizing utilities.

Trial Followers Settle Food Stamps Conflict

By The Associated Press

Government officials and the occupants of the Wounded Knee barrack have reached an agreement to settle a dispute over food stamps, according to legal aid attorney Steven Swihart.

Swihart said under the agreement residents who came to Lincoln to live in the abandoned barrack during the Wounded Knee trials will be given food stamps and others will not.

When the trial followers first came to Lincoln, they were all given food stamps. Then federal officials ordered local officials to stop giving food stamps to all the residents of the barrack.

The barrack residents took their case to federal court. Senior U.S. District Judge Robert Van Pelt retained jurisdiction over the case for 90 days to make sure the agreement works out.

'More Boy Scouts'

Washington (UPI) — Criticized in some quarters for acting too much like a Boy Scout, President Ford said there should be "more Boy Scouts in government, not less."

Rural Service Plan Pushed

plan says, to allow "more sophisticated methods" to allocate NU funds.

The plan also supports developing programs to increase contributions to the University of Nebraska Foundation, and to increase alumni support of and participation with NU.

During the five-year period, the plan for the University of Nebraska-Omaha places emphasis on developing the social and behavioral sciences and various related professions, urban ecology, and the fine and performing arts.

Meanwhile, the NU Medical Center at Omaha will emphasize education of health professionals for practice in rural areas, expansion of medical residencies and nursing programs, and improvement of specialized health care for Nebraskans.

NU Responsibilities

In a section on NU's mission, the plan says the university expects to continue to be the only public school in Nebraska providing comprehensive education at the undergraduate, masters, doctoral and post-doctoral levels; education in the professions; basic and applied research; continuing education, extension, non-traditional, adult and cultural outreach programs; selected two-year programs related to the professions, and technical and advisory services to agriculture, business and government.

The recommendations were made on these basic assumptions:

One submits that NU enrollment of traditional college-age students will remain relatively stable, because the 1973 Nebraska School Census indicates the population of 18- to 22-year-olds will increase from 5-10% in the five-year period. NU may also expect modest increases in overall enrollments by women, minority persons, students over 25 years of age and off-campus students, the plan says.

Assuming there will be demand to improve the quality of university-based instructional programs, the plan says curriculum and teaching innovations will require increased funding. "Among the likely changes" are shorter time periods to earn certain degrees, more independent study, credit for off-campus educational experiences, more interdisciplinary programs, and wider use of technology.

Make NU Competitive

"It is critical that NU be recognized as a major research and graduate institution," the plan says, assuming Nebraskans and NU students will want programs that are competitive with other U.S. schools.

High Court Argument Hits Crete Teacher Pay Ruling

By United Press International

An attorney told the State Supreme Court Thursday the decision of the State Court of Industrial Relations in a Crete teacher salary dispute was "arbitrary and capricious."

William Harding of Lincoln, representing the school district, said during oral arguments before the high court the industrial court applied the wrong salary standards in reaching its decision.

Before the Supreme Court is an industrial court order for a base teacher salary of $6,775 for the 1972-73 school year plus scheduled increases of 4 per cent each for additional education and experience.

Urges Other Comparison

Harding said the court should have used the salaries of the central 10 athletic conference for comparison purposes.

That was the standard used in an earlier Seward teacher salary case, the attorney argued, and therefore the precedent for using the conference was set and should have been used again. Both Seward and Crete are in the conference.

Harding said had the conference been used for salary comparison purposes, rather than other schools, the salary order issued by the court might have been lower.

Attorney Ted Kessner, representing the Crete teachers, disagreed, saying the industrial court never intended to use only athletic conferences as standards. In the first place, he noted, athletic conferences are not set up by the state.

'No 'Unreasonable' Showing'

Further, he contended, there is no showing the court was "unreasonable" in reaching its salary decision.

Harding also said the income protection insurance plan ordered by the court was a "classic case of comparing apples and oranges."

The court's order said the district should pay out $5 per teacher for income protection insurance but did not go into the plan itself.

Harding said the court's order was based on dollar payments in other districts and was therefore a case of going by the "dollar spent rather than the benefits received."

Madison County Election Procedures Are Argued

By United Press International

An attorney told the Supreme Court Thursday the only way Madison County could return to electing commissioners by districts would be through the referendum process.

However the attorney for the opposing side in a legal battle begun in 1971 and which no longer involves the original parties disagreed.

George Moyer of Madison said to hold that only a vote of the people could bring back district elections, done away with by a temporary court order issued in 1971 which also rejected a district plan approved by the county board, would "utterly and completely defeat the purpose" of laws on the subject.

Robert Otte of Norfolk contended that even though the district court in 1971 rejected the plan offered, by inaction a 1973 law became operative. That law says the only way to change the way in which commissioners are elected is by a vote of the people.

Order Said Temporary

Moyer contended the county was a district election county even through the 1971 court order said commissioners would be elected at large. He said that order was only temporary because the county commissioners were supposed to come back with a new plan.

He added that just because a new law was passed doesn't mean the board was relieved of its obligation to present a new plan.

But Otte countered the intent of the 1973 law was clear. He said "it is self-executing. If they (the county commissioners) do nothing, they will run at large."

That wasn't what the legislature had in mind, Moyer said. The whole idea was to provide a means whereby the people could bring about a change, he said.

"The people have not decided in this case," Moyer said. "Madison County has been transformed into a county in which the county commissioners are elected at large by inaction on the part of the county board."

Offered Twice

In the case, the county commissioners not only offered a district plan in 1971, but also earlier this year.

Moyer said his clients felt the 1971 plan was valid despite the ruling of the court. But he said if that one wasn't, then the newest one was.

The 1974 plan, however, was also declared void by the district court because the meeting during which it was adopted was in violation of Nebraska's open meetings law and also because of the 1973 law on referendum changes.

The lower court said the notice for the latest meeting did not contain a provision which said an agenda was available to the public in the county clerk's office as is required by the open meetings law.

Moyer contended the ommission was not enough of a violation to void the meeting and the adoption of the district plan.

Operators Of 'Pussy Cat' Say Law Unconstitutional

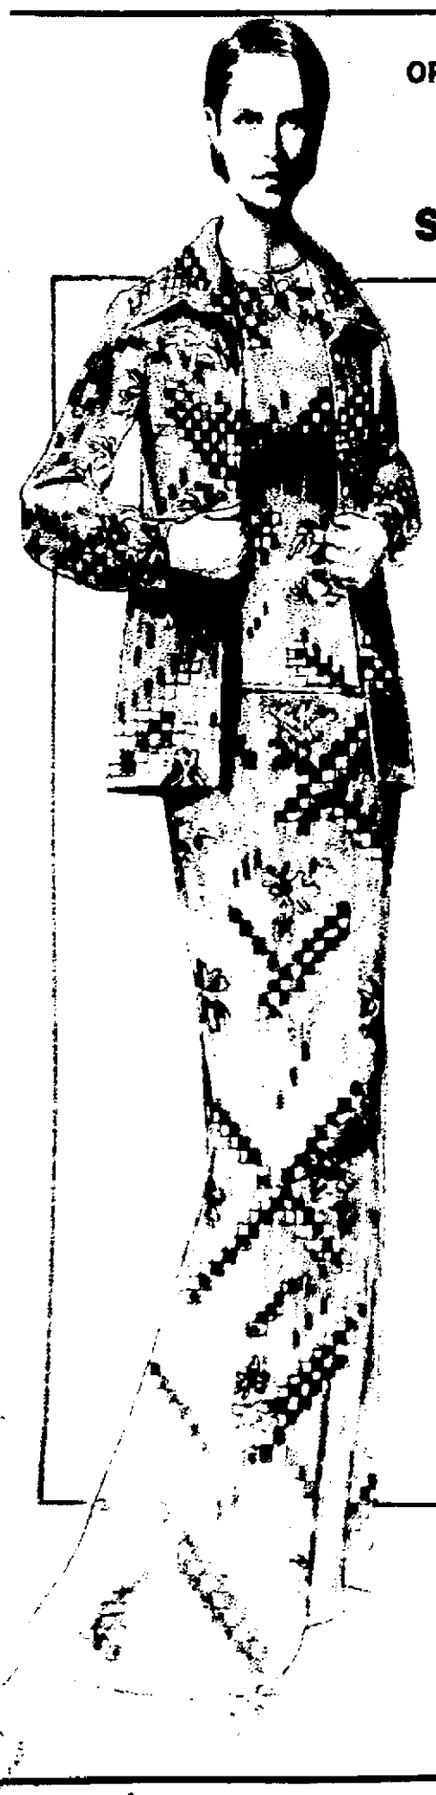

Attorneys for Omaha's Pussy Cat Theater told the State Supreme Court Thursday the laws under which the movie "Deep Throat" was declared obscene are unconstitutional.

Theater operators were charged with distribution of obscene materials after the theater, during an alleged private showing, was raided in May of last year.

The Douglas County District Court found the theater operators guilty of violating the state obscenity law and a $1,000 fine was imposed.

The attorneys argued in written briefs the obscenity law is invalid because the standards applied in determining the movie to be obscene were not the ones deemed usable by other courts.

The attorneys also said the law failed to require proof that the operators knew the film to be obscene in order to get a conviction.

Luedtke Says Time Right For Penal Reform

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The chairman of Legislature's Judiciary Committee said Thursday he believes the climate is right for passage of major penal reform measures in the 1975 Legislature.

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln said in an interview, "If it doesn't happen this session, it won't be done."

To help get it moving, Luedtke plans to schedule a special committee meeting prior to the Jan 8 start of the 1975 Legislature.

Correctional Plan

Among other things, he said, the committee will be discussing the new 10-year correctional plan drawn up by the State Department of Corrections.

Asked for his opinion of the 75-page plan, Luedtke said "I just received my copy Wednesday. It's far too involved for me to comment upon right now.

"The Judiciary Committee staff will be going over it."

Basically, he said, it is the same blueprint for upgrading the Nebraska Penal Complex in Lincoln and expanding rehabilitation programs set forth by the committee in past years.

Desires 'Dovetail'

He said the plan apparently "dovetails" well with the committee's desires.

Luedtke and Sen. John Cavanaugh, who in the past have found themselves at odds over certain parts of penal reform proposals, have agreed to sponsor a penal reform package in the upcoming session. Luedtke said the package will include new construction at the Men's Reformatory and Penitentiary in Lincoln and a community corrections program similar to one in Des Moines, Iowa.

Luedtke said he does have some concerns about the administration's 10 year plan. However, he said he will save those comments for the committee meeting.

Asked if he thought the current recession might hurt the chances for passage of a penal reform package, Luedtke said, "I don't think we should hold it up.

"None of these expenditures will come to a head until 1976-77."

When the time comes to fund the construction, Luedtke said he feels Nebraska's revenue sharing funds (if still available) should be used. In the past Nebraska has used its revenue sharing funds for such things as increased state aid to schools.

He said the capital construction would be a more appropriate use of revenue sharing funds.

The 10-year plan, released Wednesday by Corrections Director Joseph Vitek, calls for construction of a $10 million medium-minimum security unit to replace the Men's Reformatory by 1978 and new cellhouses costing $3 million at the Penitentiary by 1979.

The total capital construction cost in the plan totals $21 million; the new programs, such as pretrial release, would cost another $10 million.

By United Press International

Net taxable retail sales by Nebraska firms were $4.6 billion in 1973 compared with $4 billion in 1972, Dr. Edward L. Hauswald of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said Thursday.

The 15% gain reflected a mixture of changes in the level of prices and physical volume, according to Hauswald, associate director of the university's Bureau of Business Research.

He noted the average per person consumption increased considerably in 1973 and this increase was evident even after discounting a 7.4% rise in commodity prices and a 1% estimated increase in population.

Hauswald said first and second quarter 1974 data indicate a continuing rise in per capita real volume of retail activity, although there has been a decrease in the rate of the increase.

Camp Elected President By County Officials Group

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Camp succeeds Bruno Fangmeier of Hebron.

Other newly-elected officers are John Paris, Dawes County Commissioner from Crawford, vice president; Henry Purdie of Pierce County, secretary-treasurer.

The importance of continuing federal revenue sharing to counties was emphasized by representatives of the National Association of Counties (NACO) and Congresswoman-elect Virginia Smith from Nebraska's Third Congressional District.

The challenge for county officials, according to NACO President Stanley Smoot of Salt Lake City, is to "help Congress know that no longer can local government depend entirely on property tax."

Urged To Work

He urged officials to work with their congressional delegation -and show them what the counties have accomplished with their share of federal revenue sharing funds.

Public awareness of what federal revenue dollars have done for local government can be made possible through the news media and posting of signs outside structures and improvements paid for with revenue sharing funds.

Mrs. Smith told the officials that county government needs "to be watchful" because there is a move in Washington to change the formula so that the rural areas such as Nebraska will get less of the total money proportionately.

Bernard Hildenbrand, executive director of the National Association of Counties, told county officials that if reducing spending is the proper remedy for the current problems in the economy, "we want to do our part."

'Massive Ripoff'

However, he said, it "doesn't seem right for us to reduce spending and . . . let the oil companies enjoy one of the most massive ripoffs in history."

"We are facing a tough problem," he said, emphasizing the need for organized support in Washington.

He cited the revenue sharing, which allows counties one-third of the total funding, as one area in which the counties were successful because of strong, organized backing from the local level.

However, he noted, without backing in Washington from the local level, counties throughout the nation will accomplish nothing.

Safety Act Cited

Citing the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) as an example of what happens when legislation "gets through without proper consideration."

He said one small county in Iowa has spent $50,000 defending its position which allegedly violated OSHA regulations.

Reporting to the officials on the energy situation, State Tax Commissioner William Peters, who is the state's fuel allocation officer, was critical of the mandatory conservation proposal.

"I think the talk now of mandatory conservation is ludicrous," he said.

Peters said he feels the idea is "totally unrealistic," particularly when such a proposal is made before the voluntary conservation campaign gets started.

'Need A Chance'

"We need a reasonable chance to get started with the voluntary program . . . which can do more than we'll ever do with a mandatory conservation program," he said.

He emphasized the importance of getting a voluntary program by which the "energy consumption spree" may be stopped.

"We can't continue on with today's uses of energy and still maintain the necessary supply," he said.

Peters said he feels there will be an "even more serious problem in the next 10 to 15 years" if some action isn't taken now, but that he doesn't see mandatory conservation to be the answer.

If given a chance, he said, he is confident the public will respond to a voluntary program.

Increased costs have slowed road construction in the state considerably, Sen. Leslie Stull, chairman of the Legislative Council committee on transportation, told the officials.

Plans Held Up

He reported that plans for $40 million worth of projects are ready, but due to the lack of sufficient revenue, they can't be contracted for.

The counties, he said, have reported costs have risen about 38% this year while the state reports costs have taken a 50% hike in recent months.

Ben Camp

Counties never lose their rights to the entire 66-foot width of county roads to which they have right-of-way regardless of whether those roads are being used or not.

However, he said, unless the land owner has given the county an agreement for use of the right-of-way, in which case the title remains with the land owner, or in cases of prescriptive rights, the counties must pay for damages to acquire the right-of-way.

Entitled To It

If the county has paid damages for the full 66 feet, it is entitled to it, but if there is no record that the county has paid for the full 66 feet, it must pay the landowner for the portion for which damages were not allowed, Douglas said.

Under prescriptive rights, if the county has used the maintained the road for more than 10 years, it becomes the county's road, and the county is not liable for damages, he explained.

One county surveyor said if the property owners ever find out that the counties must pay for damages, "it will cost many counties a lot of money."

"We probably ought to keep that fact a secret," he said.

Change To OK Parratt Draws Chambers' Fire

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Ernest Chambers says he will try to block confirmation of Joseph Vitek as state corrections director unless Vitek fires Mrs. Edith Whiting, director of education at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Chambers also said he questioned Vitek's changing of job qualifications to allow Robert Parratt, a long-time corrections employe, to become warden.

Chambers spoke with two reporters, and each felt Chambers had said Parratt should be replaced, but not fired from the department. "If you got that impression then you misconstrued what I said," Chambers said Thursday. "I definitely feel Mrs. Whiting should be fired, that is correct, but I haven't decided whether I feel Parratt should be removed as the warden. The question is whether the job qualifications should have been waived for him," Chambers said.

Earlier reports did not say Chambers felt Parratt should be fired.

'We're Asking Independence'—AIM Official

"We're not saying we want a new car or a new house or a lot of comfort. We want to govern ourselves," Thomas said.

Thomas said that if the U.S. government had lived up to the treaties made with Indian nations "we wouldn't have the problems we have today."

Thomas also spoke of the growth of AIM since its start in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., in 1968 and, touching on Indian religion, said the four colors of man, the four colors of the season, and the four directions form the Sacred Hoop.

The Sacred Hoop, Thomas said, was broken when white men came from Europe. He said Indian teachings prophesied there would be confusion in the world when the Sacred Hoop was broken and that one day there would be a purification day.

The American Indian Movement, Thomas said, is built around "our spirituality and our religion."

20 People Will Testify At Lincoln Trial—Banks

Minneapolis (UPI) — Dennis Banks, American Indian Movement leader acquitted in the Wounded Knee trial, said Thursday 20 persons from the Twin Cities would testify Dec. 16 at Lincoln on the 1868 treaty.

The treaty hearings directly affect six persons found guilty of charges in the Wounded Knee occupation. Banks said. He noted that Judge Warren Urbom has deferred sentencing of the six until after the treaty hearings.

"Congress recognized the 1868 treaty but there has been no legal enforcement of the treaty," he said.

Attorneys for Banks and Russell Means, also acquitted in the trial at St. Paul, tried unsuccessfully to insert the treaty as evidence in the trial.

U.S. Judge Fred Nichol dropped charges against Banks and Means for alleged governmental misconduct, but he would not allow the treaty as evidence.

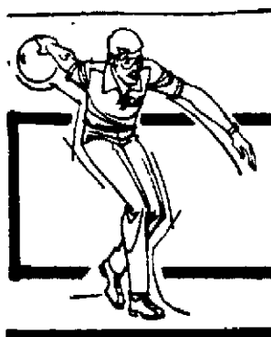

The tiny South Dakota hamlet of Wounded Knee was occupied for 71 days in 1973 by American Indian Movement members.

Police Nab 15 In Drug Raids

About 85 pounds of marijuana, most of it from one residence, were seized Wednesday night when authorities raided three Lincoln homes.

The marijuana has an illegal street sale value of around $8,500. Also seized were more than 2,000 amphetamine tablets, small quantities of hashish and LSD and drug paraphernalia.

Beef Protein Conversion Defended

By JOEL THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Grand Island — The admonition that Americans should eat less beef in response to world hunger is a "simplistic solution," a spokesman for the National Livestock and Meat Board said here Thursday.

John L. Huston of Chicago, vice president of the research and promotional organization, addressed delegates of the Nebraska Farmers Union during the last day of their 61st annual state convention.

Huston said beef protein conversion is not as wasteful of grain as critics contend, when taking into account the forage eaten by calves before they reach fattening size.

Even if Americans were to eat less meat, he said, there is no distribution system to effective deliver it to the world's needy.

Huston discouraged "finger-pointing" among elements of the meat industry over the price spread controversy, declaring that such dissension would only induce the consumer to buy less meat.

He congratulated the Farmers Union for not supporting calf slaughters staged by the National Farmers Organization. While expressing sympathy with farmers' motives in the action, Huston said it was poorly timed to coincide with the Rome food conference, and only alienated the public.

Resolutions adopted by the delegates in a business session included favoring establishment of strategic grain reserves incorporating price protection for farmers, and opposing export controls on farm commodities except when prices are 120% of parity or greater.

The assembly also urged federal investigation of beef price spreads and high fertilizer prices.

In resolutions relating to the environment, the delegates supported state legislation for a five-cent deposit on beverage containers, while advocating a bounty on coyote, foxes and raccoons. The delegates opposed the Army Corps of Engineers' attempt to gain regulatory control over the Platte River, and also rejected proposed reduction in federal farm conservation programs.

In other action the delegates resolved support for state no-fault insurance legislation, and the prohibition of corporate farming. An increase in the speed limit on interstate highways to 65 miles per hour also gained support, as did inter-basin water transfer — but only when the water is unneeded in the basin of its origin.

Elected delegate to the Farmers Union national convention in Portland, Ore., was Ernest Petersen of Grand Island. Ralph Lubeck of Stamford was elected Third District director, and Louis Skokan of Verdigre was elected director for the Seventh District.

Potatoes In Great Shape, Despite Drought

One Nebraska crop that came through the 1974 drought in great shape was potatoes.

The fall potato crop averaged 240 hundredweight per acre, 10 more than in 1973 and 20 more than in 1972, according to the Nov. 1 estimate of the State Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

Summer potatoes averaged only 150 hundredweight per acre, but there were some instances of exceptional yields, according to Dr. R. B. O'Keefe, University of Nebraska-Lincoln potato breeder.

One successful grower was Paul Tyler of Central City, whose crop ranged from 225 to 368 hundredweight, he said.

Gene Shaver of Scottsbluff had a 130-acre field that made 348 hundredweight per acre of fall potatoes.

At an average market price of $3.50 per hundredweight, the estimated 1,512,000 hundredweight total crop would be worth $8,292,000 to the state's economy, O'Keefe said.

However, 3,096 acres of the estimated 10,000 planted to potatoes were used to produce seed. Of these potatoes, 70% should grade the required U.S. No. 1 and be worth $5.50 to 6.50 per hundredweight.

HARVESTING . . . summer potatoes on Bob Edwards' farm south of Scottsbluff.

Two developments have built a national market for Nebraska seed potatoes, according to O'Keefe:

— New varieties that are excellent for processing. Processing potatoes are 65% of the Nebraska crop; fresh table potatoes are only 13%.

— Development of virus X-free seed potatoes by university scientists. Virus X is a seed-borne virus of potatoes. Nebraska scientists used a laboratory technique known as tissue culture to produce virus X-free plants from tiny pieces of virus-free tissue.

Of the 20 or more varieties of seed potatoes grown in Nebraska this year, five were developed by NU Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources scientists, O'Keefe said. The most popular variety, grown for seed on 552.5 acres, is Haig, a variety developed primarily for use as a processing potato, but also an excellent fresh table potato.

O'Keefe also foresees high protein potatoes. He has some selections that run as high as 15% highly digestible protein.

"I'd say in the next five and not over 10 years, we'll have the high protein in commercial varieties," he said.

This could have implications in connection with the world food crisis, he believes.

People can live well on a diet that is mostly potatoes, he said, and not get fat.

Production has moved from bottom land around Scottsbluff to sandier soils in the tableland under center pivot irrigation systems.

Box Butte County is probably the largest producer of potatoes, but there also is production in the Gibbon area and around Grand Island and Central City.

All potatoes in Nebraska are irrigated, O'Keefe said.

Nebraska potato acreage would double if a new processing plant, producing dehydrated potatoes, frozen french fries, etc., were to be built in the Panhandle, he said.

An Idaho firm has been investigating the possibility. They would need to contract 10,000 acres to keep their plant busy, O'Keefe said.

Low Cost Health Insurance Aim Of Conservative's Bill

State Sen. John Murphy, often considered one of the most conservative members of the Unicameral, said Thursday he was drafting legislation which would make low cost health insurance available to the poor and near poor.

Murphy, senator from South Sioux City, said he did not want to discuss details of the plan, but said he felt Nebraska should develop a health insurance plan for the poor and "near poor" before it was mandated by Congress.

Murphy said the term "near poor" came from Congress and he was not sure what it meant. He said the term was "as wild as has come out." Murphy said someone with an income up to $15,000 per year could possibly be considered "near poor" if little of the $15,000 was available for health insurance.

Murphy's plan calls for a state "re-insurance pool" to pay medical expenses of the individuals covered under the plan.

Murphy said he did not want to say who would pay the funds into the pool because he was still working with the Nebraska Department of Insurance and the insurance industry to work out the details of the plan.

He explained that insurance companies now set up re-insurance pools to cover losses an insurance company might receive from insuring high risk drivers.

The South Sioux City lawmaker said the law would require that all health insurance companies offer the coverage.

He said the plan would also require all Nebraska health insurance policies to include a catastrophic illness clause. He said the clause would basically keep a family from being wiped out from a severe illness. After a family spent $5,000 as the result of an illness, the insurance would cover additional expenses up to $250,000.

Ag Committee Okays Conservation Funds

Washington . . . Farm soil and water conservation funds authorized for use in 1973 and 1974 would be made available for work done in 1975 through a bill passed by the House Agriculture Committee Thursday.

The bill was co-sponsored by Reps. Charles Thone, R-Neb., and Bob Bergland, D-Minn. The language in their bill is identical to a bill already approved by the full Senate.

"This carryover is needed because of the start and stop, feast and famine circumstances that have occured in farm conservation programs. The administration impounded the 1973 funds so there was no work last year. When a federal court ruled that those funds should be made available in 1974 along with the regular funds for this year, farmers and contractors couldn't get geared up fast enough to use the funds," Thone explained.

The work, known as the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) in 1973 and as the Rural Environmental Conservation Program in 1974, will be called the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) in 1975. Under all three names the federal government has shared in the cost of work to prevent soil erosion and rapid runoff of water on farms.

"America has no resources more precious than its topsoil and water. If we are to feed ourselves and much of the rest of the world, it is absolutely essential that we keep our good earth intact and have the maximum utilization of water," Thone said.

Ex-Omaha Man Dies In Mishap

Omaha (AP) — Timothy Cottrell, 20, a former Omaha resident, was killed Tuesday when he stepped onto a highway while working with a surveying crew in New Orleans, La., according to his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Cottrell of Omaha.

Young Cottrell, a 1972 graduate of Benson High School, moved from Omaha to New Orleans last January.

Boy's Condition Still 'Critical'

Ten-year-old Robin Jordan, of 320 N. 21st, remained in "critical" condition at Lincoln General Hospital Thursday.

Jordan has been listed in critical condition since he fell from a bannister onto a marble floor at Elliott School Monday.

Collision Kills Woman, 62, Of Comstock

The patrol said Mrs. Nordstrom was driving her car east when it collided into a farm tractor driven by Alfons Bonne, 65, of Ord.

The patrol said Bonne's westbound tractor was making a left turn when the collision occured. The Valley County sheriff's office said Bonne was not seriously injured.

Omaha Kidnap Suspect Held

Omaha (AP) — A suspect in the kidnaping of a year-old child from his Omaha home last October was arrested in Longmont, Colo., Wednesday, police said.

Sgt. Robert Olson said he has been informed that a man who was hospitalized in Longmont for drug overdose was being held in connection with the kidnaping of Albert Worley of Omaha.

The boy was found in Mexico and was returned home safely.

Allocations Regulations Hearing Set

State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters announced Thursday that a public hearing would be held Dec. 19 in the Capitol to hear testimony on the state's fuel allocation regulations.

George Dworak, state fuel allocation officer, said the regulations were basically the same as the ones introduced last January. The state has been receiving an emergency reserve of fuel from suppliers and distributing it to hardship cases.

Dworak said that the office is better set up to handle emergency fuel allocations this winter. He said he believed there would be enough fuel to take care of emergency needs unless the winter was extremely severe.

He said federal officials required the public hearing.

Dancer Returns To MGM Studio

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — "You never realize that good things are going to be over some day," Cyd Charisse reflected during a sentimental return to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

After an absence of a dozen years, Miss Charisse has returned to the lot where she started as a toe-dancer in "Ziegfeld Follies" 30 years ago.

She was back to play a dramatic role in the television series "Medical Center" and as she gazed around the half-empty commissary, she remarked:

"I grew up at this studio, and it didn't seem unusual to see all those stars. Nowadays you'd never find so many names in one commissary. In fact, there aren't that many stars."

She had returned to play a star of bygone film musicals, a dancer who gave up her career when she married a doctor (Joseph Campanella).

"When he walks out on her after 19 years, she takes to booze and ends up in a bar where one of her old movies is playing on television," Miss Charisse explained.

The "Medical Center" producers chose a number from "Sombrero" — conveniently, the series is made by MGM. To prove that she is the dancer on the tube, the doctor's wife re-enacts the number for the bar patrons.

Nice scene, but there's no similarity to the life of Cyd Charisse. She has been married to singer Tony Martin for 25 years and works more consistently that when she was under contract to MGM.

Her last MGM film was the nonmusical "Two Weeks in Another Town" in 1962.

Since then she has done other films, television specials, stage musicals including six months of "No, No, Nanette" in Australia. Now she spends most of her time on nightclub and theater tours with her husband.

Luedtke Says Time Right For Penal Reform

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The chairman of Legislature's Judiciary Committee said Thursday he believes the climate is right for passage of major penal reform measures in the 1975 Legislature.

Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln said in an interview, "If it doesn't happen this session, it won't be done."

To help get it moving, Luedtke plans to schedule a special committee meeting prior to the Jan. 8 start of the 1975 Legislature.

Correctional Plan

Among other things, he said, the committee will be discussing the new 10-year correctional plan drawn up by the State Department of Corrections.

Asked for his opinion of the 75-page plan, Luedtke said "I just received my copy Wednesday. It's far too involved for me to comment upon right now.

"The Judiciary Committee staff will be going over it."

Basically, he said, it is the same blueprint for upgrading the Nebraska Penal Complex in Lincoln and expanding rehabilitation programs set forth by the committee in past years.

Desires 'Dovetail'

He said the plan apparently "dovetails" well with the committee's desires.

Luedtke and Sen. John Cavanaugh, who in the past have found themselves at odds over certain parts of penal reform proposals, have agreed to sponsor a penal reform package in the upcoming session. Luedtke said the package will include new construction at the Men's Reformatory and Penitentiary in Lincoln and a community corrections program similar to one in Des Moines, Iowa.

Luedtke said he does have some concerns about the administration's 10 year plan. However, he said he will save those comments for the committee meeting.

Asked if he thought the current recession might hurt the chances for passage of a penal reform package, Luedtke said, "I don't think we should hold it up.

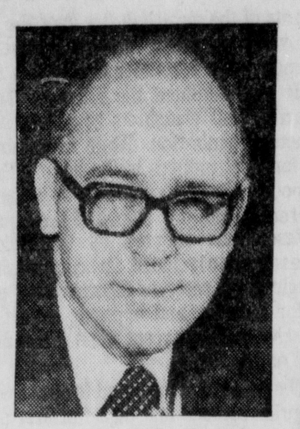

"None of these expenditures will come to a head until 1976-77."

When the time comes to fund the construction, Luedtke said he feels Nebraska's revenue sharing funds (if still available) should be used. In the past Nebraska has used its revenue sharing funds for such things as increased state aid to schools.

He said the capital construction would be a more appropriate use of revenue sharing funds.

The 10-year plan, released Wednesday by Corrections Director Joseph Vitek, calls for construction of a $10 million medium-minimum security unit to replace the Men's Reformatory by 1978 and new cellhouses costing $3 million at the Penitentiary by 1979.

The total capital construction cost in the plan totals $21 million; the new programs, such as pretrial release, would cost another $10 million.

Roland Luedtke

By United Press International

Net taxable retail sales by Nebraska firms were $4.6 billion in 1973 compared with $4 billion in 1972, Dr. Edward L. Hauswald of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said Thursday.

The 15% gain reflected a mixture of changes in the level of prices and physical volume, according to Hauswald, associate director of the university's Bureau of Business Research.

He noted the average per person consumption increased considerably in 1973 and this increase was evident even after discounting a 7.4% rise in commodity prices and a 1% estimated increase in population.

Hauswald said first and second quarter 1974 data indicate a continuing rise in per capita real volume of retail activity, although there has been a decrease in the rate of the increase.

Camp succeeds Bruno Fangmeier of Hebron.

Other newly-elected officers are John Paris, Dawes County Commissioner from Crawford, vice president; Henry Purdie of Pierce County, secretary-treasurer.

The importance of continuing federal revenue sharing to counties was emphasized by representatives of the National Association of Counties (NACO) and Congresswoman-elect Virginia Smith from Nebraska's Third Congressional District.

The challenge for county officials, according to NACO President Stanley Smoot of Salt Lake City, is to "help Congress know that no longer can local government depend entirely on property tax."

Urged To Work

He urged officials to work with their congressional delegation and show them what the counties have accomplished with their share of federal revenue sharing funds.

Public awareness of what federal revenue dollars have done for local government can be made possible through the news media and posting of signs outside structures and improvements paid for with revenue sharing funds.

Mrs. Smith told the officials that county government needs "to be watchful" because there is a move in Washington to change the formula so that the rural areas such as Nebraska will get less of the total money proportionately.

Bernard Hildenbrand, executive director of the National Association of Counties, told county officials that if reducing spending is the proper remedy for the current problems in the economy, "we want to do our part."

'Massive Ripoff'

However, he said, it "doesn't seem right for us to reduce spending and . . . let the oil companies enjoy one of the most massive ripoffs in history."

"We are facing a tough problem," he said, emphasizing the need for organized support in Washington.

He cited the revenue sharing, which allows counties one-third of the total funding, as one area in which the counties were successful because of strong, organized backing from the local level.

However, he noted, without backing in Washington from the local level, counties throughout the nation will accomplish nothing.

Safety Act Cited

Citing the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) as an example of what happens when legislation "gets through without proper consideration."

He said one small county in Iowa has spent $50,000 defending its position which allegedly violated OSHA regulations.

Reporting to the officials on the energy situation, State Tax Commissioner William Peters, who is the state's fuel allocation officer, was critical of the mandatory conservation proposal.

"I think the talk now of mandatory conservation is ludicrous," he said.

Peters said he feels the idea is "totally unrealistic," particularly when such a proposal is made before the voluntary conservation campaign gets started.

'Need A Chance'

"We need a reasonable chance to get started with the voluntary program . . . which can do more than we'll ever do with a mandatory conservation program," he said.

He emphasized the importance of getting a voluntary program by which the "energy consumption spree" may be stopped.

"We can't continue on with today's uses of energy and still maintain the necessary supply," he said.

Peters said he feels there will be an "even more serious problem in the next 10 to 15 years" if some action isn't taken now, but that he doesn't see mandatory conservation to be the answer.

If given a chance, he said, he is confident the public will respond to a voluntary program.

Increased costs have slowed road construction in the state considerably, Sen. Leslie Stull, chairman of the Legislative Council committee on transportation, told the officials.

Plans Held Up

He reported that plans for $40 million worth of projects are ready, but due to the lack of sufficient revenue, they can't be contracted for.

The counties, he said, have reported costs have risen about 38% this year while the state reports costs have taken a 50% hike in recent months.

Ben Camp

Counties never lose their rights to the entire 66-foot width of county roads to which they have right-of-way regardless of whether those roads are being used or not.

However, he said, unless the land owner has given the county an agreement for use of the right-of-way, in which case the title remains with the land owner, or in cases of prescriptive rights, the counties must pay for damages to acquire the right-of-way.

Entitled To It

If the county has paid damages for the full 66 feet, it is entitled to it, but if there is no record that the county has paid for the full 66 feet, it must pay the landowner for the portion for which damages were not allowed, Douglas said.

Under prescriptive rights, if the county has used the maintained the road for more than 10 years, it becomes the county's road, and the county is not liable for damages, he explained.

One county surveyor said if the property owners ever find out that the counties must pay for damages, "it will cost many counties a lot of money."

"We probably ought to keep that fact a secret," he said.

Change To OK Parratt Draws Chambers' Fire

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Ernest Chambers says he will try to block confirmation of Joseph Vitek as state corrections director unless Vitek fires Mrs. Edith Whiting, director of education at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Chambers also said he questioned Vitek's changing of job qualifications to allow Robert Parratt, a long-time corrections employe, to become warden.

Chambers spoke with two reporters, and each felt Chambers had said Parratt should be replaced, but not fired from the department. "If you got that impression then you misconstrued what I said," Chambers said Thursday. "I definitely feel Mrs. Whiting should be fired, that is correct, but I haven't decided whether I feel Parratt should be removed as the warden. The question is whether the job qualifications should have been waived for him," Chambers said.

Earlier reports did not say Chambers felt Parratt should be fired.

Safe Company Is Burglarized

Corvallis, Ore. (AP) — The Corvallis Safe and Lock Co. has been victimized by burglars, police report.

Taken in the Tuesday night burglary were about 60 sets of keys and a correspondence course on locksmithing, officers said.

'We're Asking Independence'—AIM Official

"We're not saying we want a new car or a new house or a lot of comfort. We want to govern ourselves," Thomas said.

Thomas said that if the U.S. government had lived up to the treaties made with Indian nations "we wouldn't have the problems we have today."

Thomas also spoke of the growth of AIM since its start in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., in 1968 and, touching on Indian religion, said the four colors of man, the four colors of the season, and the four directions form the Sacred Hoop.

The Sacred Hoop, Thomas said, was broken when white men came from Europe. He said Indian teachings prophesied there would be confusion in the world when the Sacred Hoop was broken and that one day there would be a purification day.

The American Indian Movement, Thomas said, is built around "our spirituality and our religion."

20 People Will Testify At Lincoln Trial—Banks

Minneapolis (UPI) — Dennis Banks, American Indian Movement leader acquitted in the Wounded Knee trial, said Thursday 20 persons from the Twin Cities would testify Dec. 16 at Lincoln on the 1868 treaty.

The treaty hearings directly affect six persons found guilty of charges in the Wounded Knee occupation, Banks said. He noted that Judge Warren Urbom has deferred sentencing of the six until after the treaty hearings.

"It (the treaty) directly affects the question of jurisdiction on reservations," Banks said.

"Congress recognized the 1868 treaty but there has been no legal enforcement of the treaty," he said.

Attorneys for Banks and Russell Means, also acquitted in the trial at St. Paul, tried unsuccessfully to insert the treaty as evidence in the trial.

U.S. Judge Fred Nichol dropped charges against Banks and Means for alleged governmental misconduct, but he would not allow the treaty as evidence.

The tiny South Dakota hamlet of Wounded Knee was occupied for 71 days in 1973 by American Indian Movement members.

Police Nab 15 In Drug Raids

About 85 pounds of marijuana, most of it from one residence, were seized Wednesday night when authorities raided three Lincoln homes.

The marijuana has an illegal street sale value of around $8,500. Also seized were more than 2,000 amphetamine tablets, small quantities of hashish and LSD and drug paraphernalia.

Dancer Returns To MGM Studio

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — "You never realize that good things are going to be over some day," Cyd Charisse reflected during a sentimental return to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

After an absence of a dozen years, Miss Charisse has returned to the lot where she started as a toe-dancer in "Ziegfeld Follies" 30 years ago.

She was back to play a dramatic role in the television series "Medical Center" and as she gazed around the half-empty commissary, she remarked:

"I grew up at this studio, and it didn't seem unusual to see all those stars. Nowadays you'd never find so many names in one commissary. In fact, there aren't that many stars."

She had returned to play a star of bygone film musicals, a dancer who gave up her career when she married a doctor (Joseph Campanella).

"When he walks out on her after 19 years, she takes to booze and ends up in a bar where one of her old movies is playing on television," Miss Charisse explained.

The "Medical Center" producers chose a number from "Sombrero" — conveniently, the series is made by MGM. To prove that she is the dancer on the tube, the doctor's wife re-enacts the number for the bar patrons.

Nice scene, but there's no similarity to the life of Cyd Charisse. She has been married to singer Tony Martin for 25 years and works more consistently that when she was under contract to MGM.

Her last MGM film was the nonmusical "Two Weeks in Another Town" in 1962.

Since then she has done other films, television specials, stage musicals including six months of "No, No, Nanette" in Australia. Now she spends most of her time on nightclub and theater tours with her husband.

Creighton Basketball Standout Heck Succumbs In Sleep

Acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan, who performed an autopsy, said, "He had a tremendous heart even for a man of his size, and we think it was some kind of cardiac disorder." Keenan said the complete autopsy would not be finished for at least three or four days.

"It shouldn't be too hard to figure out how we feel," said senior forward-center Doug Brookins after a team meeting called to inform team members of the death. Brookins most likley will move over to take Heck's spot in the middle of the Creighton offense and defense.

The meeting was called by team physician Dr. Lee Bevilacqua. First year coach Tom Apke went immediately to the home of Heck's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nickolaus Heck, in nearby Papillion.

Heck, although his home was less than 10 miles away, lived in a dormitory on campus to meet a scholarship requirement.

Heck's roommate, Dan Eberle of Wauwatosa, Wis., said he heard Heck's alarm go off about 8:15 a.m. When Heck did not respond, Eberle tried to awaken him, but his efforts were in vain.

Heck, a junior in the College of Business Administration, was pronoucned dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Eberle said Heck did not complain of illness Wednesday night. The two had visited the student center after a 90-minute basketball workout Wednesday evening, then retired to their room, where Heck helped Eberle write a paper for an education course. Eberle said the two then talked about a feature article on Heck, which appeared in the local newspapers over the past weekend, and went to bed about 12:30 a.m.

Bevilacqua said the 7-1 Heck had a recent bout with the flu, but had appeared to be in healthy condition lately.

"Mike felt great after practice Wednesday night," Eberle said.

Following an impressive high school career, more than 150 colleges and universities sought Heck's cage talents. But the lanky standout chose to stay near home, and signed a letter of intent with Creighton.

Both Apke and Eberle said Heck was a quiet person.

"But Mike was a very warm individual, and I think you can tell seeing the somber faces on the players that he'll really be missed by all of us much more than just as a basketball player," Apke said.

Apke said Heck had a "great potential for the coming year.

The Rev. Joseph Labaj, S.J., Creighton president, summed up the feelings of the campus and the entire city — "The tragic news of Mike's death stunned all of us, and of course our first throughts go out to his parents. Our hearts are full of sorrow."

"We recruited Mike probably as hard as any athlete while I was at Creighton, and he certainly was the type of student and athlete we went after and he was a great credit to his family and to the university," Sutton said in a telephone interview from Fayettville, Ark.

Heck led the frosh team two years ago, scoring 21.8 points and snatching 12.1 rebounds per game. He saw limited action in four varisty games that year, scoring a total of seven points.

As a sophomore, Heck played in every varsity game. The Jays ended the season with a 23-7 mark, topped by an invitation to the NCAA post season tourney as an at-large team. Heck averaged 8.4 points and 4.3 rebounds per game last season.

Heck added weight over the summer, and Apke was please with his progress through the pre-season drills.

Creighton opened Tuesday night with a 74-68 win over North Dakota, Heck playing his best game ever — 24 points and nine rebounds.

The 2nd Annual Creighton Cage Classic is scheduled Friday and Saturday. Officials confirmed Thursday that the tournament would go on as scheduled. Creighton, Texas-ElPaso, North Texas and Santa Clara are participating in the tourney.

Tempe, Ariz. — Long Beach State's basketball team may have lived in the shadow of UCLA the past four years, but consider these facts:

The 49ers have had five No. 1 pro picks, eight all-Americans and seven first-team all-Pacific Coast Athletic Association performers all during the last four years. They were easily the west's second best team behind UCLA, which won three of the past four national basketball titles.

That's the tradition, coach Joe Cipriano's Nebraska team will face when it meets the 49ers in the opening game of the Sun Devil Classic here Friday in Arizona State's University Activity Center.

Bob Siegel

The game starts at 8 p.m. (Lincoln time) and will be followed by host Arizona State against the University of Montana. The Friday losers play for third place at 8 p.m. (Lincoln time) on Saturday with the winners meeting for the title at 10 p.m. (Lincoln time) on Saturday.

Long Beach State, which won 24 of 26 games last season, lost all five starters from last year's nationally-ranked squad.

So it was evident that coach Dwight Jones, in his first season in the top job after serving three years as a 49er assistant, would have a rebuilding job.

The first game was no trouble — an 81-72 win over California State at Los Angeles on Nov. 29.

Then the Long Beach 13-game winning streak came to a resounding halt at Long Beach Arena, where the 49ers had compiled a remarkable 77-game home winning streak.

The University of San Fransisco took a 94-84 overtime decision Wednesday night in the 49ers' den to send LBS to a 1-1 mark.

Long Beach, which has won 20 or more games the past six seasons, is led by all-American candidate, senoir guard Bob Gross (6-6), who tallied 21 points and grabbed 8 rebounds against Cal State.

Junior Rich Johnson, a 6-5 transfer from the University of San Francisco, scored 24 points against his former teammates, and boasts some impressive credentials.

He earned Los Angeles city player-of-the-year in 1971-72 when he averaged 32.6 points-per-game and came within one-tenth of one point of breaking Curtis Rowe's all-time city scoring record.

Carlos Mina, a 6-8 senior center, who scored 14 points against Cal State; Kyle Jackson, a 6-7 senior forward, who tallied 10 points and 8 rebounds against Cal State, are other starters who will present problems for the Huskers.

The 49ers have captured five straight PCAA titles and undoubtedly will provide a stern test for Nebraska.

The Jackrabbits were not regarded as a powerful foe yet the Huskers had defensive difficulties and were never able to effectively crush SDS.

Nebraska, figured by many as the third-best team in the Big Eight, would attract considerable attention by topping a team which is developing into one of the country's strongest basketball schools.

The Husker strong point is junior 6-3 Jerry Fort, who has been the team's top scorer the past two seasons. He opened with a 20-point outburst against the South Dakotans.

Sophomore Bob Siegel, who has shed almost 20 pounds since last year, paced NU with 11 rebounds against SDS and is counted on heavily to boost the NU attack.

The game will be the first meeting in history between the two schools.

Kansas, Indiana Tough

A young coach or a young high school player who wants to improve on his defensive ability should get a copy of the movie of Wednesday night's Kansas-Indiana basketball game in refurbished Allen Fieldhouse in Lawrence, Kan.

It wasn't the slow-down type of battle most people think of when the word defense is mentioned. It was a dog-eat-dog battle between two finely tuned collegiate basketball teams who appeared to deserve their high pre-season national ratings.

Who won the game isn't all that important because it will have no bearing on whether either will qualify for the NCAA tournament. Both team, however, came away from the noisy fieldhouse feeling good about the way the game was played.

It was a real classic shootout, won in overtime by Indiana, by a couple of teams extremely well coached, poised because of experience, and demons on defense.

Kansas coach Ted Owens opened up with a man-to-man defense which caught Indiana by surprise because Hoosier coach Bob Knight was expecting a two-three zone. Indiana, under Knight, has never used anything but a "help-out" man defense.

Kansas spurted to an early 8-2 lead. A less poised team then IU would have been on the verge of being blown out of the fieldhouse. The Hoosiers, however, hung on and tied the score at 12 after eight minutes.

Owens called a time out at that point and when his Jayhawks came back out on the floor they went into the expected zone.

Before the evening's activities came to a halt, the lead had changed hands 26 times and the score was tied 10 times. In the overtime alone, the lead changed 10 times.

Both Have 'Super Subs'

Kansas and Indiana proved college basketball is much more than a five-man game. KU used seven men, all of them effective, and IU sent in eight men with the same results.

Kansas' 'super subs' were senior Tommie Smith, a real sparkplug who was a key last season when the Jayhawks went to the final four of the NCAA, and Danny Knight, 6-10 center who has lost his starting job to Rick Suttle.

Indiana's first man off the bench was John Laskowski, who has filled that role for the past two seasons. Other Hoosier subs were Jim Crews and Ted Abernethy.

"We can be an effective basketball team, and by that, I mean on the national level," Owens said. "We're functioning much better offensively than a year ago."

He also might have added that his defense is functioning well, too. It yielded few very high percentage shots to the Hoosiers and as a result IU shot only 42.3 per cent. Kansas is super quick.

In the end, though, as most coaches preach, Indiana's defense bailed out the victory on a night when the shots weren't dropping. That's a good lesson for any high school coach or player to consider.

Capacity Reduced

The crowd was just short of capacity at the 19-year-old field Allen Fieldhouse, but it was as noisy as ever as Jayhawk faithful whooped it up.

The building, named after the late Phog Allen who coached KU teams for 39 seasons, it had a capacity of a little over 17,000 when it was built, but a renovation of the interior has cut that to just at 16,000. A crowd of 15,300 turned out Wednesday night.

The seats were lost as a result of a new electrically operated roll-out bleacher system on the north and south ends of the floor. That should be good news to visiting teams because the front row now is much farther away from the playing floor

A synthetic floor as well as a synthetic 6-lane, 220-yard running track also has been installed. There also are two auxiliary courts.

Total cost of the project so far has been $220,000 with a large portion paid by student activity fees.

In addition to track and basketball, the fieldhouse is used for indoor football and baseball drills, for enrollment, stage shows, major addresses, and for commencement ceremonies when the weather is bad.

All administrative and coaching offices for the athletic department are on the ground floor and in an annex built four years ago.

Cleveland Tops Kings

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dwight Davis and Bobby Smith combined for 43 points, leading the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 124-91 victory over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings in a National Basketball Association game Thursday night.

Austin Carr's driving layup at 8:47 of the first period gave the Cavaliers an 8-6 lead and they were never headed.

The Cavaliers held a 56-44 halftime lead—all on field goals. They didn't get a single shot from the foul line in the first half.

They built their biggest advantage late in the final quarter, when Foots Walker sank two foul shots, giving Cleveland a 35-point lead.

The Cavaliers led by more than 30 points through almost the entire fourth quarter.

Ron Behagen led the losers with 19 and was followed by Scott Wedman's 17 and Jimmy Walker's 16.

NU Grapplers To Host ISU

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Bob Johnson admits he was not a favorite last week.

"I'm usually kind of an underdog so I can suprise some of these guys," said the 190-pound junior, who defeated Iowa States Al Nacin last week at the Iowa State Wrestling Invitatiinal.

Johnson will attempt another upset win over Nacin again this Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the NU Coliseum when the Huskers host Iowa State in a Big Eight dual.

The meet, a rematch just a week after the first titlt, opens the Big Eight season for a much improved and more balanced Husker team.

"Johnson beating Nacin was the biggest win we've had around here in years," said Borgialli

But for Johnson the win wasn't a fluke. He had beaten top wrestlers from the Big Eight conference last year while finishing with a 23-8 match record.

I just try to concentrate on my counters and takedowns and do my best. Getting up for an especially good wrestler just involves concentrating more," said Johnson.

"Meeting Nacin again will depend a lot on emotions. I will just be thinking about a win though and nothing else," he added.

"Nacin has a roll-switch combination and works for the pin from there. The last time we met, I just stood up and got away instead of sticking on the bottom and getting into trouble," Johnson said.

What does Johnson predict the outcome from his second meeting with Nacin will be? "I can't predict that. But I feel it will be a matter of who's up and who's down. We both know each other's moves."

Borgialli claims his captain Johnson as one of the best "mat wrestlers" he has coached. "I worked a lot on riding in high school (at Gordon) and it helped a lot," Johnson continued, "You don't want to try any careless takedowns or go crazy. Because you'll just get into trouble. You can be reckless, but you can't make any mistakes or you'll lose points."

"Some guys will come out and try to throw me around or something just to get me mad, because I'm not that strong. Those are easier matches because you can usually counter and use his weight against him," Johnson added.

"My matches aren't really exciting because I try not to get mad and if they other guy is I just work on counters," noted Johnson.

Referring to the difference between this year at Nebraska and previous wrestling seasons Johnson comments, "I think we are more of a team this year. We know each other better and that can only help."

Possible Matches:

Nebraska	Iowa State
118 — Al Koss vs	Mike Land
126 — Gary Harnisch vs.	Bob Antonacci
134 — Joe Carr vs.	Mike Rhoads or Randy Swoyer
142 — Tony Jennings vs	Joe Zuspann
150 — Ken Christensen vs.	Pete Galea
158 — Tom Knobloch vs.	Bob Holland or Dave Powell
167 — Mark Borer vs.	Dan Peterson
177 — Bill Hoffman vs	Will Gadson
190 — Bob Johnson vs	Al Nacin
Hwt — Bruce Conger vs.	Robin Whisman

Who Says It's That Cold For 'Skins?

Washington (UPI) — The occasion was Christmas but the theme was football, and First Lady Mrs. Betty Ford scored off the Washington Redskins.

Mrs. Ford accepted the ball from defensive end Ron McDole, a former Cornhusker, — at six foot four and 265 pounds probably the season's most massive Santa Claus — and then in a neat hand off slipped him a fur-covered football.

As Santa's beard sagged in astonishment, a laughing Mrs. Ford told him "with cold weather coming on, you fellows need something to keep your hands warm."

In a neat recovery, McDole returned "It will be easier to hold on to — some of them can use that."

Back home following a disappointing 96-79 loss to Northwest Missouri State Monday night, Nebraska Wesleyan will host Colorado School of Mines and Buena Vista, Ia. in a weekend home stand Friday and Saturday night at Taylor Gym. Both games will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Although the point spread in the Plainsmen's loss to Northwest Missouri was 17, NWU coach Irv Peterson felt the final count didn't tell the story of the game.

"The score really wasn't really indicative of the game," Peterson noted. Wesleyan was hampered by the early game ankle injury to standout Gene Parks who led the Plainsmen to their season opening 94-80 win over Kansas Wesleyan.

Parks, who scored 29 points in the first game, is listed by Peterson as doubtful for the weekend's action. "Gene could probably play," Peterson noted. "But then you may risk losing him for three or four weeks if he reinjures the ankle. If he's running alright on it, he may play a bit, but I really doubt it."

During the absense of Parks, senior Tom Maupin is filling in at the forward opposite of Steve Joekel. "Tom did a real fine of job filling in for Gene in Missouri," Peterson added. "He's the only one we have than can fill in for Gene."

The Orediggers from Golden, Colo. will be out to avenge an 83-65 Plainsmen win last season and will bring one of the tallest teams in the school's history to Wesleyan.

With starters averaging 6-foot-4, the Orediggers have the services of a 7-foot-3 senior if needed.

It'll be the season opener for the Orediggers and coach Jim Darden who return four lettermen and two starters from last year's 16-10 team.

Saturday night's contest with Buena Vista will follow the Beavers Friday night game at Hastings. Going into that game, Buena Vista is 1-0 with a 87-82 win over Westmar, Ia.

Wesleyan's next game will be against Chicago Loyola next Wednesday, just five days before Loyola meets UCLA.

Fairbury Tips Iowa Western

FAIRBURY, Neb. (AP)—Southeast Community College of Fairbury got two free throws from Reggie Smith with 15 seconds remaining Thursday night to defeat Iowa Western of Council Bluffs, 77-75.

The game was even throughout and saw balanced scoring attacks by both squads. Ron Parker led Southeast with 27 and Al Coleman had 16 for Western.

Platte Junior Falls, 76-71

COLUMBUS, Neb. (AP)—Mid Plains Community College of North Platte led throughout in a close game Thursday night and prevailed over Platte Junior College, 76-71.

East's Forch Faces Rebuilding Job, Tough Early Slate

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Not all coaches believe that winning is everything and the only thing

Therefore, faced with his biggest rebuilding job in six years and the state's toughest December prep basketball schedule, Forch can't chart the Spartans' progress strictly in terms of winning

"If we break for Christmas with three wins in four games and maybe even two, I could be satisfied, depending how we play, of course," admits Forch.

His Spartans play what are considered three of Omaha's four best prep teams and also play an experienced Ralston outfit this month.

East opens the season Saturday night at Bellevue. The following Saturday, the Spartans host defending state champion and pre-season favorite Omaha Central. East then meets Ralston and American Division Metro favorite Omaha Westside Dec. 20 and 21.

"I don't think anyone has as good a schedule as that," says Forch. "We're approaching it with the idea that to become a good team you have to beat good teams.

"We were rebuilding last year and beat some good teams. That's what helped us accomplish what we did," Forch believes. "The only difference is that last year, we had someone 6-8 (Curt Hedberg) to build around."

This season, the reconstruction task revolves around guard Karl Boss. "He's been through the pressure and he's going to have to supply the leadership to begin with," says Forch.

Actually, Forch says his team should feel little, if any pressure.

"The way I look at it we have everything to gain and nothing to lose," he offers. "We're starting from scratch. We just have to show we can come out and compete.

"It's these other teams which have the pressure," Forch analyzes. "Central will be starting four of the five they started last December against us.

"Sometimes, it's better to go our way, pressure-wise," adds Forch. "The heat is really on teams like Central. We had it two years ago and had to fight complacency.

"Motivation was a big problem," he recalls. "Kids were going through their third year of starting and they weren't hungry any more."

That's far from the case this season, according to Forch.

"These kids have all kinds of adrenalin going. It's my job to burn it down and drain it out. They can get too high, start shooting the ball over the backboard and things like that," notes Forch.

"Most of these people haven't played much and they're getting ready to play what's supposed to be the best teams in the state.

Defending state Class B champion Lincoln Pius X travels to Class C Milford for its opening test Friday night Lincoln High visits Omaha Westside and East invades Bellevue in Saturday night's only games

They're hustling and I'm pleased I'm anxious to see what they can do," adds Forch

Forch cites three things which must carry East in the rugged early going

"Leadership is the most important thing," he acknowledges "We have to have somebody like Hedberg last year to tone things down when there's some disorganization. Someone has to recognize a situation when we need it."

The other two critical factors are to play good defense and show poise and relaxation, according to Forch.

Rodgers Heads CFL All-Stars

FOOTBALL

Thousand-yard rusher Steve Ferrughelli of the Montreal Alouettes and teammate Johnny Rodgers, who netted more than a mile on the ground and in the air, are the only unanimous choices to the Canadian Football League all-star offensive team.

Johnny Rodgers

Rodgers, a former University of Nebraska all-American and Heisman Trophy winner, who gained 1,024 yards on 60 pass receptions, 492 yards rushing and 291 yards on kickoff returns was picked as a wide receiver.

Quarterback Jimmy Jones, a former Southern California star, came withing two ballots of being a unanimous choice.

Defensive tackle Reggie Lewis, suspended from the University of Oregon football team said he would go to San Diego State to play football.

Michigan, which has a 58-5-1 record and which hasn't appeared in a bowl in the past two years, is the nation's winningest team for the past six years. Penn State at 57-7 is next followed by Ohio State at 51-7, Texas at 53-8 and Notre Dame at 52-8.

Women Eye Opener

Headed by seven members from last year's state championship team, the University of Nebraska's women's swimming and diving team opens its current campaign Saturday.

The NU squad hosts the University of Kansas in a 2 p.m. meet in the women's p.e. building. The NU women recorded a 6-2 dual meet record last winter.

The schedule:

December: 7 — Kansas; January: 25 — Kansas State and Iowa; February: 1 — Iowa State and Missouri at Ames; 8 — at Grinnell, Ia., College invitational; 14-15 — Big Eight meet at Iowa State; 21 — Oklahoma State; March: 1 — at Kearney State; 13-15 — AIAW nationals at Arizona State.

The Nebraska team members are:

NFL Awards Seattle Entry

New York (AP) — The National Football League awarded ownership of its expansion Seattle franchise today to a prominent group of Seattle businessmen headed by clothing store chain owner Lloyd W. Nordstrom and awarded ownership of the new Tampa franchise to Florida attorney Hugh F. Culverhouse. Both teams will begin league play in 1976.

The cost of each franchise, the league's 27th and 28th, was $16 million.

Nordstrom, board chairman of Nordstrom, Inc., will exercise majority control of the Seattle franchise, which will be primarily a family-owned club.

Listed among other family members in ownership are his brother, Elmer, three nephews, Bruce, James and John, a daughter, Mrs. David Linda Mowat, and a son-in-law, John A. McMillan. All, with the exception of Mrs. Mowat, are Nordstrom, Inc., officers.

Bruning, Gooch Still Unbeaten

Bruning and Gooch remained the only unbeaten teams in the Jaycee-Guard junior basketball league after third-round play this week.

Gooch recorded its third straight triumph with a 45-29 decision over Broer Construction, while Bruning downed the Air National Guard, 44-35.

Sunshine Kiwanis and American Legion are deadlocked in second place with 2-1 records. Both won this week. The Kiwanis Club team edged DuTeau, 29-23, while the Legion five downed the Elks, 34-27.

Morning Briefing

A Roundup of Sports News

Chris Hemmeter, who is also president of the Hawaii franchise said he did not think folding was a serious possibility. But he said failure to find new investors and more stable owners would mean there would be no WFL in 1975.

The last payment of Allie Sherman's 10-year, $50,000-a-year contract with the New York Giants is to be made this year, and the former coach is casting restless eyes toward a return to football.

BASEBALL

Superdome officials said that baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn indicated major league baseball will be played in New Orleans no later than 1976.

Centerfielder Willie Davis became the ninth $100,000 player to be traded since the end of the 1974 season and the fourth at the winter meetings when he was traded by the Montreal Expos to the Texas Rangers in a three player swap for righthander Don Stanhouse and infielder Pete Mackanin.

Organized baseball continued its crackdown against spitball pitchers by announcing that if a pitcher had any foreign substance on his person or in his possession he would be ejected from the game.

Another rule was amended to provide that, if a fielder intentionally drops a fair ball, the ball is dead and the runners may not advance.

K-State Zone Tops SMU

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State threw up a tight zone defense midway through the second half and pulled away for a 64-58 basketball victory over Southern Methodist Monday night.

The Wildcats led 31-25 at halftime but after the Mustangs pulled within one point in the second half, K-State went into a two-three zone defense that kept SMU hammering away unsuccessfully from long range the rest of the game.

K-State put the game out of reach with a burst of eight straight points during a two minute span to take a 59-46 lead with six minutes, 14 seconds to play.

K-State guard Chuck Williams, a 6-3 junior who tied Mustang center Randy Bourquein for game honors with 19 points, led the surge with two baskets and an assist.

The Wildcats won the rebounding battle 44-37 with 6-10 center Carl Gerlach pulling down 20. Both teams shot only 39 per cent from the field.

South Dakota Topples UNO

VERMILLION, S.D. (AP) — Joe Mueting sank 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead the University of South Dakota to an 89-76 victory over the University of Nebraska-Omaha Thursday night in nonconference basketball.

Brian Powers chipped in 20 points. Omaha was led by 6foot-8 center Pat Roehrig with a game-high 26 points, followed by Dennis Forrest with 14 points and eight rebounds.

The Coyotes held a 46-33 halftime lead, and stretched their lead to 18 points at 71-53 with 8:46 remaining in the game.

Omaha battled back to within seven points at 81-74 with 1:10 to play.

Birmingham Wins Initial World Bowl

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. (UPI) — The Birmingham Americans, paced by NFL castoff George Mira, won the first championship of the poverty-stricken World Football League Thursday night by nipping the Florida Blazers, 22-21, in the World Bowl.

Mira, who spent 10 years mainly on the bench in the NFL, set up the Americans' first touchdown in the second period with a pair of 17-yard passes and threw a 26-yard touchdown pass to Bob Brown in the third period.

But, with the Blazers erupting for three final-period touchdowns, the winning point in the game came late in the second period when backuup quarterback Mathew Reed ran in an action point for the Americans.

Bob Davis, another NFL castoff, brought the Blazers to life in the final period when he threw touchdown passes of 39 and 40 yards and the Florida team closed to within one point when Rod Foster returned a punt 76 yards with only 4:14 left in the game.

HOOP RATINGS

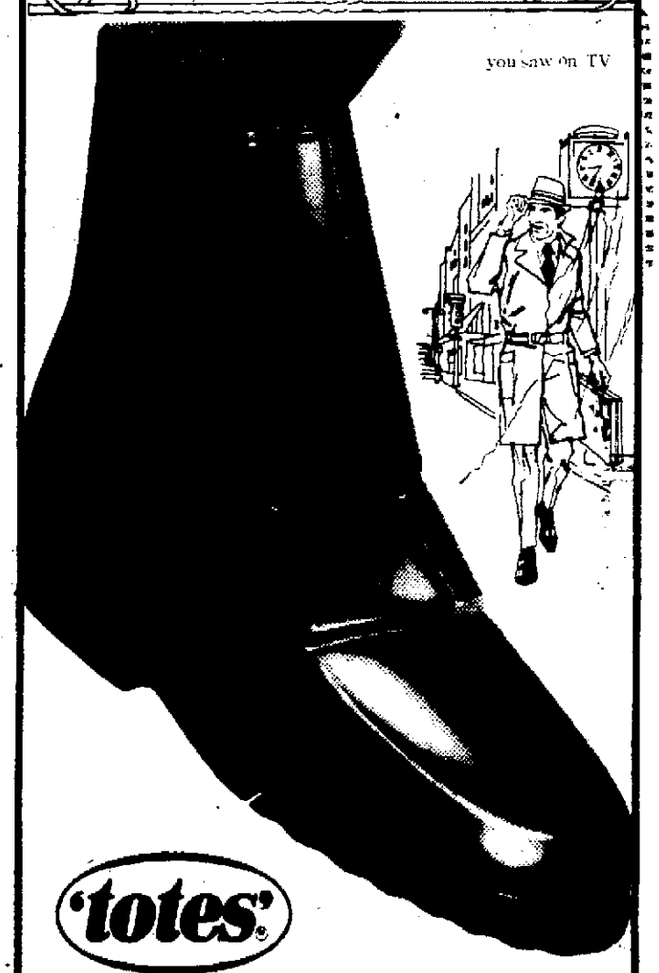

HCV — HOME COURT VALUE. TPR — TEAM POWER RATING

The figure on the right represents the team's power rating. ALL TEAMS ARE MEASURED FROM THE TOP RATING OF ZERO (0). Thus a team with a Power Rating of 6 would be a 7-point favorite over a team with a rating of 13 if the game were played on a neutral court. Add allotted points for Home Court Value to the Home Team.

Creighton Basketball Standout Heck Succumbs In Sleep

Acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan, who performed an autopsy, said, "He had a tremendous heart even for a man of his size, and we think it was some kind of cardiac disorder." Keenan said the complete autopsy would not be finished for at least three or four days.

"It shouldn't be too hard to figure out how we feel," said senior forward-center Doug Brookins after a team meeting called to inform team members of the death. Brookins most likley will move over to take Heck's spot in the middle of the Creighton offense and defense.

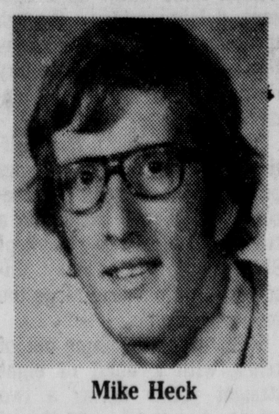

The meeting was called by team physician Dr. Lee Bevilacqua. First year coach Tom Apke went immediately to the home of Heck's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nickolaus Heck, in nearby Papillion.

Heck, although his home was less than 10 miles away, lived in a dormitory on campus to meet a scholarship requirement.

Heck's roommate, Dan Eberle of Wauwatosa, Wis., said he heard Heck's alarm go off about 8:15 a.m. When Heck did not respond, Eberle tried to awaken him, but his efforts were in vain.

Heck, a junior in the College of Business Administration, was pronoucned dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Eberle said Heck did not complain of illness Wednesday night. The two had visited the student center after a 90-minute basketball workout Wednesday evening, then retired to their room, where Heck helped Eberle write a paper for an education course. Eberle said the two then talked about a feature article on Heck, which appeared in the local newspapers over the past weekend, and went to bed about 12:30 a.m.

Mike Heck

Bevilacqua said the 7-1 Heck had a recent bout with the flu, but had appeared to be in healthy condition lately.

"Mike felt great after practice Wednesday night," Eberle said.

Following an impressive high school career, more than 150 colleges and universities sought Heck's cage talents. But the lanky standout chose to stay near home, and signed a letter of intent with Creighton.

Both Apke and Eberle said Heck was a quiet person.

"But Mike was a very warm individual, and I think you can tell seeing the somber faces on the players that he'll really be missed by all of us much more than just as a basketball player," Apke said.

Apke said Heck had a "great potential for the coming year.

The Rev. Joseph Labaj, S.J., Creighton president, summed up the feelings of the campus and the entire city — "The tragic news of Mike's death stunned all of us, and of course our first throughts go out to his parents. Our hearts are full of sorrow."

"We recruited Mike probably as hard as any athlete while I was at Creighton, and he certainly was the type of student and athlete we went after and he was a great credit to his family and to the university," Sutton said in a telephone interview from Fayettville, Ark.

Heck led the frosh team two years ago, scoring 21.8 points and snatching 12.1 rebounds per game. He saw limited action in four varisty games that year, scoring a total of seven points.

As a sophomore, Heck played in every varsity game. The Jays ended the season with a 23-7 mark, topped by an invitation to the NCAA post season tourney as an at-large team. Heck averaged 8.4 points and 4.3 rebounds per game last season.

Heck added weight over the summer, and Apke was please with his progress through the pre-season drills.

Creighton opened Tuesday night with a 74-68 win over North Dakota, Heck playing his best game ever — 24 points and nine rebounds.

The 2nd Annual Creighton Cage Classic is scheduled Friday and Saturday. Officials confirmed Thursday that the tournament would go on as scheduled. Creighton, Texas-ElPaso, North Texas and Santa Clara are participating in the tourney.

Tipoff: 8 p.m. (Lincoln time), University Activity Center, Tempe, Ariz. Broadcast: 7:40 p.m., KLIN.

Tempe, Ariz. — Long Beach State's basketball team may have lived in the shadow of UCLA the past four years, but consider these facts:

The 49ers have had five No. 1 pro picks, eight all-Americans and seven first-team all-Pacific Coast Athletic Association performers all during the last four years. They were easily the west's second best team behind UCLA, which won three of the past four national basketball titles.

That's the tradition, coach Joe Cipriano's Nebraska team will face when it meets the 49ers in the opening game of the Sun Devil Classic here Friday in Arizona State's University Activity Center.

Bob Siegel

The game starts at 8 p.m. (Lincoln time) and will be followed by host Arizona State against the University of Montana. The Friday losers play for third place at 8 p.m. (Lincoln time) on Saturday with the winners meeting for the title at 10 p.m. (Lincoln time) on Saturday.

Long Beach State, which won 24 of 26 games last season, lost all five starters from last year's nationally-ranked squad.

So it was evident that coach Dwight Jones, in his first season in the top job after serving three years as a 49er assistant, would have a rebuilding job.

The first game was no trouble — an 81-72 win over California State at Los Angeles on Nov. 29.

Then the Long Beach 13-game winning streak came to a resounding halt at Long Beach Arena, where the 49ers had compiled a remarkable 77-game home winning streak.

The University of San Fransisco took a 94-84 overtime decision Wednesday night in the 49ers' den to send LBS to a 1-1 mark.

Long Beach, which has won 20 or more games the past six seasons, is led by all-American candidate, senoir guard Bob Gross (6-6), who tallied 21 points and grabbed 8 rebounds against Cal State.

Junior Rich Johnson, a 6-5 transfer from the University of San Francisco, scored 24 points against his former teammates, and boasts some impressive credentials.

He earned Los Angeles city player-of-the-year in 1971-72 when he averaged 32.6 points-per-game and came within one-tenth of one point of breaking Curtis Rowe's all-time city scoring record.

Carlos Mina, a 6-8 senior center, who scored 14 points against Cal State; Kyle Jackson, a 6-7 senior forward, who tallied 10 points and 8 rebounds against Cal State, are other starters who will present problems for the Huskers.

The 49ers have captured five straight PCAA titles and undoubtedly will provide a stern test for Nebraska.

The Jackrabbits were not regarded as a powerful foe yet the Huskers had defensive difficulties and were never able to effectively crush SDS.

Nebraska, figured by many as the third-best team in the Big Eight, would attract considerable attention by topping a team which is developing into one of the country's strongest-basketball schools.

The Husker strong point is junior 6-3 Jerry Fort, who has been the team's top scorer the past two seasons. He opened with a 20-point outburst against the South Dakotans.

Sophomore Bob Siegel, who has shed almost 20 pounds since last year, paced NU with 11 rebounds against SDS and is counted on heavily to boost the NU attack.

The game will be the first meeting in history between the two schools.

Kansas, Indiana Tough

A young coach or a young high school player who wants to improve on his defensive ability should get a copy of the movie of Wednesday night's Kansas-Indiana basketball game in refurbished Allen Fieldhouse in Lawrence, Kan.

It wasn't the slow-down type of battle most people think of when the word defense is mentioned. It was a dog-eat-dog battle between two finely tuned collegiate basketball teams who appeared to deserve their high pre-season national ratings.

Who won the game isn't all that important because it will have no bearing on whether either will qualify for the NCAA tournament. Both team, however, came away from the noisy fieldhouse feeling good about the way the game was played.

It was a real classic shootout, won in overtime by Indiana, by a couple of teams extremely well coached, poised because of experience, and demons on defense.

Kansas coach Ted Owens opened up with a man-to-man defense which caught Indiana by surprise because Hoosier coach Bob Knight was expecting a two-three zone. Indiana, under Knight, has never used anything but a "help-out" man defense.

Kansas spurted to an early 8-2 lead. A less poised team then IU would have been on the verge of being blown out of the fieldhouse. The Hoosiers, however, hung on and tied the score at 12 after eight minutes.

Owens called a time out at that point and when his Jayhawks came back out on the floor they went into the expected zone.

Before the evening's activities came to a halt, the lead had changed hands 26 times and the score was tied 10 times. In the overtime alone, the lead changed 10 times.

Both Have 'Super Subs'

Kansas and Indiana proved college basketball is much more than a five-man game. KU used seven men, all of them effective, and IU sent in eight men with the same results.

Kansas' 'super subs' were senior Tommie Smith, a real sparkplug who was a key last season when the Jayhawks went to the final four of the NCAA, and Danny Knight, 6-10 center who has lost his starting job to Rick Suttle.

Indiana's first man off the bench was John Laskowski, who has filled that role for the past two seasons. Other Hoosier subs were Jim Crews and Ted Abernethy.

"We can be an effective basketball team, and by that, I mean on the national level," Owens said. "We're functioning much better offensively than a year ago."

He also might have added that his defense is functioning well, too. It yielded few very high percentage shots to the Hoosiers and as a result IU shot only 42.3 per cent. Kansas is super quick.

In the end, though, as most coaches preach, Indiana's defense bailed out the victory on a night when the shots weren't dropping. That's a good lesson for any high school coach or player to consider.

Capacity Reduced

The crowd was just short of capacity at the 19-year-old field Allen Fieldhouse, but it was as noisy as ever as Jayhawk faithful whooped it up.

The building, named after the late Phog Allen who coached KU teams for 39 seasons, it had a capacity of a little over 17,000 when it was built, but a renovation of the interior has cut that to just at 16,000. A crowd of 15,300 turned out Wednesday night.

The seats were lost as a result of a new electrically operated roll-out bleacher system on the north and south ends of the floor. That should be good news to visiting teams because the front row now is much farther away from the playing floor.

A synthetic floor as well as a synthetic 6-lane, 220-yard running track also has been installed. There also are two auxiliary courts.

Total cost of the project so far has been $220,000 with a large portion paid by student activity fees.

In addition to track and basketball, the fieldhouse is used for indoor football and baseball drills, for enrollment, stage shows, major addresses, and for commencement ceremonies when the weather is bad.

All administrative and coaching offices for the athletic department are on the ground floor and in an annex built four years ago.

Cleveland Tops Kings

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dwight Davis and Bobby Smith combined for 43 points, leading the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 124-91 victory over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings in a National Basketball Association game Thursday night.

Austin Carr's driving layup at 8:47 of the first period gave the Cavaliers an 8-6 lead and they were never headed.

The Cavaliers held a 56-44 halftime lead—all on field goals. They didn't get a single shot from the foul line in the first half.

They built their biggest advantage late in the final quarter, when Foots Walker sank two foul shots, giving Cleveland a 35-point lead.

The Cavaliers led by more than 30 points through almost the entire fourth quarter.

NU Grapplers To Host ISU

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

"I'm usually kind of an underdog so I can suprise some of these guys," said the 190-pound junior, who defeated Iowa States Al Nacin last week at the Iowa State Wrestling Invitatiinal.

Johnson will attempt another upset win over Nacin again this Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the NU Coliseum when the Huskers host Iowa State in a Big Eight dual.

The meet, a rematch just a week after the first titlt, opens the Big Eight season for a much improved and more balanced Husker team.

"Johnson beating Nacin was the biggest win we've had around here in years," said Borgialli.

But for Johnson the win wasn't a fluke. He had beaten top wrestlers from the Big Eight conference last year while finishing with a 23-8 match record.

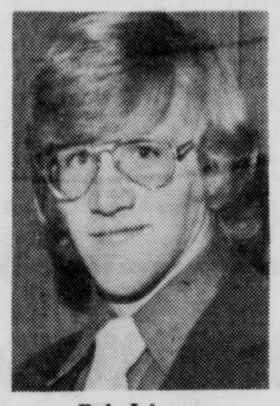

I just try to concentrate on my counters and takedowns and do my best. Getting up for an especially good wrestler just involves concentrating more," said Johnson.

"Meeting Nacin again will depend a lot on emotions. I will just be thinking about a win though and nothing else," he added.

"Nacin has a roll-switch combination and works for the pin from there. The last time we met, I just stood up and got away instead of sticking on the bottom and getting into trouble," Johnson said.

What does Johnson predict the outcome from his second meeting with Nacin will be? "I can't predict that. But I feel it will be a matter of who's up and who's down. We both know each other's moves."

Borgialli claims his captain Johnson as one of the best "mat wrestlers" he has coached. "I worked a lot on riding in high school (at Gordon) and it helped a lot," Johnson continued, "You don't want to try any careless takedowns or go crazy. Because you'll just get into trouble. You can be reckless, but you can't make any mistakes or you'll lose points."

"Some guys will come out and try to throw me around or something just to get me mad, because I'm not that strong. Those are easier matches because you can usually counter and use his weight against him," Johnson added.

"My matches aren't really exciting because I try not to get mad and if they other guy is I just work on counters," noted Johnson.

Referring to the difference between this year at Nebraska and previous wrestling seasons Johnson comments, "I think we are more of a team this year. We know each other better and that can only help."

Nebraska	Iowa State
118 — Al Koss	vs. Mike Land
126 — Gary Harnisch	vs. Bob Antonacci
134 — Joe Carr	vs. Mike Rhoads or Randy Swoyer
142 — Tony Jennings	vs. Joe Zuspann
150 — Ken Christensen	vs. Pete Galea
158 — Tom Knobloch	vs. Bob Holland or Dave Powell
167 — Mark Borer	vs. Dan Peterson
177 — Bill Hoffman	vs. Will Gadson
190 — Bob Johnson	vs. Al Nacin
Hwt — Bruce Conger	vs. Robin Whisman

Who Says It's That Cold For 'Skins?

Washington (UPI) — The occasion was Christmas but the theme was football, and First Lady Mrs. Betty Ford scored off the Washington Redskins.

Mrs. Ford accepted the ball from defensive end Ron McDole, a former Cornhusker, — at six foot four and 265 pounds probably the season's most massive Santa Claus — and then in a neat hand off slipped him a fur-covered football.

As Santa's beard sagged in astonishment, a laughing Mrs. Ford told him "with cold weather coming on, you fellows need something to keep your hands warm."

In a neat recovery, McDole returned "It will be easier to hold on to — some of them can use that."

Back home following a disappointing 96-79 loss to Northwest Missouri State Monday night, Nebraska Wesleyan will host Colorado School of Mines and Buena Vista, Ia. in a weekend home stand Friday and Saturday night at Taylor Gym. Both games will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Although the point spread in the Plainsmen's loss to Northwest Missouri was 17, NWU coach Irv Peterson felt the final count didn't tell the story of the game.

"The score really wasn't really indicative of the game," Peterson noted. Wesleyan was hampered by the early game ankle injury to standout Gene Parks who led the Plainsmen to their season opening 94-80 win over Kansas Wesleyan.

Parks, who scored 29 points in the first game, is listed by Peterson as doubtful for the weekend's action. "Gene could probably play," Peterson noted. "But then you may risk losing him for three or four weeks if he reinjures the ankle. If he's running alright on it, he may play a bit, but I really doubt it."

During the absense of Parks, senior Tom Maupin is filling in at the forward opposite of Steve Joekel. "Tom did a real fine of job filling in for Gene in Missouri," Peterson added. "He's the only one we have than can fill in for Gene."

The Orediggers from Golden, Colo. will be out to avenge an 83-65 Plainsmen win last season and will bring one of the tallest teams in the school's history to Wesleyan.

With starters averaging 6-foot-4, the Orediggers have the services of a 7-foot-3 senior if needed.

It'll be the season opener for the Orediggers and coach Jim Darden who return four lettermen and two starters from last year's 16-10 team.

Saturday night's contest with Buena Vista will follow the Beavers Friday night game at Hastings. Going into that game, Buena Vista is 1-0 with a 87-82 win over Westmar, Ia.

Wesleyan's next game will be against Chicago Loyola next Wednesday, just five days before Loyola meets UCLA.

Fairbury Tips Iowa Western

FAIRBURY, Neb. (AP)—Southeast Community College of Fairbury got two free throws from Reggie Smith with 15 seconds remaining Thursday night to defeat Iowa Western of Council Bluffs, 77-75.

The game was even throughout and saw balanced scoring attacks by both squads. Ron Parker led Southeast with 27 and Al Coleman had 16 for Western.

Platte Junior Falls, 76-71

East's Forch Faces Rebuilding Job, Tough Early Slate

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Not all coaches believe that winning is everything and the only thing.

Therefore, faced with his biggest rebuilding job in six years and the state's toughest December prep basketball schedule, Forch can't chart the Spartans' progress strictly in terms of winning.

"If we break for Christmas with three wins in four games and maybe even two, I could be satisfied, depending how we play, of course," admits Forch.

His Spartans play what are considered three of Omaha's four best prep teams and also play an experienced Ralston outfit this month.

East opens the season Saturday night at Bellevue. The following Saturday, the Spartans host defending state champion and pre-season favorite Omaha Central. East then meets Ralston and American Division Metro favorite Omaha Westside Dec. 20 and 21.

"I don't think anyone has as good a schedule as that," says Forch. "We're approaching it with the idea that to become a good team you have to beat good teams.

"We were rebuilding last year and beat some good teams. That's what helped us accomplish what we did," Forch believes. "The only difference is that last year, we had someone 6-8 (Curt Hedberg) to build around."

This season, the reconstruction task revolves around guard Karl Boss. "He's been through the pressure and he's going to have to supply the leadership to begin with," says Forch.

Actually, Forch says his team should feel little, if any pressure.

"The way I look at it we have everything to gain and nothing to lose," he offers. "We're starting from scratch. We just have to show we can come out and compete.

"It's these other teams which have the pressure," Forch analyzes. "Central will be starting four of the five they started last December against us.

"Sometimes, it's better to go our way, pressure-wise," adds Forch. "The heat is really on teams like Central. We had it two years ago and had to fight complacency.

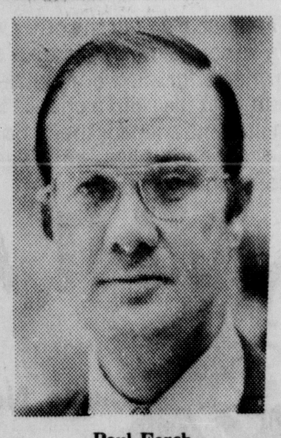

"Motivation was a big problem," he recalls. "Kids were going through their third year of starting and they weren't hungry any more."

That's far from the case this season, according to Forch.

"These kids have all kinds of adrenalin going. It's my job to burn it down and drain it out. They can get too high, start shooting the ball over the backboard and things like that," notes Forch.

"Most of these people haven't played much and they're getting ready to play what's supposed to be the best teams in the state.

Paul Forch
East Mentor

Defending state Class B champion Lincoln Pius X travels to Class C Milford for its opening test Friday night. Lincoln High visits Omaha Westside and East invades Bellevue in Saturday night's only games.

They're hustling and I'm pleased. I'm anxious to see what they can do," adds Forch.

Forch cites three things which must carry East in the rugged early going.

"Leadership is the most important thing," he acknowledges. "We have to have somebody like Hedberg last year to tone things down when there's some disorganization. Someone has to recognize a situation when we need it."

The other two critical factors are to play good defense and show poise and relaxation, according to Forch.

SE-NE On TV

Friday night's Southeast-Northeast game will be cablecast by Lincoln's channel 9 with the Prep Panorama show starting at 7:30 p.m. and the game at 8 p.m.

Judge Upholds Decision In 1947 May Murders

Omaha (AP) — District Judge Samuel P. Caniglia Thursday turned down the post-conviction appeal of Charles Edward McClelland seeking to set aside two life sentences he received for the slaying of a Virginia couple near Boys Town 27 years ago.

McClelland confessed to the 1947 murders of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. May II several times before and after his conviction. However, he later contended that he admitted guilt only because he was coerced.

In his ruling Caniglia said he was "forced" to make his decision upholding the convictions "by evidence and by the law."

J. William Gallup, McClelland's attorney, said his client undoubtedly will appeal Caniglia's ruling to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Gallup had contended that there was no evidence to support McClelland's confessions.

While the judge found the preponderance of evidence weighed against the defendant, he did concede that some of the evidence "is not corroborated" and may "even be said to be inconsistent with the defendant's guilt."

McClelland's appeal, filed more than three years ago, was based in part on his contention that Theodore L. Richling, now a District Court judge and at the time of the murders, a deputy county attorney, had coerced his confession.

Richling denied in a deposition given in August 1973 that he made any threats or promises to McClelland. Little has happened in the case since that time, and Caniglia inherited it after District Court Judge John Burke withdrew in October 1973.

McClelland is serving three life sentences in the Nebraska Penal Complex, having received a thrid life sentence for the fatal stabbing of a fellow inmate in 1966.

Prices Dive In Sluggish Stock Mart

New York (AP) — New layoff announcements, a rise in unemployment benefits, and a decline in retail sales all fed recession worries of investors Thursday as the stock market plunged lower in sluggish trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 11.58 to 587.06, its lowest close since Oct. 4 when a new 12-year-low of 584.56 was established. Declines swamped advances 1,045 to 322 among the 1,788 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Other losers among the 30 industrials were Sears, Roebuck off 2⅛ to 44⅝; Eastman Kodak, off 1¾ to 60⅝; Du Pont, off 1⅝ to 86⅝; and Alcoa, down 1⅛ to 26.

Some analysts thought the decline Thursday was typical for a situation of relatively light trading and no slid economic news to halt whay they feel was a deepening recession.

"You never have to buy stocks, but there are many times you have to sell them," said John Smith of Fahnestock & Co. "When the sellers come in, they just have to accept a lower price."

Sears and other retail giants reported November sales figures that apparently distressed investors.

S.S. Kresge, for example, reported that sales rose 14 per cent over a year ago, but the company's stock declined 1½ to 19⅝ and was the second-most active issue for the day.

Wesintghouse was the most-active Big Board issue, off ⅛ to 8⅝.

IBM, which is not a member of the Dow 30, fell 3½ to 166¼, after the Justice Department announced that its civil antitrust suit against the corporation was scheduled to begin Feb. 18 in federal court in New York.

Gold stocks reversed the downward trend of many other stock groups by adding to gains made in the previous session after sharp losses suffered Tuesday when the Treasury Department announced it would sell two million ounced of gold at public auction Jan. 6.

Commodity Futures Trim Early Gains

An announcement of improved export business overnight strongly influenced buying of wheat futures that produced a gain of about 10 cents a bushel. Late in the session, the gain was about halved and in the closing minutes an additional two pennies were trimmed.

Reports from the country that some harvesting had slowed down because of inclement weather brought some buying into the corn pit early. Hedging was light. Later, some private reports noted that very little harvested corn was moving into commercial channels and not much of what was available was of top grade. Corn futures, too, came under selling pressure at the close. The liquidation before the final bell turned oats uneven.

Soybeans, meal and oil responded to a good demand early but eased in the closing minutes when professionals were after profits. Soybean oil turned weak in the last minute but meal gained about $4 a ton. Soybeans, up 15 cents early, gained about 11 cents.

Hog Prices Rebound At Omaha

Barrows and gilts, weighing in from 200-290 pounds, trended from 25 to 75 cents higher. The limited sales on heavier weighted butchers were called steady

Rodgers Heads CFL All-Stars

FOOTBALL

Thousand-yard rusher Steve Ferrughelli of the Montreal Alouettes and teammate Johnny Rodgers, who netted more than a mile on the ground and in the air, are the only unanimous choices to the Canadian Football League all-star offensive team.

Johnny Rodgers

Rodgers, a former University of Nebraska all-American and Heisman Trophy winner, who gained 1,024 yards on 60 pass receptions, 492 yards rushing and 291 yards on kickoff returns was picked as a wide receiver.

Quarterback Jimmy Jones, a former Southern California star, came withing two ballots of being a unanimous choice.

Mike Widger, Jerry Campbell, and Chuck Zpiec were named at the linebackers, while Rudy Sims and Jim Stillwagon were named at the tackle positions. Defensive backs include Al Marcelin, Dickie Harris, All Brenner and Tom Woodward.

Defensive tackle Reggie Lewis, suspended from the University of Oregon football team said he would go to San Diego State to play football.

Michigan, which has a 58-5-1 record and which hasn't appeared in a bowl in the past two years, is the nation's winningest team for the past six years. Penn State at 57-7 is next followed by Ohio State at 51-7, Texas at 53-8 and Notre Dame at 52-8.

Women Eye Opener

Headed by seven members from last year's state championship team, the University of Nebraska's women's swimming and diving team opens its current campaign Saturday.

The NU squad hosts the University of Kansas in a 2 p.m. meet in the women's p.e. building. The NU women recorded a 6-2 dual meet record last winter.

The schedule:

NFL Awards Seattle Entry

New York (AP) — The National Football League awarded ownership of its expansion Seattle franchise today to a prominent group of Seattle businessmen headed by clothing store chain owner Lloyd W. Nordstrom and awarded ownership of the new Tampa franchise to Florida attorney Hugh F. Culverhouse. Both teams will begin league play in 1976.

The cost of each franchise, the league's 27th and 28th, was $16 million.

Nordstrom, board chairman of Nordstrom, Inc., will exercise majority control of the Seattle franchise, which will be primarily a family-owned club.

Listed among other family members in ownership are his brother, Elmer, three nephews, Bruce, James and John, a daughter, Mrs. David Linda Mowat, and a son-in-law, John A. McMillan. All, with the exception of Mrs. Mowat, are Nordstrom, Inc., officers.

Bruning, Gooch Still Unbeaten

Bruning and Gooch remained the only unbeaten teams in the Jaycee-Guard junior basketball league after third-round play this week.

Gooch recorded its third straight triumph with a 45-29 decision over Broer Construction, while Bruning downed the Air National Guard, 44-35.

Sunshine Kiwanis and American Legion are deadlocked in second place with 2-1 records. Both won this week. The Kiwanis Club team edged DuTeau, 29-23, while the Legion five downed the Elks, 34-27.

Morning Briefing

A Roundup of Sports News

Chris Hemmeter, who is also president of the Hawaii franchise said he did not think folding was a serious possibility. But he said failure to find new investors and more stable owners would mean there would be no WFL in 1975.

The last payment of Allie Sherman's 10-year, $50,000-a-year contract with the New York Giants is to be made this year, and the former coach is casting restless eyes toward a return to football.

BASEBALL

Superdome officials said that baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn indicated major league baseball will be played in New Orleans no later than 1976.

Centerfielder Willie Davis became the ninth $100,000 player to be traded since the end of the 1974 season and the fourth at the winter meetings when he was traded by the Montreal Expos to the Texas Rangers in a three player swap for righthander Don Stanhouse and infielder Pete Mackanin.

Organized baseball continued its crackdown against spitball pitchers by announcing that if a pitcher had any foreign substance on his person or in his possession he would be ejected from the game.

Another rule was amended to provide that, if a fielder intentionally drops a fair ball, the ball is dead and the runners may not advance.

K-State Zone Tops SMU

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State threw up a tight zone defense midway through the second half and pulled away for a 64-58 basketball victory over Southern Methodist Monday night.

The Wildcats led 31-25 at halftime but after the Mustangs pulled within one point in the second half, K-State went into a two-three zone defense that kept SMU hammering away unsucessfully from long range the rest of the game.

K-State put the game out of reach with a burst of eight straight points during a two minute span to take a 58-46 lead with six minutes, 14 seconds to play.

K-State guard Chuck Williams, a 6-3 junior who tied Mustang center Randy Bourquein for game honors with 19 points, led the surge with two baskets and an assist.

The Wildcats won the rebounding battle 44-37 with 6-10 center Carl Gerlach pulling down 20. Both teams shot only 39 per cent from the field.

South Dakota Topples UNO

VERMILLION, S.D. (AP) — Joe Mueting sank 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead the University of South Dakota to an 89-76 victory over the University of Nebraska-Omaha Thursday night in nonconference basketball.

Brian Powers chipped in 20 points. Omaha was led by 6foot-8 center Pat Roehrig with a game-high 26 points, followed by Dennis Forrest with 14 points and eight rebounds.

The Coyotes held a 46-33 halftime lead, and stretched their lead to 18 points at 71-53 with 8:46 remaining in the game.

Omaha battled back to within seven points at 81-74 with 1:10 to play.

Birmingham Wins Initial World Bowl

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. (UPI) — The Birmingham Americans, paced by NFL castoff George Mira, won the first championship of the poverty-stricken World Football League Thursday night by nipping the Florida Blazers, 22-21, in the World Bowl.

Mira, who spent 10 years mainly on the bench in the NFL, set up the Americans' first touchdown in the second period with a pair of 17-yard passes and threw a 26-yard touchdown pass to Bob Brown in the third period.

But, with the Blazers erupting for three final-period touchdowns, the winning point in the game came late in the second period when backuup quarterback Mathew Reed ran in an action point for the Americans.

Bob Davis, another NFL castoff, brought the Blazers to life in the final period when he threw touchdown passes of 39 and 40 yards and the Florida team closed to within one point when Rod Foster returned a punt 76 yards with only 4:14 left in the game.

HCV — HOME COURT VALUE
TPR — TEAM POWER RATING

The figure on the right represents the team's power rating. ALL TEAMS ARE MEASURED FROM THE TOP RATING OF ZERO (0). Thus a team with a Power Rating of 6 would be a 7-point favorite over a team with a rating of 13 if the game were played on a neutral court. Add allotted points for Home Court Value to the Home Team.

Playing A Matter Of Pride For Ex-Husker Wolfe

DAVE SITTLER

At the moment, Bob Wolfe should be sitting on top of the world.

But Wolfe, a former Nebraska Cornhusker and the starting left offensive tackle for Birmingham, is hardly on top of the world — he hasn't received a paycheck for eight weeks.

The 6-5, 256-pounder who played his high school football at Omaha South, is one of many players in the WFL who are suffering while the new league continues its struggle to remain in existence.

"Some of the players on our team are really in dire need of money," Wolfe said via telephone Wednesday evening. "Luckily, I had the foresight to put away enough money at the start of the season. So I'm not as bad off as many of the players."

Wolfe and his teammates held a meeting Monday and decided they had enough of playing with no pay and they were going to boycott the World Bowl. But a second meeting Tuesday saw the players change their minds.

"After our first meeting we sent a delegation to meet with the owners of the team," Wolfe said, "but that meeting broke down. The owners said they couldn't pay us. We decided not to play.

"But then league officials contacted Charlie Harraway (the Americans' player representative) and told him it was vital to the survival of the league that we play the game."

"We're really just playing out of a matter of pride," Wolfe said, "and for the 10,000 or so Birmingham fans who have been loyal to us all year."

Wolfe said the players would split 70 per cent of the gate receipts with the winner getting 60 per cent and the loser 40 per cent of that 70 percent.

Bob Wolfe
Former Husker

"The field rental is first and then the travel expenses of the Blazers," Wolfe explained. "But we're not going to make much. We're certainly not going to get rich off this game.

"The point is," Wolfe continued, "is it really worth it? We have a lot of young players on this team with their football careers to worry about. It's tough to play for nothing when you have that to consider."

Wolfe said Birmingham owes him five paychecks, with the last one coming two months ago.

"At first they (club officials) told us to wait until tomorrow or next week for our checks," Wolfe said. "Then they said our checks were late because the computers were broken."

Wolfe says the deceitfulness used by the team's officials was what first caused any problems amongst the players on the Birmingham club.

"Many of the guys had a lot of financial worries and couldn't concentrate on playing football," Wolfe said. "So we lost four straight games. But we got it together when the owners finally admitted they couldn't pay us, but told us the league would be obligated to pay us eventually.

"Really, I think this is one of the closest team's I've ever been associated with."

Wolfe was drafted by the Miami Dolphins of the NFL last year after completing his final season with Nebraska. But he said he's glad he picked the Americans over the Dolphins.

"I've never regretted my decision," he said. "I've played in 23 games this year against good competition and have gained experience which would have taken me three or four years to gain in the NFL.

"And I like the town. It reminds me of Omaha. Not so big you can get lost in it. And the people recognize the players and are very nice."

But what if the WFL folds?

"I'll try and continue my career with some NFL team," said Wolfe, who'll return to Omaha with his wife Julie to work during the off-season. "All this experience I've gained in the WFL will be helpful if the league folds and I have to switch to the NFL.

"But there's rumors our club may move to New York or Montreal next year. And really, I think things will work out."

City School Wrestling—A Family Affair

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Talking with any of the five Capital City wrestling coaches, one might get the impression that wrestling — like the color of eyes and hair or a person's build — is hereditary.

The rosters of the five Lincoln schools are chock-full of either brother combinations or brothers the coaches have taught in the past.

Northeast coach John McIntyre can attest to the fact that having brothers of past performers can be a big help. "It's really great to have kids with older wrestling brothers," McIntyre said. "These kids realize how hard their brothers have worked in wrestling to achieve their goals, and it rubs off."

The Rockets have the most brother combinations seen in a long time. Going into the first meet, the Omaha North Invitational, McIntyre is wrestling four sets of brothers. And on a 14-man list, only four members are without previous family ties.

"Dicky is the last one for a while," McIntyre said of the Longoria clan. "There's a younger one, but it'll be quite a few years before he can wrestle."

Northeast also has brother sets in Ron and Lannie Lawrence, Rich and Rod Petersen and Ken and Steve Singleton.

Senior Steve Singleton was a Sunday Journal and Star all-state football selection and he carries his toughness, along with his brother to the mats according to McIntyre.

McIntyre hopes with the return of nine lettermen from last year's city championship team, the Rockets can improve.

"We're going to have a good team," he said, "and potentially better than last year. The young kids took some lumps last season and I hope they fight back this year."

Southeast returns with half of a brother combination in Steve Hill. Both Steve and graduated brother Rick placed second in the state meet last year for Southeast.

Steve returns at 145 this year for a try at the gold medal.

The Knights under coach Gail Baum also return six other lettermen including a set of identical twins, Ron and Bob Anderson.

"It always helps to have kids from the same family coming in," Baum noted. "But the Andersons are a little hesitant to tangle with each other in practice. Ron wrestles at 126 and Bob at 138."

East coach Jim Holecek also has the brother influence around his wrestlers with three sets out for varsity and reserves and "about one-fourth of the team with family wrestling ties."

On Holecek's varsity roster, bothers Bill and Mike Breeden are expected to fare well. Mike was chosen as a co-captain along with senior Bill Thomas.

"I like to get little brothers out here," Holecek admitted. "The older brothers pass the word down and the younger ones know what to expect. They know wrestling because they've wrestled at home. They can learn quite a bit from their older brothers at home. Wrestling is a way of life for them."

Lincoln High has one set of brothers on the varsity and coach Mel Simpson believes the ties can be helpful also. "The main thing when you have brothers come out for wrestling," Simpson said, "is you know they're interested in the sport. Sometimes you can be disappointed through, if you lose a brother to another sport."

Class B Pius X is facing perhaps the most demanding schedule under coach Dick Caster.

Pius X also has brothers in Lonnie and Wayne Petrzilka and Gary and George Riggs.

The Volvo 244

But before you rush out to finance a revolution, consider the 1975 Volvo 240.

Consider the Volvo windshield wiper. On most cars, wiper blades are shiny. And the shine can end up in your eyes. To avoid this glaring fault, Volvo paints them matte black.

All cars have head rests. Volvo's head rests have openings so you can see behind you better.

So you can see beside you better, Volvo has another thought. Side window defoggers.

Not even the gas cap has gone unnoticed. It's red, so it's hard to lose. So it's less likely to be misplaced, we provide a place to put it: a holder behind the door.

When you add all these thoughtful little touches to Volvo's thoughtful big touches—fuel injection, rack and pinion steering, 4-wheel power disc brakes, spring-strut front suspension, 12 outlet heating and ventilation, infinitely adjustable bucket seats with lumbar supports, child-proof rear door locks, steel belted radials, rear window defroster—you have a car which some people might consider revolutionary.

But to us it's simply a Volvo. A car which has evolved through years of careful improvement into what it is today.

And the people who buy Volvos are thoughtful, indeed.

87% of them have been to college. The other 13% are just plain smart.

A good deal for you

Winter is when most batteries fail.

A good deal for us

If you need a battery, we'd like to sell you one. We have good quality, and a full line.

Service calls are part of our business, but we'd rather help our customers before they have trouble—it's good for our reputation.

If we show you your battery might fail, we have a chance to sell you a new one rather than see you be forced to buy somewhere else when your present battery is dead.

The more batteries we sell before winter comes, the more we can order to take care of customers who will have to buy later on in the dead of winter.

SALE-PRICED BATTERIES WORTH THINKING ABOUT NOW!

You may never have to buy another battery for your car!

Special Education Funding Proposals Hammered Out

By The Associated Press

State officials apparently have reached a consensus agreement on proposals that will be placed before the State Board of Education Friday in an effort to solve problems related to distribution of special education funds for the handicapped.

However, it appeared that at least one more legal snag may have to be resolved before the immediate questions surrounding LB403 are resolved.

The bill was approved by the last Legislature. It is designed to pay 90% of the additional per pupil costs of special education for the handicapped. The other 10% is paid by the school district.

Representatives of the Department of Education, the Department of Administrative Services and the attorney general took part in a three-hour meeting Thursday to hammer out "rough draft" recommendations for:

— Procedures to be used by school districts in certifying the number of handicapped children to receive services.

— A procedure for rectifying payments erroneously made to school districts in the first quarter, when those school districts had no handicapped children needing services

The Department of Education will recommend that school districts which received payments by mistake in the first quarter be asked to refund them. Those would be districts that have no handicapped children.

Districts which simply received excess first quarter payments would not be asked for refunds, but future payments would be adjusted to reflect the excess payment, officials said.

Dr. Frances Colgan, of the Education Department, presented a form that could be used by school districts to certify the number of handicapped children they have, what handicaps those children suffer, and what services they will need.

Colgan's form will be changed somewhat before being submitted to the board, which could make further changes, or reject the recommendation entirely.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher recommended that, next to each designated handicap, the section of the law which defines that handicap legally should be noted.

"With that, the school boards could look up that section of the law and determine if the child, or the children involved, meet that criteria," Mosher said.

The unresolved legal question was this:

Can school districts receive state funds under LB403 before the districts themselves pay for the services the funds will provide?

Dr. Anne Campbell, the education commissioner designate, questioned whether school districts would have cash flow problems if the funds could only be issued to reimburse them for bills they had paid.

Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley indicated he felt reimbursement, rather than having the payments made in advance of the districts' expenditures, might be a better course.

That question could ultimately be sent to the attorney general for an opinion.

The attorney general's office was still working Thursday afternoon on an opinion requested by the Board of Education That opinion will center on whether school districts, which have no handicapped children, can be billed by an Educational Service Unit simply because the ESU services are there if needed.

The opinion was to answer that question as it applies to districts that have ESU contracts and those that do not.

Irregularities in distribution of first quarter payments were brought to the attention of Gov. J. James Exon, who then requested and received a special board meeting held last month.

At that meeting the board instructed DAS and the Education Department to meet and come up with recommended solutions.

The board also will receive a list of proposed members for an advisory committee that will work on any final plans for implementation of LB403.

Iowans Held In 3 Deaths Not Charged

Carlsbad, N.M. (UPI) — Eddy County District Attorney Dave Hougland said a Salix, Iowa, couple being held here in connection with a triple slaying in Sioux City, Iowa, earlier this week were released late Thursday.

Hougland said Van L. Chadwick and Diane Renee Lindley, were released Thursday night after lie detector tests were administered to them. Earlier authorities had reported Chadwick was being held on three counts of murder in connection with the shooting deaths of two men and one woman in Sioux City and Ms Lindley was being held as an accomplice to the homicides.

However, Hougland said, no charges were filed against the couple in New Mexico and "it is my understanding that no charges will be filed against the two in Iowa."

The district attorney said he was informed Wednesday that a warrant for the arrests of the two had been issued and they were picked up in New Mexico as fugitives But, he added, they were not arraigned and no charges were brought against Chadwick or Ms Lindley in the New Mexico courts.

Abzug Cancels NU Appearance

Congresswoman Bella Abzug has cancelled her appearance at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln according to the Nebraska Union Program Office

Changes in the House of Representatives agenda necessitated the cancellation said a UNL spokesperson

She had been scheduled to speak at 3.30 p m. Monday.

Judge Upholds Decision In 1947 May Murders

Omaha (AP) — District Judge Samuel P. Caniglia Thursday turned down the post-conviction appeal of Charles Edward McClelland seeking to set aside two life sentences he received for the slaying of a Virginia couple near Boys Town 27 years ago.

McClelland confessed to the 1947 murders of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. May II several times before and after his conviction. However, he later contended that he admitted guilt only because he was coerced.

In his ruling Caniglia said he was "forced" to make his decision upholding the convictions "by evidence and by the law."

J. William Gallup, McClelland's attorney, said his client undoubtedly will appeal Caniglia's ruling to the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Gallup had contended that there was no evidence to support McClelland's confessions.

While the judge found the preponderance of evidence weighed against the defendant, he did concede that some of the evidence "is not corroborated" and may "even be said to be inconsistent with the defendant's guilt."

McClelland's appeal, filed more than three years ago, was based in part on his contention that Theodore L. Richling, now a District Court judge and at the time of the murders, a deputy county attorney, had coerced his confession.

Richling denied in a deposition given in August 1973 that he made any threats or promises to McClelland. Little has happened in the case since that time, and Caniglia inherited it after District Court Judge John Burke withdrew in October 1973.

McClelland is serving three life sentences in the Nebraska Penal Complex, having received a thrid life sentence for the fatal stabbing of a fellow inmate in 1966.

Prices Dive In Sluggish Stock Mart

New York (AP) — New layoff announcements, a rise in unemployment benefits, and a decline in retail sales all fed recession worries of investors Thursday as the stock market plunged lower in sluggish trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 11.58 to 587.06, its lowest close since Oct. 4 when a new 12-year-low of 584.56 was established. Declines swamped advances 1,045 to 322 among the 1,788 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

All but three members of the select Dow group of industrials lost ground today, with International Paper setting the pace by dropping 2½ to 32¾.

Other losers among the 30 industrials were Sears, Roebuck off 2⅛ to 44⅝; Eastman Kodak, off 1¾ to 60⅝; Du Pont, off 1⅝ to 86⅝; and Alcoa, down 1⅛ to 26.

Big Board volume rose slightly to 12.89 million shares from Wednesday's 12.58 million shares.

Some analysts thought the decline Thursday was typical for a situation of relatively light trading and no slid economic news to halt whay they feel was a deepening recession.

"You never have to buy stocks, but there are many times you have to sell them," said John Smith of Fahnestock & Co. "When the sellers come in, they just have to accept a lower price."

Sears and other retail giants reported November sales figures that apparently distressed investors.

S.S. Kresge, for example, reported that sales rose 14 per cent over a year ago, but the company's stock declined 1½ to 19⅝ and was the second-most active issue for the day.

Wesintghouse was the most-active Big Board issue, off ⅛ to 8⅝.

IBM, which is not a member of the Dow 30, fell 3½ to 166¼, after the Justice Department announced that its civil antitrust suit against the corporation was scheduled to begin Feb. 18 in federal court in New York.

Gold stocks reversed the downward trend of many other stock groups by adding to gains made in the previous session after sharp losses suffered Tuesday when the Treasury Department announced it would sell two million ounced of gold at public auction Jan. 6.

Bradford Computers was the most-active Amex issue, down 1 at 4⅝.

Commodity Futures Trim Early Gains

Chicago (AP) — A good demand produced sharply improved commodity futures gains on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday, but profit-taking at the close trimmed the gains.

An announcement of improved export business overnight strongly influenced buying of wheat futures that produced a gain of about 10 cents a bushel. Late in the session, the gain was about halved and in the closing minutes an additional two pennies were trimmed.

Reports from the country that some harvesting had slowed down because of inclement weather brought some buying into the corn pit early. Hedging was light. Later, some private reports noted that very little harvested corn was moving into commercial channels and not much of what was available was of top grade. Corn futures, too, came under selling pressure at the close. The liquidation before the final bell turned oats uneven.

Soybeans, meal and oil responded to a good demand early but eased in the closing minutes when professionals were after profits. Soybean oil turned weak in the last minute but meal gained about $4 a ton. Soybeans, up 15 cents early, gained about 11 cents.

Hog Prices Rebound At Omaha

Barrows and gilts, weighing in from 200-290 pounds, trended from 25 to 75 cents higher. The limited sales on heavier weighted butchers were called steady to 50-cents higher. The butcher top was $40.50 very sparingly. Most sales ranged from $39.75-$40.25, many at $40.00.

Sows were steady to 25-cents, instances 50-cents higher, cashing $33.00-$34.25.

Cattle receipts dwindled to just 1,200 head, about normal for a Thursday, and prices shot skyward. Steers trended $1.00-$1.50 higher, while heifers were 50-cents to $1.00 on the upside. Cows took their second, consecutive day of losses, losing another 50 cents.

Choice steers were ticketed from $37.50-$38.75, while choice and prime heifer offerings brought $37.50-$38.00.

Utility and commercial cows traded $16.00-$18.00, with cutters and canners bringing $13.00-$16.00.

Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) (USDA)—Livestock quotations Thursday:

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals for the furnishing of all materials, equipment, and labor for demolition of barns, site demolition and clearing, and building site fill at the Nebraska State Fairgrounds, Lincoln, Nebraska, as per plans and specifications prepared by Clark and Enersen, Hamersky, Schlaebitz, Burroughs and Thomsen, Architects and Engineers, 1515 Sharp Building, Lincoln, Nebraska, will be received at the Fair Administration Building until 2:00 p.m., C.S.T., Tuesday, December 10, 1974. Any proposals received after the closing date will be returned unopened.

One single sealed proposal will be received for the demolition and site clearing at the Nebraska State Fairgrounds. All bids shall be made on the printed Proposal Form to be made a part of the Contract Documents.

All bids shall remain in effect for a period of 30 days after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids.

Each bid shall be accompanied by an acceptable Bid Bond, or Certified Check, payable to the Manager, Nebraska State Board of Agriculture, in the amount of five percent of the total bid submitted as a guarantee that, if awarded the Contract, the bidder will promptly enter into a Contract and execute such bonds as may be required. If bid security is not received with the proposal, the bid will not be considered.

The successful bidder to whom a Contract is to be awarded shall provide a Performance Bond and Labor and Material Payment Bond, a double form of bond issued as "A.I.A. Form A-311," a standard form of the American Institute of Architects. Bond shall be in the amount of 100 percent of the Contract.

The Owner shall not be obligated in connection with submitted bids arbitrarily to award the Contract for the construction of the project to the lowest bidder, but shall reserve the right to reject any and all bids, or to waive any informality in any proposal it deems advisable, and to award the Contract to the bidder which, in his opinion, is most desirable.

Plans and specifications may be inspected at the Office of the Architect and the Lincoln Builder's Bureau, 507 "J" Street, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Plans and specifications may be obtained from the Architects and Engineers upon payment of $10.00 deposit for the first set. Deposit for the first set will be returned to bidders upon return of the plans and specifications in good condition with a period of 10 days after the opening of bids. The $10.00 deposit will be forfeited by the prospective bidder who does not submit a bid, unless the plans and specifications are returned to the office of the Architects and Engineers four days prior to the date of bid opening.

Additional sets of plans and specifications may be purchased from the Architects and Engineers upon payment of $10.000 per set, non-refundable. Individual sheets of drawings and specification may be purchased from the Architects and Engineers for the cost or reporduction.

The work in this Contract must be completed by March 1, 1975 to allow the Owner to use the area for the Construction of Race Track Improvements.

Special Education Funding Proposals Hammered Out

By The Associated Press

State officials apparently have reached a consensus agreement on proposals that will be placed before the State Board of Education Friday in an effort to solve problems related to distribution of special education funds for the handicapped.

However, it appeared that at least one more legal snag may have to be resolved before the immediate questions surrounding LB403 are resolved.

The bill was approved by the last Legislature. It is designed to pay 90% of the additional per pupil costs of special education for the handicapped. The other 10% is paid by the school district.

Representatives of the Department of Education, the Department of Administrative Services and the attorney general took part in a three-hour meeting Thursday to hammer out "rough draft" recommendations for:

— Procedures to be used by school districts in certifying the number of handicapped children to receive services.

— A procedure for rectifying payments erroneously made to school districts in the first quarter, when those school districts had no handicapped children needing services.

The Department of Education will recommend that school districts which received payments by mistake in the first quarter be asked to refund them. Those would be districts that have no handicapped children.

Districts which simply received excess first quarter payments would not be asked for refunds, but future payments would be adjusted to reflect the excess payment, officials said.

Dr. Frances Colgan, of the Education Department, presented a form that could be used by school districts to certify the number of handicapped children they have, what handicaps those children suffer, and what services they will need.

Colgan's form will be changed somewhat before being submitted to the board, which could make further changes, or reject the recommendation entirely.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher recommended that, next to each designated handicap, the section of the law which defines that handicap legally should be noted.

"With that, the school boards could look up that section of the law and determine if the child, or the children involved, meet that criteria," Mosher said.

The unresolved legal question was this:

Can school districts receive state funds under LB403 before the districts themselves pay for the services the funds will provide?

Dr. Anne Campbell, the education commissioner designate, questioned whether school districts would have cash flow problems if the funds could only be issued to reimburse them for bills they had paid.

Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley indicated he felt reimbursement, rather than having the payments made in advance of the districts' expenditures, might be a better course.

That question could ultimately be sent to the attorney general for an opinion.

The attorney general's office was still working Thursday afternoon on an opinion requested by the Board of Education. That opinion will center on whether school districts, which have no handicapped children, can be billed by an Educational Service Unit simply because the ESU services are there if needed.

The opinion was to answer that question as it applies to districts that have ESU contracts and those that do not.

Irregularities in distribution of first quarter payments were brought to the attention of Gov. J. James Exon, who then requested and received a special board meeting held last month.

At that meeting the board instructed DAS and the Education Department to meet and come up with recommended solutions.

The board also will receive a list of proposed members for an advisory committee that will work on any final plans for implementation of LB403.

Iowans Held In 3 Deaths Not Charged

Carlsbad, N.M. (UPI) — Eddy County District Attorney Dave Hougland said a Salix, Iowa, couple being held here in connection with a triple slaying in Sioux City, Iowa, earlier this week were released late Thursday.

Hougland said Van L. Chadwick and Diane Renee Lindley, were released Thursday night after lie detector tests were administered to them. Earlier authorities had reported Chadwick was being held on three counts of murder in connection with the shooting deaths of two men and one woman in Sioux City and Ms. Lindley was being held as an accomplice to the homicides.

However, Hougland said, no charges were filed against the couple in New Mexico and "it is my understanding that no charges will be filed against the two in Iowa."

The district attorney said he was informed Wednesday that a warrant for the arrests of the two had been issued and they were picked up in New Mexico as fugitives. But, he added, they were not arraigned and no charges were brought against Chadwick or Ms. Lindley in the New Mexico courts.

Abzug Cancels NU Appearance

Congresswoman Bella Abzug has cancelled her appearance at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, according to the Nebraska Union Program Office.

Changes in the House of Representatives agenda necessitated the cancellation, said a UNL spokesperson.

She had been scheduled to speak at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 12-6

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 12-6
